Traffic Count in Sikeston

The highway department will begin making traffic volume counts next week on all state highways and on a number of city streets in Sikeston, according to W. H. Shaw, district engineer.

Shaw said it will take two months to complete the counts.

A. H. Lehman will be in charge.

Shaw said the departments attempts to make such counts periodically to determine traffic patterns and volumes on the most heavily traveled routes. The information is used for administrative and planning purposes.

The counts will be taken on a sampling basis. The counting will be done by machines which utilize pressure hose stretched across traffic lanes.

After the information has been gathered, a traffic map will be prepared in the department's main office in Jefferson City. Copies of the map will be distributed to interested agencies and individuals.

Sheriff and Court Post Contested

BENTON -- Filings have been light for county office seekers in the Aug. 9 Democratic primary election the county clerk's office reported.

Offices to be filed this year are associated county court judges from the first and second districts, prosecuting attorney, sheriff, assessor, coroner, surveyor, public administrator and committeemen and committeewomen.

Filing for re-election for associate judges of the county court were J. E. Childress of Sikeston, first district, and Bob Davis of Scott City, second district. Also filing for associate judge of the second district was E. K. Riggs of Scott City.

Incumbent John Dennis, Benton; Circuit Clerk Lynn Ingram, Sikeston, and Bill Proffer, Sikeston, have filed for sheriff.

Tom Gilmore of Sikeston, assistant prosecuting attorney, has filed for the office of prosecuting attorney.

Deadline for filing is April 30.

Science Fair Will Be Held Friday

The annual junior high school science fair will be from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Friday in the school gymnasium.

There will be six categories for the student projects:

Botany, zoology, health and medicine, chemistry, physics and earth and space science.

Judging will be Friday afternoon by the science faculty of the high school. First, second and third places will be awarded in each of the six divisions.

Six projects will be selected to represent the junior high school in the 12th regional science fair April 2-5 at Cape Girardeau.

4,000 Fresh Troops Join Allied Forces

SAIGON (AP) — A 4,000-man brigade from the U.S. 82nd Airborne Division has arrived in Vietnam to bolster allied forces in a war now marked by renewed jungle fighting along with continued Communist pressure around Saigon.

The U.S. Command announced today completion of the airlift of the reinforcements, including many veterans of Vietnam. They are assigned to the Americal Division, elements of which reported killing 148 of the enemy in a coastal engagement Tuesday at a cost of two dead and 14 wounded.

Viet Cong maintained pressure on Saigon overnight by bombardment of six military installations within a 25-mile arc of the capital, including a Saigon port facility.

Pressure was maintained also on Khe Sanh, the U.S. Marine base 400 miles away in the northwest corner of the country. North Vietnamese gunners fired more than 100 rounds of artillery, rocket and mortar fire at the base in the 24 hours up to dawn. Briefing officers said casualties and damage were light.

U.S. B52 Stratofortresses staged two saturation raids on suspected enemy troop concentrations and weapons positions six miles west of Khe Sanh.

A U. S. spokesman said air strikes and artillery bombardment of Communist positions around the base Tuesday killed 31 enemy troops, destroyed a .50-caliber machine-gun emplacement and touched off 36 secondary explosions among ammunition dumps and fuel stores.

The new arrivals, the 82nd Division's 3rd Brigade, are part of the 10,500 men President Johnson ordered from the United States two weeks ago in response to Gen. William C. Westmoreland's urgent request because of the Khe Sanh situation and the prospect of new Communist attacks on South Vietnam's cities and towns.

An additional 4,000 Marines are en route to Vietnam.

Don Wisdom Cancer Fund Drive Chief

Don Wisdom, lifelong resident of Scott county and manager of Crown Finance Co., has been selected to serve as the Sikeston city chairman for the 1968 Cancer Crusade.

He has been employed by the finance company in Sikeston two years. He served four years in the air force. He id his wife, Dee, and their three children, Don, Deb and Deron, live at 810 East Hunter.

The chairman said several persons have pledged to work in the April crusade. More volunteers are needed.

Wisdom said he hopes to top last year's city collection of more than $2,400.

"It will be exceeded," Wisdom said, "if everyone gives something when the volunteers knock."

Littering Will Be Prosecuted

Any person dumping refuse on any city street will be prosecuted, Police Chief Arthur Bruce said.

Several are violating the ordinance prohibiting dumping of refuse within the city limits, Bruce said.

The worst dumping offenses are on Compress road, Ables road, North Ingram road and West Murray Lane.

On Compress road refuse is being dumped from the bottom of the hill to the first ditch in the city. On North Ingram road it is being dumped near the old Hart's cemetery. Refuse is illegally being dumped on Ables road east of the high school at and especially off Helen street. Residents are dumping refuse on West Murray Lane below the hill.

City employe man hours are being used in cleaning the areas and hauling the trash to the city dump at the expense of taxpayers, Bruce said.

Persons caught dumping will be summoned to court. Police will appreciate receiving any information leading to the arrest of violators, Bruce said.

Divorce Granted

NEW MADRID -- One divorce was granted and one probation revoked in circuit court, with Judge William H. Ragland presiding.

A decree of divorce, custody of one child and $40 a month child support were granted Pamela Skyrme, by next friend, Rosco Turman, in her suit against Dudley K. Skyrme.

Probation was revoked in the criminal case against Walter Scott Walker. He had been sentenced May 1, 1967, to two years for burglary and two years for larceny, sentences to run concurrently. He will now serve that sentence.

Lead Role Unfilled, Play Delayed

Sikeston Little Theatre's production of "A Man Called Peter," which had been scheduled to open tomorrow night, has been postponed until fall, Director Lynn Colley said.

"Several unforeseen conditions made it impossible to present the play as scheduled," Colley said.

The postponement was due to difficulty in finding a person for the lead role. Two men had agreed earlier in rehearsals to play the part, but conflicting obligations interfered.

"Since enthusiasm over "A Man Called Peter" has been high, the board of directors is assured that it will be possible to present the play as the first production of the new season in September.

Group Adopts Guidelines

City Manager W. Raymert Miller attended a Tuesday meeting of the state advisory committee for Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965 in Jefferson City.

The committee is composed of several of the state's educator's, municipal leaders and businessmen. Their function is to advise the state administrator of the Title I program on programs and policy.

In the meeting yesterday, the committee adopted an annual program plan amendment to the state plan for community service and continuing education program. It has guidelines for plans submitted under Title I by schools and colleges.

Man Sought for Passing Checks

SCOTT CITY -- Authorities are looking for a man believed to have been involved in a bad check swindle at the Scott City Bank and Trust Company the past week, Sheriff John Dennis reported today.

The man deposited several checks at the bank Friday and Saturday, the sheriff said. He then tried to cash a check at the Sears-Roebuck Company at Cape Girardeau Saturday.

A Sears employe called the bank and was told that the man's checks, which he deposited had not been cleared, so Sears refused to cash the check.

The man returned to the bank Monday and tried to withdraw the money, but he was turned down, Sheriff Dennis said. The man then walked out of the bank.

The checks deposited had been made out on the account of Lemmings Lumber Company of Cape Girardeau and were First National Bank of Cape Girardeau checks. The man, described as five foot eight inches tall with dark complexion, posed as a timberman.

Science Fair Will Be Held Friday

The annual junior high school science fair will be from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Friday in the school gymnasium.

There will be six categories for the student projects:

Botany, zoology, health and medicine, chemistry, physics and earth and space science.

Judging will be Friday afternoon by the science faculty of the high school. First, second and third places will be awarded in each of the six divisions.

Six projects will be selected to represent the junior high school in the 12th regional science fair April 2-5 at Cape Girardeau.

Lead Role Unfilled, Play Delayed

Sikeston Little Theatre's production of "A Man Called Peter," which had been scheduled to open tomorrow night, has been postponed until fall, Director Lynn Colley said.

"Several unforeseen conditions made it impossible to present the play as scheduled," Colley said.

The postponement was due to difficulty in finding a person for the lead role. Two men had agreed earlier in rehearsals to play the part, but conflicting obligations interfered.

"Since enthusiasm over "A Man Called Peter" has been high, the board of directors is assured that it will be possible to present the play as the first production of the new season in September.

Group Adopts Guidelines

City Manager W. Raymert Miller attended a Tuesday meeting of the state advisory committee for Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965 in Jefferson City.

The committee is composed of several of the state's educator's, municipal leaders and businessmen. Their function is to advise the state administrator of the Title I program on programs and policy.

In the meeting yesterday, the committee adopted an annual program plan amendment to the state plan for community service and continuing education program. It has guidelines for plans submitted under Title I by schools and colleges.

St. Genevieve Artist Featured in Exhibit

CHARLESTON - Matthew Ziegler, veteran artist from Ste. Genevieve, will be the featured artist at the March art show presented by the Mississippi County Historical Society and Art Gallery.

The display will be open for the public Sunday, with a reception from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. The gallery is at 200 East Commercial Street. Hours are 1 p.m.-5 p.m. daily and Sunday. March 30 is the closing date of the show.

His first painting, done in 1918, will be included in the show. Since his start, he has exhibited in many places. He also developed Color-Forma, an original method of photographing the abstract in color. Fifty of his slides have been accepted by the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

4,000 Fresh Troops Join Allied Forces

SAIGON (AP) — A 4,000-man brigade from the U.S. 82nd Airborne Division has arrived in Vietnam to bolster allied forces in a war now marked by renewed jungle fighting along with continued Communist pressure around Saigon.

The U.S. Command announced today completion of the airlift of the reinforcements, including many veterans of Vietnam. They are assigned to the Americal Division, elements of which reported killing 148 of the enemy in a coastal engagement Tuesday at a cost of two dead and 14 wounded.

Viet Cong maintained pressure on Saigon overnight by bombardment of six military installations within a 25-mile arc of the capital, including a Saigon port facility.

Pressure was maintained also on Khe Sanh, the U.S. Marine base 400 miles away in the northwest corner of the country. North Vietnamese gunners fired more than 100 rounds of artillery, rocket and mortar fire at the base in the 24 hours up to dawn. Briefing officers said casualties and damage were light.

U.S. B52 Stratofortresses staged two saturation raids on suspected enemy troop concentrations and weapons positions six miles west of Khe Sanh.

A U. S. spokesman said air strikes and artillery bombardment of Communist positions around the base Tuesday killed 31 enemy troops, destroyed a .50-caliber machine-gun emplacement and touched off 36 secondary explosions among ammunition dumps and fuel stores.

The new arrivals, the 82nd Division's 3rd Brigade, are part of the 10,500 men President Johnson ordered from the United States two weeks ago in response to Gen. William C. Westmoreland's urgent request because of the Khe Sanh situation and the prospect of new Communist attacks on South Vietnam's cities and towns.

An additional 4,000 Marines are en route to Vietnam.

Man Sought for Passing Checks

SCOTT CITY -- Authorities are looking for a man believed to have been involved in a bad check swindle at the Scott City Bank and Trust Company the past week, Sheriff John Dennis reported today.

The man deposited several checks at the bank Friday and Saturday, the sheriff said. He then tried to cash a check at the Sears-Roebuck Company at Cape Girardeau Saturday.

A Sears employe called the bank and was told that the man's checks, which he deposited had not been cleared, so Sears refused to cash the check.

The man returned to the bank Monday and tried to withdraw the money, but he was turned down, Sheriff Dennis said. The man then walked out of the bank.

The checks deposited had been made out on the account of Lemmings Lumber Company of Cape Girardeau and were First National Bank of Cape Girardeau checks. The man, described as five foot eight inches tall with dark complexion, posed as a timberman.

Mine Fragments Wound Rodgers

Pfc. Larry W. Rodgers, 20, son of Mrs. Willa B. Rodgers, 244 Watson St., was wounded seriously Sunday. He suffered multiple fragment wounds in his head and body.

He was struck by fragments from a booby trap at Duc Pho, near DeNang, in Vietnam.

Mrs. Rodgers received a telegram today from Maj. Kenneth G. Wickham, informing her that although her son was seriously wounded he is no danger.

He entered the army in October of 1966, was trained in Colorado and Hawaii, and was sent overseas, arriving in Vietnam Dec. 2.

He is one of 10 living children. Five of the sons have served in the armed services.

Don Wisdom Cancer Fund Drive Chief

Don Wisdom, lifelong resident of Scott county and manager of Crown Finance Co., has been selected to serve as the Sikeston city chairman for the 1968 Cancer Crusade.

He has been employed by the finance company in Sikeston two years. He served four years in the air force. He and his wife, Dee, and their three children, Don, Deb and Deron, live at 810 East Hunter.

The chairman said several persons have pledged to work in the April crusade. More volunteers are needed.

Wisdom said he hopes to top last year's city collection of more than $2,400.

"It will be exceeded," Wisdom said, "if everyone gives something when the volunteers knock."

Littering Will Be Prosecuted

Any person dumping refuse on any city street will be prosecuted, Police Chief Arthur Bruce said.

Several are violating the ordinance prohibiting dumping of refuse within the city limits, Bruce said.

The worst dumping offenses are on Compress road, Ables road, North Ingram road and West Murray Lane.

On Compress road refuse is being dumped from the bottom of the hill to the first ditch in the city. On North Ingram road it is being dumped near the old Hart's cemetery. Refuse is illegally being dumped on Ables road east of the high school at and especially off Helen street. Residents are dumping refuse on West Murray Lane below the hill.

City employe man hours are being used in cleaning the areas and hauling the trash to the city dump at the expense of taxpayers, Bruce said.

Persons caught dumping will be summoned to court. Police will appreciate receiving any information leading to the arrest of violators, Bruce said.

Soldier Charged With Burglaries

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
LEAP DAY

Leap Day -- as Thursday, Feb. 29, is traditionally known -- lives on as little more than a subject for jokesmiths and a fortuitous occasion for party-giving. Confirmed bachelors can feel as safe as ever next Thursday, though no safer.

But was not ever thus. A Scottish law of 1288 provided that for "ilk (each) year known as lepe yeare" each maiden lady should "hae liberte to bespeke ye man she likes." Unless the victim could prove that he was betrothed to another, he was to be fined one pound or less if he regretted that he could only be a brother to her. Scottish women were required to wear scarlet flannel petticoats with the edge clearly showing if they intended to exercise their leap year prerogative.

A similar law was enacted in France a few years later, and in the 15th century the custom was legalized in Florence and Genoa. But the source books give no satisfactory explanation for the reversing of the traditional wooing roles.

Leap Year itself is the product of the astronomers of Julius Caesar, who in 46 B.C. fixed the solar year at 365 days, six hours. At the end of every four years these hours were to be combined in a day added to the fourth year. The Julian calendar was corrected by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582 to adjust a truer measure of the solar year -- 5 hours, 48 minutes and 45.51 seconds longer than 365 days. Gregory provided for the present system of omitting three leap years in every 400 years. The years in which the extra day is omitted are the so-called centesimal years (1700, 1800, 1900) except those divisible by 400 (1600, 2000).

HOPEFUL SIGN

The billboard industry in Vermont is considerably upset by a bill coming up before the state House of Representatives this week--a bill which even critics concede is likely to pass both houses with little change.

If it does pass in that form, observes The Wall Street Journal, the resulting law "will be the most far-reaching effort in the U.S. to limit billboards."

That's an understatement, actually, for what the bill will do is put the billboard business out of business in Vermont. And, though far from being "anti-business," this will cause Gov. Philip Hoff no regret. "We won't permit the state to become a honky tonk. We want to preserve Vermont's natural beauty."

The bill would eliminate all privately-owned billboards except those on the premises of a business, and even those would be strictly limited in size and shape.

What little billboard business is permitted to remain would be taken over by the state. Those permitted along highways will be state-owned, state controlled, sparingly spaced, legally restricted as to shape, size, color, lighting, lettering, and they would be limited to informational matter and guides to tourists seeking places of business. Businesses could buy space on such signs at a cost of $50 a year per sign, plus $25 a year each for maintenance.

Tourists visiting the state would find plazas built at each highway entry to Vermont, and there complete listing on all matters that could interest them -- tourist areas, accommodations, sightseeing areas, resorts, etc. Others will be strategically placed for tourists.

The essential thing is that nowhere in the state are signs to interfere with natural beauty. Vermont wisely polled its tourists, discovered that 65 per cent of them were drawn to the state primarily by its beauty.

The state prizes that $165 million annual business, plans to protect and expand it if possible, and if beauty is what they want, that is what visitors to Vermont are going to get.

Paradoxically, some of the businesses normally expected to oppose such a law -- resorts, skiing areas -- are among those who have supported the bill staunchly. In fact, except for the billboard industry, there has been little opposition.

If it passes as written, violations are not likely to become common. Although the maximum punishment for violations is only $100 and 30 days in jail, each day such signs stay up will be deemed a separate violation.

The state billboard industry's lobbyist is worried. He has about given up on Vermont, admits he and the industry are done there. But that isn't the worst of his fears: This thing, Wall Street Journal quotes him as saying, might spread to "Maine, then New Hampshire and elsewhere."

How tragic! Do you suppose it could even spread west to Missouri?

"This Week," published by the Arizona Farm Bureau Federation, has noted that the beef, pork and lamb that is daily purchased in thousands of supermarkets and consumed at millions of American dinner tables is the end product of the healthiest, most perfectly developed cattle, swine and sheep in history.

FATTER SOCIAL SECURITY CHECKS

More than 23.7 million Americans will receive their first checks, on or about Saturday, March 2, containing the 13 per cent across-the-board benefit increase provided under the Social Security Amendments of 1967. The additional benefits will cost $3.6 billion in the first full year. To finance this outlay, the 1967 amendments increased from $6,600 to $7,800 the amount of earnings on which an employee and employer each must pay the 4.4 per cent Social Security payroll tax.

Although 13 per cent seems like a hefty increase, Social Security benefits usually have failed to keep pace with rises in the cost of living. During the period 1950-54, the percentage increase in benefits was somewhat greater than the increase in price and earnings levels. But the 1958 benefit increase fell slightly short of restoring the purchasing power of benefit payments to the 1954 level, and the 7 per cent increase granted in 1965 fell short of restoring the purchasing power of benefit payments to the 1958 level.

By one way of reckoning, a potential Social Security debt of more than $400 billion exists right now. This sum represents the difference between the present value of future tax collections at present rates, plus accumulated reserves. Young people, and the more affluent of all ages, eventually will pay the bill. The Social Security tax rate is scheduled to climb to 4.8 per cent in 1969 and then to be raised by stages in subsequent years, reaching 5.9 per cent in 1987.

We were always an admirer of Ted's yankee thrift.

In all of the offices he held in fulfilling his obligation as a citizen, he served faithfully as a watchdog of the treasury.

Not stingy, but he watched the Chamber of Commerce, the Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation, the Community Chest. He wanted the people's money to bring in value for his feeling was that it was his obligation to see that funds intrusted to his organization should not be squandered.

He was honored with offices in the associations of his profession.

He was honored by the citizens of Sikeston for his integrity, friendliness and offer of help if he thought it was needed.

He served his company and Sikeston long and honorably. Sikeston needs many more citizens such as Ted Martin.

NEW YORK (AP) — Birthday remarks that dismay a woman over 29— or a man over 39:

"If we put candles on it, I'm afraid we'll have to get her a larger cake. Frankly, I think it would be more tactful if we left off the candles altogether."

"The last time we put candles on Harry's birthday cake it took him ten minutes to blow them all out, and he was so winded he had to stay home from work for three days."

"As your insurance agent, Harry, I think this is the proper time to review your estate program, and, by the way, we haven't revised your will lately, have we? You know there are some things we simply cannot afford to put off until tomorrow, aren't there?"

"Yes, Marge does look nice on her birthday. Five hours in a beauty shop can do a lot for any woman."

"Looking at it philosophically, Harry, you've reached the perfect age— too old to be fired, too young to be retired."

"I'm glad you liked the card I sent you. It set me back two bits. I can remember when you could get a card like that for a nickel, can't you?"

"The boss used to take Marge for a three-martini lunch on her birthday, but this year he just sent a secretary out to buy her a single red rose. I guess he was terribly busy."

"On the way home tonight, Harry, better stop off and pick out a wheelchair. After 40, a fellow never knows when he may need one."

"She can tell you she's only 34 until she's blue in the face, but I know better. She got her 25-year pin last month, and that means — if she's only 34— that she started pounding a typewriter here when she was only nine years old."

"Instead of giving Marge and Harry each a radio on their birthdays, why don't we get everybody in the office to chip in a couple extra bucks apiece and buy him a toupee and her a facelift?"

"I brought you a crying towel, Harry. Give it back to me when you're through with it. I've cried into it myself every year since I hit 40."

"There is no sense in fighting against time, Marge. After all, you now have what men value most in a woman— wisdom and maturity. Some men, anyway."

"The store is fresh out of birthday greeting cards. Why don't you send Harry a sympathy card and I'll send him a get-well card? They're more appropriate."

"Jim, I hear it's Harry's birthday. You know how these old-timers appreciate a little gesture from us front-office brass. How about having someone in the personnel department hand him a cigar or surprise him with a new cushion for his swivel chair?"

"There's always something to be grateful for. At least you still have your health, Harry— except for your ulcer and that slight touch of high blood pressure."

"Here's a crumb of comfort: While there are probably two billion people on earth who are younger than you, there are one billion who are older. Doesn't that help put things in perspective?"

"Happy birthday, Marge! You never looked better."

"Happy birthday, Harry! All I hope is that when I reach your age I look just half as young as you do."

DON'T BE A STATISTIC

It wasn't the best of years, but neither was it the worst, as far as accidents go.

An estimated 112,000 people died in accidents of all kinds in the United States in 1967. This was about 1,000 less than in 1966.

Fatal accidents in and about the home -- 28,500 -- showed a decrease, while motor vehicle deaths were about the same as the record high of 53,000 set in 1966.

Property destroyed by fire, however, zoomed up by more than $200 million to an estimated total of nearly $2.1 billion. Riots in U.S. cities accounted for more than $85 million of that, but single disasters, such as the Apollo spacecraft fire -- which killed three astronauts and cost $75 million -- and the destruction of Chicago's McCormick Place -- $52.5 million -- were not far behind.

Both these disasters took place in January. So far, the current year is off to a relatively quiet start. But if the record of almost every other year is a guide, 1968 will have its share of calamities.

It is important that our astronauts get to the moon. It will give a vicarious sense of accomplishment to all those people going through life reaching for it.

OPENING THE AIR AGE

On the 40th Anniversary of Charles Lindbergh's flight to Paris, Mr. Najeeb E. Halaby, former head of the Federal Aviation Agency and official of a leading international airline, commemorated the occasion in an Address before a gathering of Hofstra University, Garden City, New York. He told, in a dramatic fashion, of the significance of that epic flight and what the ensuing 40 years in air transport development have meant to the world. In the long run, the record shows that the greatest potential of the airplane lies in the direction of furthering peace and international understanding.

"Without the airplane to bring peoples together," Mr. Halaby says, "there would have been no United Nations. It has made possible the pilgrimages of the Pope across the seas, the first in 2,000 years, in the quest for peace. It has facilitated the growing exchange of technical brains between the nations. In the service of the humanities, the greatest doctors and surgeons are on call around the globe. The exchange of students and scholarships enable our young people who will lead tomorrow's world to learn the language and to share the lives of once-distant peoples with whom they will live as neughbors. All of these, on a global scale, are products of this air age. All of them serve one major purpose -- the spread of understanding among men of goodwill." These are the words of a man who has spent his life in aviation. The great achievements of Lindbergh, as pilot and engineering genius, have not been in vain.

ONE-ROOM SCHOOL IS BACK AGAIN

Latest breakthrough on the education front, as reported by the educational affairs news weekly, "Education U.S.A.," is something called "multiage grouping." Translated into English, it means putting children of different ages in the same classroom.

"For too long we have sliced knowledge horizontally and assumed that each age or grade group could only take one step at a time, one year for each step," says the Department of Elementary - Kindergarten - Nursery Education (EKNE) of the National Education Association.

A multiage classroom, judging by the EKNE description, has so many advantages it's hard to know where to begin to list them.

Younger children have someone to look up to and a chance to find out what will be expected of them later. Older ones can look back at the less mature ages they have just passed through, with increased security and emotional maturity. They can also tutor the younger kids.

Children of all ages learn appreciation and concern for others, self-respect, habits of helpfulness and cooperation -- in short, good social behavior.

Furthermore, say the educators, multiage grouping is life-like and natural, not school-like and regimented. It gives every classroom a wide diversity of experiences and interests, thus providing a good foundation for learning.

Multiage grouping. Something "new" under the sun.

Except that the one-room schoolhouse was there about 100 years ago. And we always thought our ancestors were culturally deprived.

THE SOUTHEAST ASIA SITUATION

The UPI called me February 13 seeking what I thought the United States should now do regarding South Vietnam. My answer was, "Whatever the MacArthur-trained Oriental strategists and their successors recommend." Answering its inquiry, I furnished the names of five outstanding generals of MacArthur's time and told them I would call one of them and get an opinion.

I reached General Courtney Whitney and posed the question. His reply was that General MacArthur would assuredly blockade the ports of entry, cutting off the supply of food, munitions and armaments which Russia and and China were sending to North Vietnam.

General Whitney said the blockade in Cuba, for the short time it was enforced, was effective. When I asked about the Korean situation, Whitney answered that if General MacArthur's campaign in Korea had been continued, there would not be the present problem in either Korea or Vietnam. I called the UPI back, as they anticipated, and related my conversation with General Whitney.

Today as never before this nation stands in dire need of the integrity and wisdom for which MacArthur was famous. Under his tutelage, such outstanding generals as Van Fleet, Wedemeyer, Whitney, Willoughby, Kenney and Fellers learned the Oriental mind and way of life.

This nation's leaders should seek the advice of these dedicated soldiers and their young successors whose judgment they would trust in our efforts to find a solution to the terrible riddle of Vietnam and Korea, and an insight into the enigmatic character of the Asiatics who held MacArthur and his country in such high esteem, and whose friendship for the U.S. has waned. MacArthur's knowledge of these people was another of his universally recognized qualities. Assuredly, much of it was passed on to those who served with him. HLH.

SAIGON - Angry resentment is boiling up here against President Nguyen Van Thieu who, less than six months after his election, is in deep political trouble. The betting in this coup-conscious country is that he will never finish his four-year term.

The muttering against Thieu has been heightened by the jarry Viet Cong attacks on several key South Vietnamese cities right under the nose of his government. But there is also growing disillusion over his failure to carry out social reforms. The anti-Thieu talk comes from four general sources:

1. The young Turks in the South Vietnamese army, most of them officers of middle rank, are restive under the leadership of commanders who continue to be selected more for their political connections than their military ability. A promised streamlining, which would reduce the power of the top generals, has never materialized. The army remains under the thumbs of the four corps commanders who are virtual warlords in their areas. Together they form Thieu's political base.

2. The public also has become increasingly cynical over Thieu's failure to clean up corruption and introduce reforms. Many Vietnamese who voted for Thieu have given up hope that he will be any better than his predecessors who seized power. As one explained to this column: "The Dung heap is the same. Only the flies are different."

3. American Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker has pressed President Thieu to adopt a socio-political program that will present the Vietnamese people with an alternative to the revolution offered by the Communists. But the results have been discouraging. Thieu seems more preoccupied with petty rivalries than with solving his country's problems.

4. Thieu has also lost the respect of other Asian leaders. I have talked to several of free Asia's foremore statesmen, including three heads of state. For obvious diplomatic reasons, they will not speak for publication about the head of another nation. But, privately, almost all of them described Thieu as a "lightweight." One president, who has participated in international conferences with Thieu, called him "a procrastinator."

-- THIEU TALKS BUT DOESN'T ACT --

South Vietnam's officialdom increasingly is choosing sides between President Thieu and Vice President Ky. As front man for the four warlords, Thieu has become the defender of the present order. He gives lip service to reforms but never puts them into effect.

Ky's quarrel with Thieu is probably more personal than ideological. Periodically he storms off in a pique over some presidential affront, real or imagined, sometimes staying away from his office for days at a time. As Thieu's leading opponent, however, Ky has suddenly become the champion of reform.

Inevitably, the top Americans in South Vietnam has become drawn into the feud. The American generals, having developed a close working relationship with the South Vietnamese generals, side with the Thieu clique. Behind the scenes, they have helped to sabotage reforms, particularly reforms that would alter the South Vietnamese military structure and curb the four warlords.

The U.S. generals, for example, are suspicious of Ky's efforts to shake up the South Vietnamese army. They are responsible, after all, for organizing and training the South Vietnamese army along conventional lines. Ky and the reformers contend that the army should be overhauled and whipped into a mobile, swift-striking, counter-insurgency force.

One skeptical American general, referring to Ky's background in the air force, dismissed his ideas with the gruff comment: "Ky has never commanded infantry."

--NO MATCH FOR GUERRILLAS --

However, several top civilians in General William Westmoreland's command vigorously agree with the reformers. They point out that a conventional army, following the tactics taught at West Point, has been unable to cope with the elusive guerrilla style of warfare.

"We have assembled more firepower in Vietnam," one contended, "than we used to crush Germany in World War II. Yet the Viet Cong slipped around our great military compounds, crept in the back door, shot up Saigon and, for a few hours, occupied part of the American Embassy."

This was evidence, he suggested, that we are "fighting the wrong war at the wrong time in the wrong place." He pleaded that mobility was more important than firepower in seeking out and destroying the guerrillas.

"The special forces," he said, "have learned how to fight the guerrillas, but they are treated like outcasts by our army."

Defending the conventional strategy, a general insisted to this column that a small group of desperate men can shoot up any capital in the world, including Wauhington. This would not mean, he argued, that they could conquer the United States. It is more important to hold the centers and control the transportation. This takes a conventional military force, he said. He also contended that North Vietnam, not the ragtag Viet Cong guerrillas, poses the greatest threat to South Vietnam. Again, a conventional army is needed to hold off a possible invasion.

Whatever the merits of the opposing arguments, Thieu's failure to push reforms has caused widespread unrest, and whispers are spreading of a coup against his lackadaisical government.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Powerful Labor Chiefs Develop World War II Type Crash Construction Programs to Wipe Out Today's Ghettos

WASHINGTON, D.C.: -- There's nothing inevitable about Molotov cocktails or ghetto tenements burning crisply in the flames of a red hot summer. There are easier ways to cure urban blight.

An unreported, go-go formula for ripping out the inner slum core of the big cities was developed quietly behind closed doors by a band of men long thought to be the least likely to unleash a deluge of new housing and open at least a million new jobs for Negroes right on their own streets.

Those men who devised the formula for the frontal attack on the inner city make up the rock-ribbed inner core of American labor -- the 18 leaders of the Building and Construction Trades Dept. (AFL-CIO). Most are dour men -- virtually labor's founding fathers. They did not rush to the mimeograph machines with philosophical paeans on poverty.

They simply met in a closed room in the Bal Harbour (Fla.) Hotel Americana on Feb. 13 and decided to attack the social crisis of 1968 as they did the military crisis of 1941.

In that salon with the construction trades' 18 chiefs were AFL-CIO president George Meany; Harvard's curmudgeon, John Dunlop, member of the Graduate School of Public Administration, a power in massive construction's labor - management circles; Lane Kirkland, the one-man inner secretariat of the AFL-CIO; and the labor leader who revels in anonymity, the electrical workers' Joe Keenan, adviser to presidents for decades on this front.

The crisscrossing dialogues had one motif -- the time had come. Let no one say that everyone was happy, for go-go meant ripping asunder old traditions, territories, and restricted membership rosters. Nonetheless, these political-industrial pachyderms decided to move. They did.

They appointed an administrative committee made up of the Carpenters' Maurice Hutcheson, the Laborers' Pete Fosco, the Plumbers' Peter Schoemann, the Electrical Brotherhood's Gordon Freeman, the Operating Engineers' Hunter Wharton and Building Trades Department president Neal Haggerty.

Collectively these men of another generation could stop all American industry dead. Collectively they can -- literally -- get up the manpower to move mountains or remove ghettos.

Their next move was making contact with the President's Committee on Urban Housing (the Kaiser Committee).

These influential men will soon be talking with the Kaiser group about ponderous matters -- construction in the "trillions."

As they see it, this means that America's biggest contractors will have to be moved in for the basic organization work. No small contractor can guarantee to tear 20 square blocks of grisly ghetto out of a Harlem, a Watts or a Chicago slum.

But no one of the giant contractors in the hundred billion dollar building and construction industry will move in without guarantees that he will not be stuck in some labor swamp dug for him by feuding local unions.

So it's safe to predict that the Department's new administrative committee will come to Kaiser's group with a formula which once worked: they'll offer a national agreement similar to the one which was developed and made public on July 24, 1941. At that time, the late Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, was Associate Director General of the Office of Production Management.

These United States, faced by world war, had to build in a hurry -- especially military training camps. So there was a tripartite agreement with contractors and government agencies such as the Army and Navy. The nation needed a crash construction program. They got it.

Practically the same man, or their immediate predecessors, agreed there would be industrial peace. Joe Keenan authored the agreement.

Now, almost 27 years later, there is a new war on the home front -- bitter and explosive. So Keenan and his colleagues have updated the proposals.

They are ready to agree to a no-strike pact. They will promise that the contractors and the government will not be caught in jurisdictional wars between unions.

They propose pre-construction conferences at which agreements will be hammered out on wages, fringes, uniform overtime, uniform shifts, predetermination of all possible rules and payments.

This is the antidote to the Molotov cocktail. This can be the roaring retort to extremists' cries of burn, baby, burn.

Give the building trades unions leaders credit for moving along, even if the road was tread by painful inches.

But neither they nor the public should overlook the clause in the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act -- the Model Cities law of 1966.

It says that there must be maximum opportunities for residents of the area in all phases of the programs which redevelop them. And there must be full opportunity for training.

Again, here, this translates into the hiring of Negroes -- not only of those who "qualify," but those, no matter how raw, who can possibly be turned into skilled and semiskilled workers at the generous building trades rates.

There will be outcries. There will be charges that the program will be controlled at the bottom by local unions and contractors.

So the administrative committee is recommending a network of local and regional review boards. These will pyramid up to a national review board.

Thus, with the money coming from the government, the management know-how from the biggest contractors of all, the skills provided by the old union craftsmen, and the ghetto kids taken off the street corners and taught to earn a day's pay, urban America can be remade.

LEAP DAY

Leap Day -- as Thursday, Feb. 29, is traditionally known -- lives on as little more than a subject for jokesmiths and a fortuitous occasion for party-giving. Confirmed bachelors can feel as safe as ever next Thursday, though no safer.

But was not ever thus. A Scottish law of 1288 provided that for "ilk (each) year known as lepe yeare" each maiden lady should "hae liberte to bespeke ye man she likes." Unless the victim could prove that he was betrothed to another, he was to be fined one pound or less if he regretted that he could only be a brother to her. Scottish women were required to wear scarlet flannel petticoats with the edge clearly showing if they intended to exercise their leap year prerogative.

A similar law was enacted in France a few years later, and in the 15th century the custom was legalized in Florence and Genoa. But the source books give no satisfactory explanation for the reversing of the traditional wooing roles.

Leap Year itself is the product of the astronomers of Julius Caesar, who in 46 B.C. fixed the solar year at 365 days, six hours. At the end of every four years these hours were to be combined in a day added to the fourth year. The Julian calendar was corrected by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582 to adjust a truer measure of the solar year -- 5 hours, 48 minutes and 45.51 seconds longer than 365 days. Gregory provided for the present system of omitting three leap years in every 400 years. The years in which the extra day is omitted are the so-called centesimal years (1700, 1800, 1900) except those divisible by 400 (1600, 2000).

HOPEFUL SIGN

The billboard industry in Vermont is considerably upset by a bill coming up before the state House of Representatives this week--a bill which even critics concede is likely to pass both houses with little change.

If it does pass in that form, observes The Wall Street Journal, the resulting law "will be the most far-reaching effort in the U.S. to limit billboards."

That's an understatement, actually, for what the bill will do is put the billboard business out of business in Vermont. And, though far from being "anti-business," this will cause Gov. Philip Hoff no regret. "We won't permit the state to become a honky tonk. We want to preserve Vermont's natural beauty."

The bill would eliminate all privately-owned billboards except those on the premises of a business, and even those would be strictly limited in size and shape.

What little billboard business is permitted to remain would be taken over by the state. Those permitted along highways will be state-owned, state controlled, sparingly spaced, legally restricted as to shape, size, color, lighting, lettering, and they would be limited to informational matter and guides to tourists seeking places of business. Businesses could buy space on such signs at a cost of $50 a year per sign, plus $25 a year each for maintenance.

Tourists visiting the state would find plazas built at each highway entry to Vermont, and there complete listing on all matters that could interest them -- tourist areas, accommodations, sightseeing areas, resorts, etc. Others will be strategically placed for tourists.

The essential thing is that nowhere in the state are signs to interfere with natural beauty. Vermont wisely polled its tourists, discovered that 65 per cent of them were drawn to the state primarily by its beauty.

The state prizes that $165 million annual business, plans to protect and expand it if possible, and if beauty is what they want, that is what visitors to Vermont are going to get.

Paradoxically, some of the businesses normally expected to oppose such a law -- resorts, skiing areas -- are among those who have supported the bill staunchly. In fact, except for the billboard industry, there has been little opposition.

If it passes as written, violations are not likely to become common. Although the maximum punishment for violations is only $100 and 30 days in jail, each day such signs stay up will be deemed a separate violation.

The state billboard industry's lobbyist is worried. He has about given up on Vermont, admits he and the industry are done there. But that isn't the worst of his fears: This thing, Wall Street Journal quotes him as saying, might spread to "Maine, then New Hampshire and elsewhere."

How tragic! Do you suppose it could even spread west to Missouri?

"This Week," published by the Arizona Farm Bureau Federation, has noted that the beef, pork and lamb that is daily purchased in thousands of supermarkets and consumed at millions of American dinner tables is the end product of the healthiest, most perfectly developed cattle, swine and sheep in history.

FATTER SOCIAL SECURITY CHECKS

More than 23.7 million Americans will receive their first checks, on or about Saturday, March 2, containing the 13 per cent across-the-board benefit increase provided under the Social Security Amendments of 1967. The additional benefits will cost $3.6 billion in the first full year. To finance this outlay, the 1967 amendments increased from $6,600 to $7,800 the amount of earnings on which an employee and employer each must pay the 4.4 per cent Social Security payroll tax.

Although 13 per cent seems like a hefty increase, Social Security benefits usually have failed to keep pace with rises in the cost of living. During the period 1950-54, the percentage increase in benefits was somewhat greater than the increase in price and earnings levels. But the 1958 benefit increase fell slightly short of restoring the purchasing power of benefit payments to the 1954 level, and the 7 per cent increase granted in 1965 fell short of restoring the purchasing power of benefit payments to the 1958 level.

By one way of reckoning, a potential Social Security debt of more than $400 billion exists right now. This sum represents the difference between the present value of future tax collections at present rates, plus accumulated reserves. Young people, and the more affluent of all ages, eventually will pay the bill. The Social Security tax rate is scheduled to climb to 4.8 per cent in 1969 and then to be raised by stages in subsequent years, reaching 5.9 per cent in 1987.

"Jim, I hear it's Harry's birthday. You know how these old-timers appreciate a little gesture from us front-office brass. How about having someone in the personnel department hand him a cigar or surprise him with a new cushion for his swivel chair?"

"There's always something to be grateful for. At least you still have your health, Harry— except for your ulcer and that slight touch of high blood pressure."

"Here's a crumb of comfort: While there are probably two billion people on earth who are younger than you, there are one billion who are older. Doesn't that help put things in perspective?"

"Happy birthday, Marge! You never looked better."

"Happy birthday, Harry! All I hope is that when I reach your age I look just half as young as you do."

DON'T BE A STATISTIC

It wasn't the best of years, but neither was it the worst, as far as accidents go.

An estimated 112,000 people died in accidents of all kinds in the United States in 1967. This was about 1,000 less than in 1966.

Fatal accidents in and about the home -- 28,500 -- showed a decrease, while motor vehicle deaths were about the same as the record high of 53,000 set in 1966.

Property destroyed by fire, however, zoomed up by more than $200 million to an estimated total of nearly $2.1 billion. Riots in U.S. cities accounted for more than $85 million of that, but single disasters, such as the Apollo spacecraft fire -- which killed three astronauts and cost $75 million -- and the destruction of Chicago's McCormick Place -- $52.5 million -- were not far behind.

Both these disasters took place in January. So far, the current year is off to a relatively quiet start. But if the record of almost every other year is a guide, 1968 will have its share of calamities.

It is important that our astronauts get to the moon. It will give a vicarious sense of accomplishment to all those people going through life reaching for it.

OPENING THE AIR AGE

On the 40th Anniversary of Charles Lindbergh's flight to Paris, Mr. Najeeb E. Halaby, former head of the Federal Aviation Agency and official of a leading international airline, commemorated the occasion in an Address before a gathering of Hofstra University, Garden City, New York. He told, in a dramatic fashion, of the significance of that epic flight and what the ensuing 40 years in air transport development have meant to the world. In the long run, the record shows that the greatest potential of the airplane lies in the direction of furthering peace and international understanding.

"Without the airplane to bring peoples together," Mr. Halaby says, "there would have been no United Nations. It has made possible the pilgrimages of the Pope across the seas, the first in 2,000 years, in the quest for peace. It has facilitated the growing exchange of technical brains between the nations. In the service of the humanities, the greatest doctors and surgeons are on call around the globe. The exchange of students and scholarships enable our young people who will lead tomorrow's world to learn the language and to share the lives of once-distant peoples with whom they will live as neughbors. All of these, on a global scale, are products of this air age. All of them serve one major purpose -- the spread of understanding among men of goodwill." These are the words of a man who has spent his life in aviation. The great achievements of Lindbergh, as pilot and engineering genius, have not been in vain.

ONE-ROOM SCHOOL IS BACK AGAIN

Latest breakthrough on the education front, as reported by the educational affairs news weekly, "Education U.S.A.," is something called "multiage grouping." Translated into English, it means putting children of different ages in the same classroom.

"For too long we have sliced knowledge horizontally and assumed that each age or grade group could only take one step at a time, one year for each step," says the Department of Elementary - Kindergarten - Nursery Education (EKNE) of the National Education Association.

A multiage classroom, judging by the EKNE description, has so many advantages it's hard to know where to begin to list them.

Younger children have someone to look up to and a chance to find out what will be expected of them later. Older ones can look back at the less mature ages they have just passed through, with increased security and emotional maturity. They can also tutor the younger kids.

Children of all ages learn appreciation and concern for others, self-respect, habits of helpfulness and cooperation -- in short, good social behavior.

Furthermore, say the educators, multiage grouping is life-like and natural, not school-like and regimented. It gives every classroom a wide diversity of experiences and interests, thus providing a good foundation for learning.

Multiage grouping. Something "new" under the sun.

Except that the one-room schoolhouse was there about 100 years ago. And we always thought our ancestors were culturally deprived.

THE SOUTHEAST ASIA SITUATION

The UPI called me February 13 seeking what I thought the United States should now do regarding South Vietnam. My answer was, "Whatever the MacArthur-trained Oriental strategists and their successors recommend." Answering its inquiry, I furnished the names of five outstanding generals of MacArthur's time and told them I would call one of them and get an opinion.

I reached General Courtney Whitney and posed the question. His reply was that General MacArthur would assuredly blockade the ports of entry, cutting off the supply of food, munitions and armaments which Russia and and China were sending to North Vietnam.

General Whitney said the blockade in Cuba, for the short time it was enforced, was effective. When I asked about the Korean situation, Whitney answered that if General MacArthur's campaign in Korea had been continued, there would not be the present problem in either Korea or Vietnam. I called the UPI back, as they anticipated, and related my conversation with General Whitney.

Today as never before this nation stands in dire need of the integrity and wisdom for which MacArthur was famous. Under his tutelage, such outstanding generals as Van Fleet, Wedemeyer, Whitney, Willoughby, Kenney and Fellers learned the Oriental mind and way of life.

This nation's leaders should seek the advice of these dedicated soldiers and their young successors whose judgment they would trust in our efforts to find a solution to the terrible riddle of Vietnam and Korea, and an insight into the enigmatic character of the Asiatics who held MacArthur and his country in such high esteem, and whose friendship for the U.S. has waned. MacArthur's knowledge of these people was another of his universally recognized qualities. Assuredly, much of it was passed on to those who served with him. HLH.

SAIGON - Angry resentment is boiling up here against President Nguyen Van Thieu who, less than six months after his election, is in deep political trouble. The betting in this coup-conscious country is that he will never finish his four-year term.

The muttering against Thieu has been heightened by the jarry Viet Cong attacks on several key South Vietnamese cities right under the nose of his government. But there is also growing disillusion over his failure to carry out social reforms. The anti-Thieu talk comes from four general sources:

1. The young Turks in the South Vietnamese army, most of them officers of middle rank, are restive under the leadership of commanders who continue to be selected more for their political connections than their military ability. A promised streamlining, which would reduce the power of the top generals, has never materialized. The army remains under the thumbs of the four corps commanders who are virtual warlords in their areas. Together they form Thieu's political base.

2. The public also has become increasingly cynical over Thieu's failure to clean up corruption and introduce reforms. Many Vietnamese who voted for Thieu have given up hope that he will be any better than his predecessors who seized power. As one explained to this column: "The Dung heap is the same. Only the flies are different."

3. American Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker has pressed President Thieu to adopt a socio-political program that will present the Vietnamese people with an alternative to the revolution offered by the Communists. But the results have been discouraging. Thieu seems more preoccupied with petty rivalries than with solving his country's problems.

4. Thieu has also lost the respect of other Asian leaders. I have talked to several of free Asia's foremore statesmen, including three heads of state. For obvious diplomatic reasons, they will not speak for publication about the head of another nation. But, privately, almost all of them described Thieu as a "lightweight." One president, who has participated in international conferences with Thieu, called him "a procrastinator."

-- THIEU TALKS BUT DOESN'T ACT --

South Vietnam's officialdom increasingly is choosing sides between President Thieu and Vice President Ky. As front man for the four warlords, Thieu has become the defender of the present order. He gives lip service to reforms but never puts them into effect.

Ky's quarrel with Thieu is probably more personal than ideological. Periodically he storms off in a pique over some presidential affront, real or imagined, sometimes staying away from his office for days at a time. As Thieu's leading opponent, however, Ky has suddenly become the champion of reform.

Inevitably, the top Americans in South Vietnam has become drawn into the feud. The American generals, having developed a close working relationship with the South Vietnamese generals, side with the Thieu clique. Behind the scenes, they have helped to sabotage reforms, particularly reforms that would alter the South Vietnamese military structure and curb the four warlords.

The U.S. generals, for example, are suspicious of Ky's efforts to shake up the South Vietnamese army. They are responsible, after all, for organizing and training the South Vietnamese army along conventional lines. Ky and the reformers contend that the army should be overhauled and whipped into a mobile, swift-striking, counter-insurgency force.

One skeptical American general, referring to Ky's background in the air force, dismissed his ideas with the gruff comment: "Ky has never commanded infantry."

--NO MATCH FOR GUERRILLAS --

However, several top civilians in General William Westmoreland's command vigorously agree with the reformers. They point out that a conventional army, following the tactics taught at West Point, has been unable to cope with the elusive guerrilla style of warfare.

"We have assembled more firepower in Vietnam," one contended, "than we used to crush Germany in World War II. Yet the Viet Cong slipped around our great military compounds, crept in the back door, shot up Saigon and, for a few hours, occupied part of the American Embassy."

This was evidence, he suggested, that we are "fighting the wrong war at the wrong time in the wrong place." He pleaded that mobility was more important than firepower in seeking out and destroying the guerrillas.

"The special forces," he said, "have learned how to fight the guerrillas, but they are treated like outcasts by our army."

Defending the conventional strategy, a general insisted to this column that a small group of desperate men can shoot up any capital in the world, including Wauhington. This would not mean, he argued, that they could conquer the United States. It is more important to hold the centers and control the transportation. This takes a conventional military force, he said. He also contended that North Vietnam, not the ragtag Viet Cong guerrillas, poses the greatest threat to South Vietnam. Again, a conventional army is needed to hold off a possible invasion.

Whatever the merits of the opposing arguments, Thieu's failure to push reforms has caused widespread unrest, and whispers are spreading of a coup against his lackadaisical government.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Powerful Labor Chiefs Develop World War II Type Crash Construction Programs to Wipe Out Today's Ghettos

WASHINGTON, D.C.: -- There's nothing inevitable about Molotov cocktails or ghetto tenements burning crisply in the flames of a red hot summer. There are easier ways to cure urban blight.

An unreported, go-go formula for ripping out the inner slum core of the big cities was developed quietly behind closed doors by a band of men long thought to be the least likely to unleash a deluge of new housing and open at least a million new jobs for Negroes right on their own streets.

Those men who devised the formula for the frontal attack on the inner city make up the rock-ribbed inner core of American labor -- the 18 leaders of the Building and Construction Trades Dept. (AFL-CIO). Most are dour men -- virtually labor's founding fathers. They did not rush to the mimeograph machines with philosophical paeans on poverty.

They simply met in a closed room in the Bal Harbour (Fla.) Hotel Americana on Feb. 13 and decided to attack the social crisis of 1968 as they did the military crisis of 1941.

In that salon with the construction trades' 18 chiefs were AFL-CIO president George Meany; Harvard's curmudgeon, John Dunlop, member of the Graduate School of Public Administration, a power in massive construction's labor - management circles; Lane Kirkland, the one-man inner secretariat of the AFL-CIO; and the labor leader who revels in anonymity, the electrical workers' Joe Keenan, adviser to presidents for decades on this front.

The crisscrossing dialogues had one motif -- the time had come. Let no one say that everyone was happy, for go-go meant ripping asunder old traditions, territories, and restricted membership rosters. Nonetheless, these political-industrial pachyderms decided to move. They did.

They appointed an administrative committee made up of the Carpenters' Maurice Hutcheson, the Laborers' Pete Fosco, the Plumbers' Peter Schoemann, the Electrical Brotherhood's Gordon Freeman, the Operating Engineers' Hunter Wharton and Building Trades Department president Neal Haggerty.

Collectively these men of another generation could stop all American industry dead. Collectively they can -- literally -- get up the manpower to move mountains or remove ghettos.

Their next move was making contact with the President's Committee on Urban Housing (the Kaiser Committee).

These influential men will soon be talking with the Kaiser group about ponderous matters -- construction in the "trillions."

As they see it, this means that America's biggest contractors will have to be moved in for the basic organization work. No small contractor can guarantee to tear 20 square blocks of grisly ghetto out of a Harlem, a Watts or a Chicago slum.

But no one of the giant contractors in the hundred billion dollar building and construction industry will move in without guarantees that he will not be stuck in some labor swamp dug for him by feuding local unions.

So it's safe to predict that the Department's new administrative committee will come to Kaiser's group with a formula which once worked; they'll offer a national agreement similar to the one which was developed and made public on July 24, 1941. At that time, the late Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, was Associate Director General of the Office of Production Management.

These United States, faced by world war, had to build in a hurry -- especially military training camps. So there was a tripartite agreement with contractors and government agencies such as the Army and Navy. The nation needed a crash construction program. They got it.

Practically the same man, or their immediate predecessors, agreed there would be industrial peace. Joe Keenan authored the agreement.

Now, almost 27 years later, there is a new war on the home front -- bitter and explosive. So Keenan and his colleagues have updated the proposals.

They are ready to agree to a no-strike pact. They will promise that the contractors and the government will not be caught in jurisdictional wars between unions.

They propose pre-construction conferences at which agreements will be hammered out on wages, fringes, uniform overtime, uniform shifts, predetermination of all possible rules and payments.

This is the antidote to the Molotov cocktail. This can be the roaring retort to extremists' cries of burn, baby, burn.

Give the building trades unions leaders credit for moving along, even if the road was tread by painful inches.

But neither they nor the public should overlook the clause in the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act -- the Model Cities law of 1966.

It says that there must be maximum opportunities for residents of the area in all phases of the programs which redevelop them. And there must be full opportunity for training.

Again, here, this translates into the hiring of Negroes -- not only of those who "qualify," but those, no matter how raw, who can possibly be turned into skilled and semiskilled workers at the generous building trades rates.

There will be outcries. There will be charges that the program will be controlled at the bottom by local unions and contractors.

So the administrative committee is recommending a network of local and regional review boards. These will pyramid up to a national review board.

Thus, with the money coming from the government, the management know-how from the biggest contractors of all, the skills provided by the old union craftsmen, and the ghetto kids taken off the street corners and taught to earn a day's pay, urban America can be remade.

Conservatory Vocal Quartet At Dexter Thursday

DEXTER -- Four Kansas City singers, the conservatory vocal quartet of the University of Missouri at Kansas City, will appear in concert Thursday at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The quartet is being presented by the Women's Council for County Improvement Stoddard county committee on the arts through the University of Missouri extension concert series.

In the mixed quartet are Eva Oliver, soprana, Virginia McClelland Ehwa, contralto, Edgar Nolte, tenor, and Robert C. Bird, bass. The quartet, a popular performing group in the West Missouri area, has been praised by the Kansas City Star critic for the unusual texture and blend of the four voices, which "spin out a kind of rich musical brocade."

In demand for lead roles in oratories and cantatas, Mrs. Ehwa also has made extensive radio and television appearances.

Miss Oliver, a native of Finland, studied voice with opera singer Hanna Granfelt in Helsinki and appeared in concert in several cities in Finland. She received an honor stipend for study in Munich, specializing in lieder and oratorio, and made radio appearances in Frankfurt and Munich before coming to America. She has appeared in Oklahoma City and the Kansas City area with notable success.

Nolte has appeared as guest soloist with the St. Louis Symphony, the Kansas City Philharmonic, the Springfield, Ill. Symphony, the Mid-America Quartet, the Reorganized Latter Day Saints Church presentation of "The Messiah," and with the Fred Waring television show in New York City.

Bird has directed opera with the New Orleans Opera Association, the Fort Worth Civic Opera, the Shreveport Opera, and the National Opera Company. He has sung numerous roles with these and other organizations.

The four singers are widely-known church soloists in Kansas City and rank high in the musical life of the community. Their musical selections for the concert will be a well-varied program consisting of songs of all faiths such as "Domine Jesu" and "O Come Everyone that Thirsteth"; Music from Opera, including the duets from La Boheme and Madame Butterfly; Songs of the People, featuring such folks songs as "Sourwood Mountain" and "Sweet Betsy from Pike" and Music from Broadway, including selections from "The Sound of Music," "West Side Story" and "The Music Man."

The committee reports there will be seats available for those purchasing tickets at the door.

P-TA Observes Fathers Night

Leonard Overby gave the invocation.

Bob Miller and Harold Vogel spoke. Miller discussed the proposed kindergarten and Vogel told about efforts made by the school to make the transition from elementary school to junior high school easier for sixth grade pupils.

Principal Jack Cothern announced that school will be dismissed March 14 and 15 for a teachers meeting.

Lynne Murchison Given Recognition

Lynne Murchison

JACKSON, Tenn. -- The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation has designated 1,124 college seniors at 309 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada as among the best future college teacher prospects on the continent.

Union University Senior Lynne Murchison of Sikeston, Mo., has been named to the honorable mention list for 1968-69.

Graduate school deans will receive from the foundation a list of the winners and honorable mention winners with the recommendation that all are "worthy of financial support in graduate school."

In being chosen for the list, Miss Murchison joins a group of 91 students from colleges in Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Tennessee. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Murchison, 422 Shady Lane, Sikeston.

Miss Murchison, named last fall to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, entered Union University on a competitive scholarship. She presently has an overall average of 2.74 out of a possible grade point of 3.0, holds a campus workship, is secretary of Alpha Chi honorary scholastic society, holds membership in Phi Alpha Theta and the Rutledge History Club, is president of Hypatia an honors organization of junior and senior women, is class speaker, works with the college annual, is a justice and court clerk for the Student Court, and holds an office in her social fraternity, Chi Omega.

Under Union's Honors Program she is now working on a paper under the supervision of Dr. H. B. Evans, visiting professor in Seventeenth Century English Literature. To be finished this semester, Miss Murchison's paper will be the result of extended reading in college and city libraries on the life of Milton.

After graduation Miss Murchison plans to do graduate work in English and hopes to teach English in college.

Conservatory Vocal Quartet At Dexter Thursday

DEXTER -- Four Kansas City singers, the conservatory vocal quartet of the University of Missouri at Kansas City, will appear in concert Thursday at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The quartet is being presented by the Women's Council for County Improvement Stoddard county committee on the arts through the University of Missouri extension concert series.

In the mixed quartet are Eva Oliver, soprana, Virginia McClelland Ehwa, contralto, Edgar Nolte, tenor, and Robert C. Bird, bass. The quartet, a popular performing group in the West Missouri area, has been praised by the Kansas City Star critic for the unusual texture and blend of the four voices, which "spin out a kind of rich musical brocade."

In demand for lead roles in oratories and cantatas, Mrs. Ehwa also has made extensive radio and television appearances.

Miss Oliver, a native of Finland, studied voice with opera singer Hanna Granfelt in Helsinki and appeared in concert in several cities in Finland. She received an honor stipend for study in Munich, specializing in lieder and oratorio, and made radio appearances in Frankfurt and Munich before coming to America. She has appeared in Oklahoma City and the Kansas City area with notable success.

Nolte has appeared as guest soloist with the St. Louis Symphony, the Kansas City Philharmonic, the Springfield, Ill. Symphony, the Mid-America Quartet, the Reorganized Latter Day Saints Church presentation of "The Messiah," and with the Fred Waring television show in New York City.

Bird has directed opera with the New Orleans Opera Association, the Fort Worth Civic Opera, the Shreveport Opera, and the National Opera Company. He has sung numerous roles with these and other organizations.

The four singers are widely-known church soloists in Kansas City and rank high in the musical life of the community. Their musical selections for the concert will be a well-varied program consisting of songs of all faiths such as "Domine Jesu" and "O Come Everyone that Thirsteth"; Music from Opera, including the duets from La Boheme and Madame Butterfly; Songs of the People, featuring such folks songs as "Sourwood Mountain" and "Sweet Betsy from Pike" and Music from Broadway, including selections from "The Sound of Music," "West Side Story" and "The Music Man."

The committee reports there will be seats available for those purchasing tickets at the door.

P-TA Observes Fathers Night

Leonard Overby gave the invocation.

Bob Miller and Harold Vogel spoke. Miller discussed the proposed kindergarten and Vogel told about efforts made by the school to make the transition from elementary school to junior high school easier for sixth grade pupils.

Principal Jack Cothern announced that school will be dismissed March 14 and 15 for a teachers meeting.

Jays Need Double Overtime To Overhaul Cape Central

POPLAR BLUFF -- Charleston and Kennett moved into semifinal round play of the class L regional basketball tournament last night where both will meet at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Gary Wadlington's Bluejays struggled through 35 minutes of play before taking down a fired up Cape Girardeau Central five in the second of two overtime periods, 76-70.

Kennett waltzed into the semifinals past Perryville behind a balanced scoring attack that included four players in double figures led by Mike Tweedy's 18 points, 72-51.

Play resumes Thursday night with semifinal round play. Finals are set for Friday night with the winner advancing into first round of state play at Cape Girardeau where it faces the winner of the Flat River regional Monday.

Cape Girardeau fought to a 13-11 first quarter lead. It held onto the lead until the final period when the Jays broke lose for 16 points while Cape was netting 11. It tied the game to send it into the double overtime.

Charleston, defending champion of the tournament and quarterfinalist in the state tournament, made its move late behind the scoring of Ruben Brown and John Clemons, who netted 25 and 20 points respectively.

Kennett rode the well balanced scoring of its team and good defense past Perryville, holding the Pirates' Jim Taylor and Willie Meier to 12 points each.

The Indians fired out into an 18-10 first quarter lead and ran into a 38-19 halftime edge before subbing freely in the final half of play.

Tomorrow night's action opens with the Poplar Bluff - Sikeston tilt at 7 p.m., followed by the Jay - Indian clash at 8:30 p.m.

Two of the nation's major automobile manufacturers have announced an agreement with the American Hot Rod Association to participate in the AHRA's Grand American Points Program on a contingency award basis, involving more than forty separate drag racing events throughout the 1968 season.

The two firms are the Chrysler Corporation, long a leader in automobile racing, and American Motors, the latest Detroit entry into the all-out world of racing.

Chrysler announced that they will award $250 cash to the winner of the Super Stock Eliminator at all AHRA divisional points races, provided the car is a Chrysler product.

American Motors will award $150 to the winner, and $75 to the runnerup in each of eleven major eleminator brackets at all AHRA divisional points races, provided the car is an American Motors product in the Stock classes, and is either an AM car or powered by an AM engine in the hot car classes.

Eliminator brackets that will be eligible for the American Motors awards will be Top Fuel, Top Gas, Competition, Street, Junior Fuel, FX-Fuel, FX-Gas, Super Stock, Top Stock, Middle Stock and Little Stock.

Five points races will be held in each of eight geographical divisions across the United States under the AHRA system, and a Divisional Points Championship will also be held for each of the eight sections. The entire 1968 points race will be capped on October 4, 5, and 6 when Kansas City International Raceway in Kansas City, Missouri hosts the AHRA World Points Championships.

Drag racers will be eligible for the Chrysler and American Motors awards in each of the afore-named races, which constitutes one of the largest contingency award programs ever undertaken by the Detroit manufacturers.

As the thrilling sport of drag racing grows by veritable leaps and bounds, more and more manufacturers (non-automotive types, included) are taking a material interest in the sport in the form of contingency awards, sponsorship of trophies, special awards, etc.

Besides participating in the points program, Chrysler and American Motors are both offering lucrative awards at all major AHRA events throughout the season, along with most other major automobile manufacturers, making 1968 already the biggest contingency awards year ever for drag racing and the American Hot Rod Association.

American Hot Rod Association officials are receiving entries at a record - setting clip for the AHRA Spring National drag racing championships, set for June 7, 8 and 9 at Bristol International Raceway, Bristol, Tenn.

Despite the fact that the race is more than three months away, the national offices of the AHRA have been besieged with an amazingly large number of pre-entries, as well as hundreds of orders for tickets for the three-day event.

If pre-entries already received are any indication, literally every major drag racing star in the sport will be competing in the Spring Nationals. Entries are being received from all over the country, and the list of names is beginning to take on the appearance of a "Who's Who" book.

No finer facilities exist for a major race the caliber of the AHRA Spring Nationals than those boasted by Bristol International Speedway. Located amidst the lush greenery of the beautiful Tennessee - Virginia hills, the Bristol complex has been called by many the most beautiful and most complete drag racing facility anywhere. For spectators and participants alike, Bristol has everything it takes. . .and more.

Ticket and pre-entry information for the Spring Nationals is available by writing American Hot Rod Association, 1820 West 91st Place, Kansas City, Missouri 64114, or calling (816) 363-6444.

Do or Die

If there ever were must games for high school basketball teams . . . it's got to be tonight's as three Southeast Missouri entries into the state tournament have just tonight's games between them and a finish in the top of their class.

Tonight's action centers around Cape Girardeau's Houck field house, where the three see action in their respective class with Howardville, the class S entry opening the night's activity at 7 p.m. against a balanced team from St. George high school of Hermann. This will be followed by the match between a pair of powerful class M schools in Matthews and Dexter at 8:30 p.m.

St. George, coached by Dennis Kruse, has ran up a 28 and 3 record with a winning streak of 14 games and 21 out of its last 22. Led by 6-3 junior forward Dave Hackmann with a 21.5 scoring average, St. George is balanced in both size and scoring with four of its starting men tipping over six foot tall and one five feet, nine inches tall.

Howardville will have no trouble matching the height problem with its twins, 6-7 Lewis Little and 6-7 Ruben Marsh, under the basket but might have trouble against the sticky defense of St. George.

The Hawks under coach William Jackson have advanced as far as any team from their school in the past. Tonight's St. George game is the only obstacle between them and a state finish.

Matthews, the small run and shoot club with a 31-1 record, is in for its biggest game of the season.

A victory by the Pirates would put them into the semifinals at Columbia, where they will meet the winner of the Hermann-Warenton clash at 7 p.m. Friday.

Hermann is the state favorite to capture the honor.

Dexter is strong fundamentally and is well coached by Jim Hall, who in his reign at Dexter has yet to have a losing season.

Headed by 6-3 Jeff Cox with a 20.8 scoring average, the Bearcats play good defense and block out well on the rebounding, where the Pirates had trouble with the Cats in their earlier meeting, having to come from behind to clip them.

Matthews is sparked by the leadership of its guards, Leonard Bishop and Amon Ring, and is topped in the rebounding department by sophomore sensation Kara Nunn, the six foot forward of the Pirates.

The Pirates have been improving in every game. The Bearcats have been doing the same and are known as a tough tournament team.

Rebounding and defense will tell tonight's story in both contests.

Two of the nation's major automobile manufacturers have announced an agreement with the American Hot Rod Association to participate in the AHRA's Grand American Points Program on a contingency award basis, involving more than forty separate drag racing events throughout the 1968 season.

The two firms are the Chrysler Corporation, long a leader in automobile racing, and American Motors, the latest Detroit entry into the all-out world of racing.

Chrysler announced that they will award $250 cash to the winner of the Super Stock Eliminator at all AHRA divisional points races, provided the car is a Chrysler product.

American Motors will award $150 to the winner, and $75 to the runnerup in each of eleven major eleminator brackets at all AHRA divisional points races, provided the car is an American Motors product in the Stock classes, and is either an AM car or powered by an AM engine in the hot car classes.

Eliminator brackets that will be eligible for the American Motors awards will be Top Fuel, Top Gas, Competition, Street, Junior Fuel, FX-Fuel, FX-Gas, Super Stock, Top Stock, Middle Stock and Little Stock.

Five points races will be held in each of eight geographical divisions across the United States under the AHRA system, and a Divisional Points Championship will also be held for each of the eight sections. The entire 1968 points race will be capped on October 4, 5, and 6 when Kansas City International Raceway in Kansas City, Missouri hosts the AHRA World Points Championships.

Drag racers will be eligible for the Chrysler and American Motors awards in each of the afore-named races, which constitutes one of the largest contingency award programs ever undertaken by the Detroit manufacturers.

As the thrilling sport of drag racing grows by veritable leaps and bounds, more and more manufacturers (non-automotive types, included) are taking a material interest in the sport in the form of contingency awards, sponsorship of trophies, special awards, etc.

Besides participating in the points program, Chrysler and American Motors are both offering lucrative awards at all major AHRA events throughout the season, along with most other major automobile manufacturers, making 1968 already the biggest contingency awards year ever for drag racing and the American Hot Rod Association.

American Hot Rod Association officials are receiving entries at a record - setting clip for the AHRA Spring National drag racing championships, set for June 7, 8 and 9 at Bristol International Raceway, Bristol, Tenn.

Despite the fact that the race is more than three months away, the national offices of the AHRA have been besieged with an amazingly large number of pre-entries, as well as hundreds of orders for tickets for the three-day event.

If pre-entries already received are any indication, literally every major drag racing star in the sport will be competing in the Spring Nationals. Entries are being received from all over the country, and the list of names is beginning to take on the appearance of a "Who's Who" book.

No finer facilities exist for a major race the caliber of the AHRA Spring Nationals than those boasted by Bristol International Speedway. Located amidst the lush greenery of the beautiful Tennessee - Virginia hills, the Bristol complex has been called by many the most beautiful and most complete drag racing facility anywhere. For spectators and participants alike, Bristol has everything it takes. . .and more.

Ticket and pre-entry information for the Spring Nationals is available by writing American Hot Rod Association, 1820 West 91st Place, Kansas City, Missouri 64114, or calling (816) 363-6444.

Do or Die

If there ever were must games for high school basketball teams . . . it's got to be tonight's as three Southeast Missouri entries into the state tournament have just tonight's games between them and a finish in the top of their class.

Tonight's action centers around Cape Girardeau's Houck field house, where the three see action in their respective class with Howardville, the class S entry opening the night's activity at 7 p.m. against a balanced team from St. George high school of Hermann. This will be followed by the match between a pair of powerful class M schools in Matthews and Dexter at 8:30 p.m.

The only team of the four to see action at Cape that are unknown to area fans is St. George, winner of its own regional and recent winner over the Smithton regional winner.

St. George, coached by Dennis Kruse, has ran up a 28 and 3 record with a winning streak of 14 games and 21 out of its last 22. Led by 6-3 junior forward Dave Hackmann with a 21.5 scoring average, St. George is balanced in both size and scoring with four of its starting men tipping over six foot tall and one five feet, nine inches tall.

Howardville will have no trouble matching the height problem with its twins, 6-7 Lewis Little and 6-7 Ruben Marsh, under the basket but might have trouble against the sticky defense of St. George.

The Hawks under coach William Jackson have advanced as far as any team from their school in the past. Tonight's St. George game is the only obstacle between them and a state finish.

Matthews, the small run and shoot club with a 31-1 record, is in for its biggest game of the season.

A victory by the Pirates would put them into the semifinals at Columbia, where they will meet the winner of the Hermann-Warrenton clash at 7 p.m. Friday.

Hermann is the state favorite to capture the honor.

Dexter is strong fundamentally and is well coached by Jim Hall, who in his reign at Dexter has yet to have a losing season.

Headed by 6-3 Jeff Cox with a 20.8 scoring average, the Bearcats play good defense and block out well on the rebounding, where the Pirates had trouble with the Cats in their earlier meeting, having to come from behind to clip them.

Matthews is sparked by the leadership of its guards, Leonard Bishop and Amon Ring, and is topped in the rebounding department by sophomore sensation Kara Nunn, the six foot forward of the Pirates.

The Pirates have been improving in every game. The Bearcats have been doing the same and are known as a tough tournament team.

Rebounding and defense will tell tonight's story in both contests.

Kennett Will Get Mental Health Center

KENNETT - If the Missouri division of mental diseases approved the plans three of the state's Bootheel counties will get a $400,000 mental disease health center.

"I expect formal approval in about 30 days," James Fox, Kennett Memorial Hospital administrator, said Tuesday. The center would be located at the Kennett hospital and would be built in conjunction with a 1.7-million-dollar construction program already approved.

The health center would be the third established in Missouri.

HONOLULU (AP)—The Honolulu City Council has decided that supermarkets are necessary, but agreed to let a small country store live at least a few more years as a "service to the community."

The councilmen recently approved commercial zoning for a 3.25-acre shopping center near the store at Laie, a community 34 miles north of Honolulu.

The developers of the shopping center, Zion Securities, which is owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, also owns the land on which the old plantation store sits. The group recently announced plans to level the store site to make way for residential development.

But the announcement quickly brought protests from Samoans living in the area. They said Charles K. Goo, who has been running the store there for the past 12 years, gives them credit and lends them money when they need it.

As one Samoan told the council, "A giant supermarket will not do that."

ARMED FORCES

FT. HAUCHUCA, ARIZ. (AHTNC) - Army Private Louis Franklin Jr., 20, son of Mrs. Annie M. Franklin, Route 1, East Prairie, Mo., completed a cooking course Feb. 23 at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

During the eight-week course, he was trained in meat cutting plus cake and pastry baking. He also learned how to prepare and serve food in Army mess halls and in the field.

TANZANIA TRIES COCOA

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — Cocoa, the chief crop in Ghana and Nigeria, has recently been introduced in Tanzania, and an expert estimates that the East African Republic could be producing 1,000 tons by 1977.

The crop is expected to supplement the well-established sisal, coffee, cotton and cashew nuts industries, as well as the tea industry.

THIEVES USED MAYOR'S TRUCK

LINCOLN, Ill. (AP) Thieves who made off with four color television sets at a local shop used the truck of Mayor Edward Malerich to haul off their loot. The truck, used in the mayor's dry cleaning business, was stolen from in front of his home where it was parked.

Later the truck was found near an abandoned house in the country. Inside the house were the stolen television sets.

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) —New and better answers are being found for the problem connected with massive illness. Weigh the case of Nila, a 5-by-14 foot hippopotamus at Jungleland here immobilized by a bout with pneumonia.

"Keep the patient warm and well-rested," prescribed veterinarians. But the invalid refused to remain indoors. So a gas-fired, infra-red heater was installed to warm the hippo's chilly, open-air enclosure.

Population At Cape Set At 32,800

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- School enumeration, utilities connections and other factors indicate Cape Girardeau's present population stands at 32,800 and city and Chamber of Commerce officials are predicting a 1970 census figure of near 35,000 people.

The 1960 census figure was 24,947.

Each index of growth shows a different figure, but school enumeration, which gives a head count of those in the 6-19 age brackets, is one reliable indicator. Using this as a factor, the population figure comes to 31,995.

INSTALLMENT PLAN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Ricardo Cagnacci, a fitter and turner, was paying off a damages claim at the rate of $7 a month.

The damages were awarded to Miss Joan Barbara Card in 1964 for injuries she received in an accident while a passenger in a car driven by Cagnacci.

Now Acting Supreme Court Judge C.S. Margo has ordered Cagnacci, who has a net monthly income of $284, to increase his monthly installments fourfold.

At this rate the $18,200 damages will be paid off in 54 years instead of 216 years.

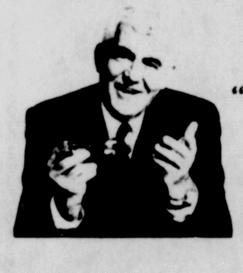
How much do you know about the stock market?
Test yourself.



"I'm a stock broker. Part of my business is answering questions. Try your hand at these four. It could make your investment life easier."

QUESTION 1. One advantage of owning stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange is the large number of shares traded every day. What do you suppose is the average daily volume on the Exchange? ☐ 4,500,000 shares. ☐ 6,000,000 shares. ☐ 10,000,000 shares.

ANSWER. More than 10,000,000 shares a day last year. This supply and demand means you can usually find a buyer or seller in a matter of minutes, at a price close to the last sale. This is one reason so many people own listed stocks.

QUESTION 2. Try to name five services member firms of the Exchange will be glad to provide.

ANSWER. One service is helping you decide how much to invest after normal expenses and emergencies are provided for.

A second service is discussing goals—perhaps a second income from dividends or growth in the value of your stock to help you and your family have a brighter future, or possibly a good stable return that bonds might give you.

A third service is to provide facts and give opinions to help you reach a seasoned judgment.

Fourth, ask him to clarify investment terms, to explain how an order is executed, the risks in any investment and why stock prices fluctuate.

A fifth service is to supply statements showing your transactions, an easy record for tax purposes.

QUESTION 3. What's the average commission investors pay? ☐ 1% of the value of the stock ☐ 2% ☐ 4%.

ANSWER. The average for transactions on the Exchange is about 1%. It ranges from less than 1% on larger purchases to about 6% on an investment of $100. This is one of the smallest commissions for the transfer of any kind of property.

QUESTION 4. Member firms of the Exchange may be found ☐ mainly in large financial centers; ☐ throughout the U.S. and abroad; ☐ only on Wall Street.

ANSWER. There are more than 3,700 member firm offices in the U.S. and others abroad. Thanks to modern communications, Wall Street is right at your elbow. Your broker speeds your order to the Exchange floor. Prices are flashed from the floor as far as Europe and Hawaii, normally within a minute. For the millions who own listed stocks, it's a small world.

But believers must also face up to the dangers of Lent. How often we have been swayed to a mood of religious reverie on the road from Ash Wednesday to Easter! Sadly and frighteningly, the inward renewal of the spirit has frequently been followed by a rejection of the world and a blurred vision of the humanity beyond the chapel steps.

Christ does not call us to lift up His name by putting down His people! And His people are those in whom God has given life and breath, those who love Him, those who reject Him and those who want to hear more.

Kennett Will Get Mental Health Center

KENNETT - If the Missouri division of mental diseases approved the plans three of the state's Bootheel counties will get a $400,000 mental disease health center.

"I expect formal approval in about 30 days," James Fox, Kennett Memorial Hospital administrator, said Tuesday. The center would be located at the Kennett hospital and would be built in conjunction with a 1.7-million-dollar construction program already approved.

The health center would be the third established in Missouri.

HONOLULU (AP)—The Honolulu City Council has decided that supermarkets are necessary, but agreed to let a small country store live at least a few more years as a "service to the community."

The councilmen recently approved commercial zoning for a 3.25-acre shopping center near the store at Laie, a community 34 miles north of Honolulu.

The developers of the shopping center, Zion Securities, which is owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, also owns the land on which the old plantation store sits. The group recently announced plans to level the store site to make way for residential development.

But the announcement quickly brought protests from Samoans living in the area. They said Charles K. Goo, who has been running the store there for the past 12 years, gives them credit and lends them money when they need it.

As one Samoan told the council, "A giant supermarket will not do that."

ARMED FORCES

FT. HAUCHUCA, ARIZ. (AHTNC) - Army Private Louis Franklin Jr., 20, son of Mrs. Annie M. Franklin, Route 1, East Prairie, Mo., completed a cooking course Feb. 23 at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

During the eight-week course, he was trained in meat cutting plus cake and pastry baking. He also learned how to prepare and serve food in Army mess halls and in the field.

TANZANIA TRIES COCOA

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — Cocoa, the chief crop in Ghana and Nigeria, has recently been introduced in Tanzania, and an expert estimates that the East African Republic could be producing 1,000 tons by 1977.

The crop is expected to supplement the well-established sisal, coffee, cotton and cashew nuts industries, as well as the tea industry.

Jack Hogan Will Be on Bosses Panel

Jack Hogan

Jack Hogan, executive vice president of the Security National Bank will be one of a panel of four bosses at the office workers seminar March 9 at the Holiday Inn. Fielding Potashnick is one of them. The names of the other two haven't been announced.

Hogan is a native of Newport, Ark. He has lived in Sikeston three and one half years. He was associated with the National Bank of Commerce in Memphis and the First National Bank in West Memphis, Ark. before coming to Sikeston.

THIEVES USED MAYOR'S TRUCK

LINCOLN, Ill. (AP) Thieves who made off with four color television sets at a local shop used the truck of Mayor Edward Malerich to haul off their loot. The truck, used in the mayor's dry cleaning business, was stolen from in front of his home where it was parked.

Later the truck was found near an abandoned house in the country. Inside the house were the stolen television sets.

SAY AAAH

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) —New and better answers are being found for the problem connected with massive illness. Weigh the case of Nila, a 5-by-14 foot hippopotamus at Jungleland here immobilized by a bout with pneumonia.

"Keep the patient warm and well-rested," prescribed veterinarians. But the invalid refused to remain indoors. So a gas-fired, infra-red heater was installed to warm the hippo's chilly, open-air enclosure.

Population At Cape Set At 32,800

CAPE GIRARDEAU - School enumeration, utilities connections and other factors indicate Cape Girardeau's present population stands at 32,800 and city and Chamber of Commerce officials are predicting a 1970 census figure of near 35,000 people.

The 1960 census figure was 24,947.

Each index of growth shows a different figure, but school enumeration, which gives a head count of those in the 6-19 age brackets, is one reliable indicator. Using this as a factor, the population figure comes to 31,995.

INSTALLMENT PLAN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Ricardo Cagnacci, a fitter and turner, was paying off a damages claim at the rate of $7 a month.

The damages were awarded to Miss Joan Barbara Card in 1964 for injuries she received in an accident while a passenger in a car driven by Cagnacci.

Now Acting Supreme Court Judge C.S. Margo has ordered Cagnacci, who has a net monthly income of $284, to increase his monthly installments fourfold.

At this rate the $18,200 damages will be paid off in 54 years instead of 216 years.

Dexter Farmer To Tour Europe

DEXTER, MO., - Reuben Howell, Dexter farmer, has been selected to a delegation of rural people who will tour Europe this summer, under the Missouri agriculture leaders goodwill people-to-people program. The selection was made by the agriculture department at Jefferson City.

How much do you know about the stock market?
Test yourself.

"I'm a stock broker. Part of my business is answering questions. Try your hand at these four. It could make your investment life easier."

QUESTION 1. One advantage of owning stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange is the large number of shares traded every day. What do you suppose is the average daily volume on the Exchange? ☐ 4,500,000 shares. ☐ 6,000,000 shares. ☐ 10,000,000 shares.

ANSWER. More than 10,000,000 shares a day last year. This supply and demand means you can usually find a buyer or seller in a matter of minutes, at a price close to the last sale. This is one reason so many people own listed stocks.

QUESTION 2. Try to name five services member firms of the Exchange will be glad to provide.

ANSWER. One service is helping you decide how much to invest after normal expenses and emergencies are provided for.

A second service is discussing goals—perhaps a second income from dividends or growth in the value of your stock to help you and your family have a brighter future, or possibly a good stable return that bonds might give you.

A third service is to provide facts and give opinions to help you reach a seasoned judgment.

Fourth, ask him to clarify investment terms, to explain how an order is executed, the risks in any investment and why stock prices fluctuate.

A fifth service is to supply statements showing your transactions, an easy record for tax purposes.

QUESTION 3. What's the average commission investors pay? ☐ 1% of the value of the stock ☐ 2% ☐ 4%.

ANSWER. The average for transactions on the Exchange is about 1%. It ranges from less than 1% on larger purchases to about 6% on an investment of $100. This is one of the smallest commissions for the transfer of any kind of property.

QUESTION 4. Member firms of the Exchange may be found ☐ mainly in large financial centers; ☐ throughout the U.S. and abroad; ☐ only on Wall Street.

ANSWER. There are more than 3,700 member firm offices in the U.S. and others abroad. Thanks to modern communications, Wall Street is right at your elbow. Your broker speeds your order to the Exchange floor. Prices are flashed from the floor as far as Europe and Hawaii, normally within a minute. For the millions who own listed stocks, it's a small world.

Brother Held Responsible For Slaying

POPLAR BLUFF -- The coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Shirl Winberry returned with a verdict last night that he came to his death by gunshot wound and we the jury feel that Jesse Winberry is responsible and should be held for further trial," Coroner Wallace N. Fitch said.

Winberry, who was arraigned Feb. 21 in magistrate court, appeared in circuit court where he was appointed an attorney and bond was set at $10,000.

Winberry, 33, of route two, is charged with second degree murder in connection with the death of his brother, Shirl Winberry, 27, a self-employed mechanic and resident of route two, who was pronounced dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital Feb. 20. The hospital reported that Winberry was struck in the neck by a .22 caliber bullet which lodged in the spinal column.

Members of the coroner's jury at the inquest which was held at the Courthouse were D. C. Holloway, Glenn Fuller, Donald Kalkbrenner, B. W. Williamson, Jeff Gulley and W. C. Smith.

FANCY DESCRIPTION

LARAMIE, Wyo (AP) Edwin Eye, 35, of Mills, Wyo., forfeited a $25 bond in Laramie municipal court when he failed to appear on a charge of "propelling a missile toward a person and a building."

He had been arrested for throwing snowballs.

One Candidate Files for Office At New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Offices to be filled in the county election are assessor, sheriff, coroner, surveyor, county judges of 1st and 2nd districts, prosecuting attorney, representative and committeeman and committeewoman from 11 townships.

Only one candidate has filed, Greg Sandlin of Lilbourn has filed against the incumbent assessor, Preston Utterback.

Deadline for filing is April 30.

Two offices are to be filled in the county school board election, which will be April 2. Terms of A. C. Riley of the 1st district and Charles Pikey Jr. of the 2nd district will expire.

No candidates have filed. Deadline for filing is 30 days prior to the date of election.

Charges Dropped Against Three

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Charges of burglary in the second degree and stealing against three men were dismissed when a witness summoned by the prosecution failed to appear in magistrate court.

The trio, Bill Francisco, Bunt Burger and Hobart Bryant, were charged with stealing tires from Hoyt Hester's Save on Gas Company at Holland Jan. 23.

They had been held in lieu of $7,500 bond since Feb. 7 until bond was lowered to $2,000 on Feb. 21 by the court.

The witness, Ralph Woody, had pleaded guilty to receiving stolen property, in connection with the same theft, in circuit court Tuesday. He was sentenced to ten years in the Department of Correction and granted parole without supervision.

He was issued a subpona by Prosecuting Attorney Joe Taylor to appear to testify against the three men.

Francisco, Burgess and Bryant appeared in Magistrate Court Friday for preliminary hearing and when Woody failed to appear court was delayed for an hour while officers attempted to find him. He was not located.

A motion by the prosecutor for continuance of the case was denied by Judge R. W. Hawkins and the charges against the men were dismissed.

Abandoned Auto Ordinance Proposed

CAIRO - The city council has placed on first reading an ordinance designed to give the city authority to rid streets and private property of abandoned and inoperable automobiles.

The ordinance, introduced by Commissioner Carl Meisenheimer, provides penalties and fines for failure of vehicle owners to comply with the new law and gives the city authority to remove the vehicles from the streets and private property.

Meisenheimer said he expected the ordinance to be passed at the next council meeting and to become effective late next month.

India Reluctant To Accept Rann of Kutch Judgment

NEW DELHI, India (AP) -- Parliament rejected 203-70 today a Communist no-confidence motion based on India's decision to accept an international court ruling in the dispute with Pakistan over the Rann of Kutch.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told Parliament: "I cannot say I am satisfied with the award. The fact we got only 90 per cent should not color our judgment as to where our duties lie."

Pakistan, which had claimed 3,500 square miles of the desolate area on the Arabian Sea, was awarded 300 square miles. Both nations believe oil may be found in the wasteland.

Brother Held Responsible For Slaying

POPLAR BLUFF -- The coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Shirl Winberry returned with a verdict last night that he came to his death by gunshot wound and we the jury feel that Jesse Winberry is responsible and should be held for further trial," Coroner Wallace N. Fitch said.

Winberry, who was arraigned Feb. 21 in magistrate court, appeared in circuit court where he was appointed an attorney and bond was set at $10,000.

Winberry, 33, of route two, is charged with second degree murder in connection with the death of his brother, Shirl Winberry, 27, a self-employed mechanic and resident of route two, who was pronounced dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital Feb. 20. The hospital reported that Winberry was struck in the neck by a .22 caliber bullet which lodged in the spinal column.

One Candidate Files for Office At New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Offices to be filled in the county election are assessor, sheriff, coroner, surveyor, county judges of 1st and 2nd districts, prosecuting attorney, representative and committeeman and committeewoman from 11 townships.

Only one candidate has filed, Greg Sandlin of Lilbourn has filed against the incumbent assessor, Preston Utterback.

Deadline for filing is April 30. Two offices are to be filled in the county school board election, which will be April 2. Terms of A. C. Riley of the 1st district and Charles Pikey Jr. of the 2nd district will expire.

No candidates have filed. Deadline for filing is 30 days prior to the date of election.

Charges Dropped Against Three

CARUTHERSVILLE - Charges of burglary in the second degree and stealing against three men were dismissed when a witness summoned by the prosecution failed to appear in magistrate court.

The trio, Bill Francisco, Bust burger and Hobart Berryman, were charged with stealing tires from Hoyt Hester's Save on Gas Company at Holland Jan. 23.

They had been held in lieu of $7,500 bond since Feb. 7 until bond was lowered to $2,000 on Feb. 21 by the court.

The witness, Ralph Woody, had pleaded guilty to receiving stolen property, in connection with the same theft, in circuit court Tuesday. He was sentenced to ten years in the Department of Correction and granted parole without supervision.

He was issued a subpoena by Prosecuting Attorney Joe Taylor to appear to testify against the three men.

Francisco, Burgess and Bryant appeared in Magistrate Court Friday for preliminary hearing and when Woody failed to appear, court was delayed for an hour while officers attempted to find him. He was not located.

A motion by the prosecutor for continuance of the case was denied by Judge R. W. Hawkins and the charges against the men were dismissed.

Abandoned Auto Ordinance Proposed

CAIRO - The city council has placed on first reading an ordinance designed to give the city authority to rid streets and private property of abandoned and inoperable automobiles.

The ordinance, introduced by Commissioner Carl Meisenheimer, provides penalties and fines for failure of vehicle owners to comply with the new law and gives the city authority to remove the vehicles from the streets and private property.

Meisenheimer said he expected the ordinance to be passed at the next council meeting and to become effective late next month.

India Reluctant To Accept Rann of Kutch Judgment

NEW DELHI, India (AP) -- Parliament rejected 205-70 today a no-confidence motion based on India's decision to accept an international court ruling in the dispute with Pakistan over the Rann of Kutch.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told Parliament: "I cannot say I am satisfied with the award. The fact we got only 90 per cent should not color our judgment as to where our duties lie."

Pakistan, which had claimed 3,500 square miles of the desolate area on the Arabian Sea, was awarded 300 square miles. Both nations believe oil may be found in the wasteland.

Wheeler Confers With Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson today got a report from Gen. Earle G. Wheeler on "the problems we face" in the Vietnam war, the White House said.

But newsmen's questions as to whether additional troops were requested for the war . effort went unanswered.

White House press secretary George Christian would not say whether the matter of possible troop increases was discussed.

Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, returned early today after a three-day inspection trip to Southeast Asia, amid widespread speculation that more combat troops and possibly a reserve call-up would be required for Vietnam.

Top military and civilian war planners sat in on the White House session as Wheeler gave what Christian termed a "balanced, factual picture of his impressions of the situation at the present time."

In addition to the President the group included Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, McNamara's successor, Clark M. Clifford, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul H. Nitze, among others.

A full-scale Cabinet meeting, described in advance as a regular session, was set for later in

There was no indication the Wheeler - Johnson conference would produce any immediate announcement that more fighting men will be sent to Vietnam. Johnson aides continued to insist, as recently as Tuesday night, that no formal request for reinforcements had been presented to the President.

However, Johnson said last week more men will be dispatched if needed. And Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. Commander in Vietnam, told The Associated Press that "with additional troops, we could more effectively deny the enemy his objective, capitalize on his recent defeats to a greater degree in both time and place, and clearly demonstrate to Hanoi our firm determination to prevent him from taking over any part of South Vietnam."

Johnson returned to the capital after a six-day stay at his Texas ranch, where he got a good bit of sun and considerable relaxation. He seemed in an energetic, buoyant mood on his return.

Two Education Bills Gain Final Passage

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House took up Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' major education recommendations today and sent two of them to his desk.

Approved 152-0 was a bill to boost school foundation funds by $10 million, most of that in flat grants. A 133-17 vote was given to a bill allocating $600,000 in state funds guaranteeing up to $6 million in college student loans.

Majority Democrats defeated a Republican attempt to add another $2.6 million to the school aid bill.

College and vocational - technical undergraduates could borrow up to $1,000 a year from Missouri lending institutions under the loan bill. The state would guarantee repayment and the federal government would pay all the 6 per cent interest while the student is in school and half of it after he is graduated.

There were some objections to the bill on grounds it pledges state credit for individuals. Opponents said that is a violation of the constitution.

The governor's recommended state public defender plan was also on the calendar, but house leaders said it probably would not be debated until Monday.

The Senate - passed bill came out of the House Judiciary Committee Tuesday with numerous changes.

Basically the plan would set up a public defender in all judicial circuits over 65,000 and in Cole County to handle the cases of indigent defendants.

The defenders would be appointed by a bipartisan commission and have to spend full time at their jobs.

But under a House committee change, assistant defenders could practice law on the side.

Circuit judges could continue to appoint lawyers to defend indigents in the smaller circuits and elsewhere if needed.

Passed and sent back to the Senate with House changes were three bills designed to raise money for additional police protection in St. Louis County.

One would set up a county-wide motor vehicle tax if the voters approved and another a 5 per cent gross receipts tax on public utilities in unincorporated areas, also with voter approval.

The third would levy a county-wide tax of 5 cents a package on cigarettes. The Senate version would have returned 70 per cent of the proceeds to municipalities which now levy a tax and use the other 30 per cent in unincorporated areas.

Total revenue from the three bills would be almost $10 million a year.

Meanwhile, Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, Senate Apportionment Committee chairman, set a hearing for next Monday on the House version of congressional redistricting. Avery has a bill of his own pending in the Senate.

Blackwell Pulls Bold Ouster Move

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The talk of the Legislature today was the bold move of Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D - Hillsboro, in ousting an "Old Guard" Accounts Committee and setting up one of his own.

Blackwell is temporary President Pro Tem during the illness of Sen. John W. Joynt, D-St. Louis, who is not expected back for more than a week.

Blackwell replaced veteran Sen. Michael Kinney, D - St. Louis, who has been chairman of the Senate housekeeping committee for years, with young Sen. John J. Johnson, D-Affton, former St. Louis County Democratic chairman.

One of those ousted was Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, who called the move unprecedented. Another was Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, who agreed with Avery.

One of the questions raised immediately was whether Blackwell, if he could change the complexion of one committee, could do the same with other committees.

All rule 10 of the Senate says if that "all committees shall be appointed by the President Pro Tem of the Senate unless otherwise ordered." It says nothing about discharging and replacing committees.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown left today to accompany the body to Wellsville.

CHECK HEADLIGHTS

AKRON, Ohio (AP) How often do you check the lights on your car to make sure they are clean during the winter months? Tire test drivers at The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company say that when streets are wet or slush-filled, lights are rapidly coated with ice and dirt, making it difficult to see and be seen.

The state would guarantee repayment and the federal government would pay all the 6 per cent interest while the student is in school and half of it after he is graduated.

There were some objections to the bill on grounds it pledges state credit for individuals. Opponents said that is a violation of the constitution.

The governor's recommended state public defender plan was also on the calendar, but house leaders said it probably would not be debated until Monday.

The Senate - passed bill came out of the House Judiciary Committee Tuesday with numerous changes.

Basically the plan would set up a public defender in all judicial circuits over 65,000 and in Cole County to handle the cases of indigent defendants.

The defenders would be appointed by a bipartisan commission and have to spend full time at their jobs.

But under a House committee change, assistant defenders could practice law on the side.

Circuit judges could continue to appoint lawyers to defend indigents in the smaller circuits and elsewhere if needed.

Passed and sent back to the Senate with House changes were three bills designed to raise money for additional police protection in St. Louis County.

One would set up a county-wide motor vehicle tax if the voters approved and another a 5 per cent gross receipts tax on public utilities in unincorporated areas, also with voter approval.

The third would levy a county-wide tax of 5 cents a package on cigarettes. The Senate version would have returned 70 per cent of the proceeds to municipalities which now levy a tax and use the other 30 per cent in unincorporated areas.

Total revenue from the three bills would be almost $10 million a year.

Meanwhile, Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, Senate Apportionment Committee chairman, set a hearing for next Monday on the House version of congressional redistricting. Avery has a bill of his own pending in the Senate.

Blackwell Pulls Bold Ouster Move

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The talk of the Legislature today was the bold move of Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D - Hillsboro, in ousting an "Old Guard" Accounts Committee and setting up one of his own.

Blackwell is temporary President Pro Tem during the illness of Sen. John W. Joynt, D-St. Louis, who is not expected back for more than a week.

Blackwell replaced veteran Sen. Michael Kinney, D - St. Louis, who has been chairman of the Senate housekeeping committee for years, with young Sen. John J. Johnson, D-Affton, former St. Louis County Democratic chairman.

One of those ousted was Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, who called the move unprecedented. Another was Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, who agreed with Avery.

One of the questions raised immediately was whether Blackwell, if he could change the complexion of one committee, could do the same with other committees.

All rule 10 of the Senate says if that "all committees shall be appointed by the President Pro Tem of the Senate unless otherwise ordered." It says nothing about discharging and replacing committees.

Friday Rites For Marine

Services for Marine Pfc. Byron Lea Brown, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Brown, 530 Coleman, will be held Friday at 11 a.m. in Wellsville, with the Rev. David Fullbright, pastor of Christian church, and the Rev. Fr. Stephen Lamping, officiating.

The body will arrive in St. Louis tonight at 10 p.m., and be sent to Wellsville.

He was killed in Hue Vietnam Feb. 9, by enemy fire.

Burial will be in IOOF Memorial Gardens, Sullivan, with military rites.

CHECK HEADLIGHTS

AKRON, Ohio (AP) How often do you check the lights on your car to make sure they are clean during the winter months? Tire test drivers at The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company say that when streets are wet or slush-filled, lights are rapidly coated with ice and dirt, making it difficult to see and be seen.

Lenten Season Begins Today

The 40 days of prayer and meditation— with penitence and fasting for many— ends on Easter Sunday.

Ashes are being distributed today in Roman Catholic and some other churches, and special services are being held.

Some good cooks who use wooden paddles for making butter balls find the paddles work well when they are soaked in ice water long enough to chill them thoroughly before they are used.

Services Held for Lutheran Official

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Funeral services were held today for Dr. John W. Behnken, former president of the Lutheran church - Missouri Synod. Dr. Behnken died Friday in a Hollywood, Fla., hospital. He was 83.

Religious services were held at Holy Cross Lutheran Church. Burial was in Concordia Cemetery.

IN MEMORIUM

In loving memory of Russell E. Long's Birthday Feb. 28th, who was killed in a car accident on Nov. 21, 1963.

That our thoughts are not of you, here is the reason why -
You are deep down in our hearts, where you will always stay,
And so it is we think of you, throughout each night and day.
The happy moments that we know, in years now said and done
Each kiss and heavenly embrace, our walks in fields of clover
Are with us almost constantly, though they are long since over.
It's wrong to live in memory of this we are aware
Yet every passing hour we seem to wonder there
For you are always with us, deep down inside our hearts
And so it is that time or space, cannot keep us apart.

IN MEMORIUM

That our thoughts are not of you, here is the reason why -
You are deep down in our hearts, where you will always stay,
And so it is we think of you, throughout each night and day.
The happy moments that we know, in years now said and done
Each kiss and heavenly embrace, our walks in fields of clover
Are with us almost constantly, though they are long since over.
It's wrong to live in memory of this we are aware
Yet every passing hour we seem to wonder there
For you are always with us, deep down inside our hearts
And so it is that time or space, cannot keep us apart.
Sadly missed by your family, Mrs. Delorous Long, Evelyn, Jim, Linda, and Vest Long. 2-28-1t

Debate Honors Sought

50 years ago
February 28, 1918

The Sikeston High School is one of the two remaining schools in the Southeast district still working for debating honors, having won from Caruthersville last Friday. The locals were represented by Dallas Beauchamp and Dimple Wilbur.

The basketball team of the Sikeston High School played Charleston on the latter's court Wednesday night and were victorious. The score was 20 to 16 and a very good game was played.

Harry C. Blanton and bride, who until February 12 was Miss Maureen Daily of Bay City, Mich., returned here Tuesday from an eastern trip. They left Wednesday for Benton, where they will make their home, as Mr. Blanton is the prosecuting attorney of Scott County.

Chas. Mitchell has vacated the residence he recently sold to Dr. Stewart and he and his family have moved into the residence of his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. H. Meyers. He expects to build a new residence in Fairview addition this spring.

New Madrid -- The Commerical Hotel of this place, owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lacy, former Morehouse residents, was sold last week to Dawson Brothers, who took charge.

Blodgett school notes. The following are the names of the high school pupils making the highest grades for the fourth term: Seniors -- Lee Hubbard and Chester Strayhorn; juniors -- Cletis Capps and Blanche Boardman; sophomores -- Margaret Kelso and Bessie Boardman; and freshmen - Woodrow Graham and Viola Johnson.

Walter Brawley, 52, died at his home here, 521 South West street, of cancer on Thursday. He had lived here for about four years.

Free-throwing Fruitland Greyhounds, capitalizing on the stationary tosses, defeated the Sikeston Bulldogs at the high school gym Friday night as both teams played on a par with action shots. The score was 18-14.

Dr. J. J. Mackay, registered optometrist under the laws of Missouri and Texas, has located permanently offices in Charleston in the Russell building on Main street.

Chester Nix, who will wrestling under the name of Bill Jefferies, was paralyzed in a match at Atlanta, Ga., about six weeks ago, is now able to walk. Nix is a native of the Sikeston community. He was reared on a farm south of this city and at one time attended school here.

February 28, 1948

Ray Aduddell today announced that he will be a candidate for re-election as alderman from Ward three in the city election to be held April 6.

The high wind, which struck this area Friday, caused damage to many Sikeston homes and farms and cut off the service of about 100 telephones.

One "Leap Year Baby" was born February 29 at the Sikeston General Hospital. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barrick, will not have another birthday for four years and her birthday will not be on Sunday again for 28 years. In answer to a query, the Naval Observatory at Washington, D. C., stated Saturday, the last five-Sunday February was in 1929 and the next will be in 1976. Among Sikeston residents who have birthdays on February 29 are Dr. H. B. Throgmorton, Park avenue Apartments and Mrs. Lola Briggs, 117 South street.

QUICK QUIZ

Q — How much of the United States was covered by trees when the Pilgrims landed?

A—There were 937 million acres of superb virgin forest, including all territory except the Great Plains and some western desert areas.

Ann Landers

Young Should Be Encouraged To Enjoy Their Childhood

Dear Ann Landers: I am a male who used to laugh at my wife because she always turned to your column first thing and quoted from it. I'm ashamed to admit I made fun of her -- and of you, too. Now I am eating a big chunk of humble pie and it serves me right. I need your help.

Our daughter is nine years old and small for her age. Yesterday as she was going from her bedroom to the bathroom I noticed she was wearing a bra. I did a double take -- couldn't believe it. That kid doesn't have anything to put in a bra and the whole idea is ludicrous.

I went downstairs and asked my wife what it was all about. "Oh," she replied, "Harriet's best girl friend has started to wear a bra and she feels very left out. I bought her one for emotional support."

I told my wife I thought she was cuckoo. She told me to mind my own business. I said I was going to write to Ann Landers. She replied, "Go ahead, Ann will be on my side." How about it? Where do you stand? --GOGGLE-EYED

Dear Gog: Not with a nine-year-old flat-chested kid and her cuckoo mother. The way to give pre-adolescent girls emotional support is to help them enjoy being nine years old. They should be taught to wait for adult accessories until the time is right. A brassiere can be a symbol of other things and in this instance the symbolism is all too clear.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the soon-to-be-married girl wanting to know if she should confess all in regard to her past. She wanted to enter her marriage "with a clear conscience." You advised her to volunteer nothing and if he asks tell him, "Take me as I am or not at all."

That was excellent advice and I hope she listens. Too bad you weren't writing your column 16 years ago. May I say a word to every conscience-stricken girl who wishes to unburden herself:

Keep your silly mouth shut--unless you are willing to pay for it for the rest of your life. I married a rigid, unbending puritan after confessing an indiscretion which occurred when I was 16. We have been married 14 years and not a single day passes that he doesn't remind me that I was a tramp when he married me. Every time I look at a man he accuses me of something rotten.

"If you did it once, you'd do it again."

He has made me feel totally inadequate as a love partner and I have become completely passive in order to protect myself against future accusations. I don't dare show any enthusiasm for his love-making because he wants to know where I learned "that trick."

Two years ago I discovered the Great White Knight had fallen from his horse. I caught him having an affair with a woman at work. His defense was, "I am entitled to do as I please because you did."

Please, Ann Landers, continue to advise girls to keep their lips buttoned if they want to have a happy married life. Telling everything one knows is not a sign of honesty. It's a sign of stupidity. -- SORRY.

Dear Sorry: Thank you for your letter. The last two sentences are gems. Are you listening, students?

Confidential to I'm For You, Peachy: You are right. Too clean is as sick as too sloppy. Moderation makes the best sense. If I had to settle for one extreme or the other, I'd sooner live with someone who is too clean.

Do you feel ill at ease. . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Five Traffic Cases Heard

Five cases were disposed of Tuesday in magistrate court. Judge M. E. Montgomery presided. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore represented the state in cases heard.

Billy Dee Wyatt, route four, Sikeston, charged with driving an unregistered motor vehicle, was fined $10 and costs and given until March 3, to pay.

George E. Simmons, Charleston, charged with exceeding the speed limit, was fined $13 and costs.

Johnnie Wendell Abernathy, Chaffee, charged with operating an improperly registered vehicle, fined $5 and costs.

Q—Why are helicopters, first called "whirlybirds," now called "choppers"?

A—The "chopper" label comes from the noise made by the rotors— an irritating and very loud "chop-chop" sound.

If You Were The Judge

Stripper Not Entitled To Get New Trial

If the police had anything on Bubbles, it was more than Bubbles had on herself. While waiting to stand trial for an anti-social crime, she stripped down to her lovely silhouette and refused to put her clothes back on.

The trial judge, however, was in no mood for any nonsense. He ordered a blanket thrown around Bubbles and brought her in for trial.

With the evidence overwhelmingly against her, Bubbles was promptly convicted. With her blanket flapping in the breeze, Bubbles hurried to a higher court where she demanded a new trial.

"It was her own fault," retorted the District Attorney. "If she hadn't tried to pull off a Gypsy Rose Lee, she wouldn't have had to stand trial in that blanket."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Bubbles a new trial because of her nude trial?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when an accused person uses obstructive tactics to prevent his trial, a reasonable attempt should be made to talk him out of it since counter-measures will tend to prejudice a jury against him. In this case, such an attempt was not apparently made which normally would have entitled Bubbles to a new trial. But, concluded the judge, with the evidence against Bubbles being so overwhelmingly against her, the conviction was obviously the result of the facts and not any prejudice arising because of her courtroom garb. Therefore, she was not entitled to a new trial.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me.

PRAYER: Thou hast searched me, O God, and knowest me better than I know myself. Forgive my shortcomings and sins. Purify my heart that I may be Thy loving child in all my ways to Thy glory. In Christ's hold namy I pray. Amen.

Debate Honors Sought

50 years ago
February 28, 1918

The Sikeston High School is one of the two remaining schools in the Southeast district still working for debating honors, having won from Caruthersville last Friday. The locals were represented by Dallas Beauchamp and Dimple Wilbur.

The basketball team of the Sikeston High School played Charleston on the latter's court Wednesday night and were victorious. The score was 20 to 16 and a very good game was played.

Harry C. Blanton and bride, who until February 12 was Miss Maureen Daily of Bay City, Mich., returned here Tuesday from an eastern trip. They left Wednesday for Benton, where they will make their home, as Mr. Blanton is the prosecuting attorney of Scott County.

Chas. Mitchell has vacated the residence he recently sold to Dr. Stewart and he and his family have moved into the residence of his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. H. Meyers. He expects to build a new residence in Fairview addition this spring.

New Madrid -- The Commerical Hotel of this place, owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lacy, former Morehouse residents, was sold last week to Dawson Brothers, who took charge.

Blodgett school notes. The following are the names of the high school pupils making the highest grades for the fourth term: Seniors -- Lee Hubbard and Chester Strayhorn; juniors -- Cletis Capps and Blanche Boardman; sophomores -- Margaret Kelso and Bessie Boardman; and freshmen - Woodrow Graham and Viola Johnson.

Walter Brawley, 52, died at his home here, 521 South West street, of cancer on Thursday. He had lived here for about four years.

Free-throwing Fruitland Greyhounds, capitalizing on the stationary tosses, defeated the Sikeston Bulldogs at the high school gym Friday night as both teams played on a par with action shots. The score was 18-14.

Dr. J. J. Mackay, registered optometrist under the laws of Missouri and Texas, has located permanently offices in Charleston in the Russell building on Main street.

Chester Nix, who will wrestling under the name of Bill Jefferies, was paralyzed in a match at Atlanta, Ga., about six weeks ago, is now able to walk. Nix is a native of the Sikeston community. He was reared on a farm south of this city and at one time attended school here.

Ray Aduddell today announced that he will be a candidate for re-election as alderman from Ward three in the city election to be held April 6.

The high wind, which struck this area Friday, caused damage to many Sikeston homes and farms and cut off the service of about 100 telephones.

One "Leap Year Baby" was born February 29 at the Sikeston General Hospital. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barrick, will not have another birthday for four years and her birthday will not be on Sunday again for 28 years. In answer to a query, the Naval Observatory at Washington, D. C., stated Saturday, the last five-Sunday February was in 1929 and the next will be in 1976. Among Sikeston residents who have birthdays on February 29 are Dr. H. B. Throgmorton, Park avenue Apartments and Mrs. Lola Briggs, 117 South street.

QUICK QUIZ

Q — How much of the United States was covered by trees when the Pilgrims landed?

A—There were 937 million acres of superb virgin forest, including all territory except the Great Plains and some western desert areas.

Q—Why are helicopters, first called "whirlybirds," now called "choppers"?

A—The "chopper" label comes from the noise made by the rotors— an irritating and very loud "chop-chop" sound.

Ann Landers

Young Should Be Encouraged To Enjoy Their Childhood

Dear Ann Landers: I am a male who used to laugh at my wife because she always turned to your column first thing and quoted from it. I'm ashamed to admit I made fun of her -- and of you, too. Now I am eating a big chunk of humble pie and it serves me right. I need your help.

Our daughter is nine years old and small for her age. Yesterday as she was going from her bedroom to the bathroom I noticed she was wearing a bra. I did a double take -- couldn't believe it. That kid doesn't have anything to put in a bra and the whole idea is ludicrous.

I went downstairs and asked my wife what it was all about. "Oh," she replied, "Harriet's best girl friend has started to wear a bra and she feels very left out. I bought her one for emotional support."

I told my wife I thought she was cuckoo. She told me to mind my own business. I said I was going to write to Ann Landers. She replied, "Go ahead, Ann will be on my side." How about it? Where do you stand? --GOGGLE-EYED

Dear Gog: Not with a nine-year-old flat-chested kid and her cuckoo mother. The way to give pre-adolescent girls emotional support is to help them enjoy being nine years old. They should be taught to wait for adult accessories until the time is right. A brassiere can be a symbol of other things and in this instance the symbolism is all too clear.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the soon-to-be-married girl wanting to know if she should confess all in regard to her past. She wanted to enter her marriage "with a clear conscience." You advised her to volunteer nothing and if he asks tell him, "Take me as I am or not at all."

That was excellent advice and I hope she listens. Too bad you weren't writing your column 16 years ago. May I say a word to every conscience-stricken girl who wishes to unburden herself:

Keep your silly mouth shut--unless you are willing to pay for it for the rest of your life. I married a rigid, unbending puritan after confessing an indiscretion which occurred wher I was 16. We have been married 14 years and not a single day passes that he doesn't remind me that I was a tramp when he married me. Every time I look at a man he accuses me of something rotten.

"If you did it once, you'd do it again."

He has made me feel totally inadequate as a love partner and I have become completely passive in order to protect myself against future accusations. I don't dare show any enthusiasm for his love-making because he wants to know where I learned "that trick."

Two years ago I discovered the Great White Knight had fallen from his horse. I caught him having an affair with a woman at work. His defense was, "I am entitled to do as I please because you did."

Please, Ann Landers, continue to advise girls to keep their lips buttoned if they want to have a happy married life. Telling everything one knows is not a sign of honesty. It's a sign of stupidity. -- SORRY.

Dear Sorry: Thank you for your letter. The last two sentences are gems. Are you listening, students?

Confidential to I'm For You, Peachy: You are right. Too clean is as sick as too sloppy. Moderation makes the best sense. If I had to settle for one extreme or the other, I'd sooner live with someone who is too clean.

Do you feel ill at ease. . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Five Traffic Cases Heard

Five cases were disposed of Tuesday in magistrate court. Judge M. E. Montgomery presided. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore represented the state in cases heard.

Billy Dee Wyatt, route four, Sikeston, charged with driving an unregistered motor vehicle, was fined $10 and costs and given until March 3, to pay.

George E. Simmons, Charleston, charged with exceeding the speed limit, was fined $13 and costs.

If You Were The Judge

Stripper Not Entitled To Get New Trial

If the police had anything on Bubbles, it was more than Bubbles had on herself. While waiting to stand trial for an anti-social crime, she stripped down to her lovely silhouette and refused to put her clothes back on.

The trial judge, however, was in no mood for any nonsense. He ordered a blanket thrown around Bubbles and brought her in for trial.

With the evidence overwhelmingly against her, Bubbles was promptly convicted. With her blanket flapping in the breeze, Bubbles hurried to a higher court where she demanded a new trial.

"It was her own fault," retorted the District Attorney. "If she hadn't tried to pull off a Gypsy Rose Lee, she wouldn't have had to stand trial in that blanket."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Bubbles a new trial because of her nude trial?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when an accused person uses obstructive tactics to prevent his trial, a reasonable attempt should be made to talk him out of it since counter-measures will tend to prejudice a jury against him. In this case, such an attempt was not apparently made which normally would have entitled Bubbles to a new trial. But, concluded the judge, with the evidence against Bubbles being so overwhelmingly against her, the conviction was obviously the result of the facts and not any prejudice arising because of her courtroom garb. Therefore, she was not entitled to a new trial.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me.

PRAYER: Thou hast searched me, O God, and knowest me better than I know myself. Forgive my shortcomings and sins. Purify my heart that I may be Thy loving child in all my ways to Thy glory. In Christ's hold namy I pray. Amen.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1808, French forces captured Barcelona, Spain.

In 1827, a charter was granted for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

In 1844, U.S. Secretary of State Abel P. Uphsur and Secretary of the Navy Thomas W. Gilmer and three others were killed when a gun exploded on a Navy ship during an excursion down the Potomac River.

In 1933, a Nazi decree suppressed civil liberties in Germany.

In 1952, Vincent Massey was sworn in as the first native-born governor-general of Canada.

Ten years ago— A school bus plunged into a river near Prestonsburg, Ky., drowning 27 children and the driver.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1808, French forces captured Barcelona, Spain.

In 1827, a charter was granted for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

In 1844, U.S. Secretary of State Abel P. Upshur and Secretary of the Navy Thomas W. Gilmer and three others were killed when a gun exploded on a Navy ship during an excursion down the Potomac River.

In 1933, a Nazi decree suppressed civil liberties in Germany.

In 1952, Vincent Massey was sworn in as the first native-born governor-general of Canada.

Ten years ago— A school bus plunged into a river near Prestonsburg, Ky., drowning 27 children and the driver.

MRS. GANDHI WILL TRAVEL

NEW DELHI (AP) Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told Parliament she has accepted "in principle" without fixing dates, invitations to visit Afghanistan, Algeria, Burma, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, West Germany, Hungary, Iraq, Japan, Sudan, Syria and Tunisia.

Sidle Explains Clampdown on News Reports

SAIGON (AP) - Brig. Gen. Winant Sidle said today the U.S. Command's new policy of withholding certain military information applies only to enemy attacks on fixed U. S. bases.

As an example, Sidle referred to the U. S. Marine combat base at Khe Sanh, which has been under mortar and artillery siege nearly two months.

Under the rules announced Monday, the U. S. Command will withhold the exact number of casualties inflicted in a Communist shelling of a base and withhold the precise damage and the specific location on the base where the rounds hit.

Sidle, the command's chief of information, told correspondents that the idea is to deny information to the enemy or to delay it.

When the base comes under shelling, Sidle said, "the enemy has no way to determine the (American) casualties unless we tell them. Therefore, it is just plain silly for us to tell him."

"The same applies to damage to equipment," Sidle added. "We can't afford to let him know how accurate or inaccurate his shelling is. We've got to approximate the number of incoming rounds which hit the base. We don't want to give out details."

Sidle said he was asked earlier if a correspondent in the field could report what he sees. "The answer is yes," Sidle said, "but you aren't going to see the entire result."

For that reason, he continued, "we don't want to put out the over-all casualties" in an individual attack.

Cave-in Fatal To Three Young Cave Diggers

FALLON, Nev. (AP) — Three young boys died Sunday when a cave they had dug in an irrigation ditch collapsed and buried them, sheriff's officers reported. A fourth boy was rescued.

A search for the four boys—all cousins—was started when their dog arrived home without them.

Dead were Ricky Miller, 6, Brad Miller, 8, and Donald Williams, 4.

The survivor was Ricky's brother, Fred, 8.

One searcher spotted Fred's foot sticking out of sand. He was pulled out and taken to a hospital. The bodies of the other three were uncovered.

Fred was unconscious and reported in serious condition at the county hospital after his arrival there. Monday his condition was reported as better.

Sheriff's deputies said the accident occurred on the property of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Miller, the parents of Ricky and Fred. Mrs. Miller had expressed concern about the boys when their dog came home.

A search was started in which 100 volunteers, some on motorcycles and in helicopters, took part.

Officers said the youngsters had used a shovel to dig a cave in the side of the irrigation ditch.

MRS. DARRELL DERRYBERRY of Bloomfield serves banana cake.

Mrs. Darrel Derryberry Teaches, Cooks, Sews

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 76th in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

By RUTH DILLENDER

BLOOMFIELD -- Having plenty of time and tasks scheduled for each day are important in managing a household says Mrs. Pat Derryberry, 1918 North Prairie. She and her husband, Darrell, have a son, Dean, three years old. Derryberry is employed in the office of the Monarch Feed Mills Inc. in Dexter. The Derryberrys have lived in Bloomfield about three years.

Mrs. Derryberry serves as a substitute teacher in the public schools. She sews making some of her clothes and curtains for her home.

They are members of the Trinity Methodist church where she sings in the choir, teaches first and second grade pupils and is co-director of the junior choir for fourth through seventh grade pupils.

COCONUT POUND CAKE
3 sticks butter or soft margarine
3 cups sugar
6 eggs
3 cups sifted flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon soda
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 package frozen coconut

Sift all purpose flour and measure. Resift three times with salt and soda. Add flour mixture alternately with dairy sour cream beginning and ending with flour mixture. Add vanilla. Remove from electric mixer at this point. Fold in frozen coconut, thawed.

Turn batter into pan, using spatula half way down in batter, go around several times without taking it out of batter. This is to take out air. Bake in moderate oven, 300 degrees, on bottom rack.

Mrs. Derryberry says the cake keeps well.

7-UP SALAD
2 packages lemon Jello
2 cups boiling water
2 7-ounces bottles 7-Up

Mix together and add:
No. 2 can crushed pineapple
2 cups miniature marshmallows
3 sliced bananas

Place in refrigerator till jelled.

Dressing:

Cook 1/2 cup sugar, two tablespoons flour and cup of pineapple juice over low heat until thick. Add one tablespoon butter and place in refrigerator over night. Then beat 1/2 pint whipping cream and add to cooked mixture. Spread over Jello mixture.

Garnish with chopped nuts or grated cheese.

ONE CUP 24-HOUR SALAD
1 cup sour cream
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup mandarin oranges
1 cup pineapple chucks
1 cup miniature marshmallows
1 cup white grapes

Drain, mix and refrigerate.

EASY BAKE BANANA CAKE
2 cups flour
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup shortening
1/2 cup buttermilk or sour milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
1 cup mashed bananas

Add all at once. Beat two minutes or 300 stroke by hand. Bake 30 minutes for round layers, for square, bake 30 to 35 minutes.

Mrs. Derryberry says she adds the cream and bananas just before serving.

PEACH PECAN PIE

Beat three egg whites until stiff. Slowly add one cup sugar and continue beating until sugar dissolves. Add 12 soda crackers, finely ground, 1/4 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 cup broken pecan meats and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Butter pie pan and fill with mixture. Bake for 30 minutes in 325-degree oven. Cool.

Fill with sliced peaches in sweetened whipped cream (1/2 pint). Drain peaches before using.

Chill or freeze pie over night. The crust may be made the day before. May become watery if set too long. Serves six.

MAIL BOX

Dear Charlie,

Congratulations on A Day at a Time. That's what we like to read. Keep talking about God and you will wake up some needy soul. And that is what we want, souls saved.

Never think of tomorrow. It is not promised. Only what we can do today for the lost.

A Sikeston Reader,
Miss Wilma West

Mr. C. L. Blanton,
The Daily Standard,
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

In my travels over the state and in my observance of activities of the newspaper profession I have the privilege of seeing many special efforts by publishers to give to their readers and advertisers the opportunity to make use of a high quality news media.

I have just looked over your Thirteenth Annual Progress Edition of the Daily Standard and I feel I must get this letter off to you immediately.

The edition, in my opinion, is the finest I have seen produced from the presses of any newspaper in a city the size of Sikeston, and I would hasten to add that the quality of the contents and the mechanical perfection of the printing and make-up ranks with that of papers of cities of much larger population.

You and your sons, along with your fine staff, have outdone themselves. I know my letter is but one of many you certainly will receive thanking you for such a service.

Sincerely,
Fred B. Schulenberg

Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Charlie:

We have not yet "digested" your Thirteenth Annual Progress Edition, for it was received just this morning. However, we are so impressed with its appearance and its content that we want to congratulate you and your staff without waiting until we've read it more thoroughly. We think the theme "Crossroads to Progress" and the way it was handled was particularly good.

This will be kept in our data files for future use.

Curvy Starlet Can't Decide On New Name

Svetlana Mishoff.

Shouldn't she maybe Americanize it to something like Lana Turner or Natalie Wood?

Russian-born Svetlana, 20, who has had a part in the film "Rosemary's Baby" and is preparing for another role, posed her problem to newspaper readers while posing for an Associated Press Wirephoto. She offered a large autographed photo of herself for the best suggestion for a name.

Considering her curves— 36-23-36— it was an attractive offer . . . and she has the letters to prove it: more than 2,000 from around the world, Vietnam to Yugoslavia.

What's her choice for screen billing?

Not " 'Miss Mione' (my own)," as proposed by a New Yorker. Or Karen Kirk, Corinne Christian, Julie Jones or Sue Miller — all offered in a single jackpot letter from Boone, Iowa.

She rejected Jayne Lamarr, from Glasgow, Scotland; Stella Frederickson, from a Connecticut barber, and Cindy Summers, from a U.S. airman in Germany.

Also Lana Crane, from Pleiku; Nancy Lynn, from a cavalryman in Bong Son, and Peggy Summers, from "the DMZ in Korea where there are no women at all, especially blondes."

Four prisoners in the Roanoke County Jail, Salem, Va., deemed her "plight about wanting an American name to be worthy of our attention." Like many correspondents, they suggested shortening Svetlana Mishoff to Lana Hoff. But she thinks that "sounds too German."

She also nixed such names as Gloria Hall, Helen Hardy, Christine Wells, Sandy Stones, Julie Johnson and Tammy Ford.

Finally, Svetlana came to agree with the idea expressed in most of the letters: "I don't see much wrong with the name you already have."

She reasons: "The people who wrote to me remember my name. So why shouldn't everybody?"

If she makes it as a movie star, Svetlana Mishoff she will be.

Inland Press Joins List of ABA Critics

CHICAGO (AP)— The Inland Daily Press Association added its voice today to criticism of recommendations by the American Bar Association for new restrictions on news coverage of criminal cases.

The board of directors at the association's winter meeting in Chicago said it regrets the recent action of the ABA.

The ABA recommendations in general would limit what the public would be told about pending criminal trials and arrests by preventing disclosure of prior criminal records, confessions or possible admissions of guilt.

Representatives of various news media have criticized the recommendations as have some lawyers and judges.

"The dangers of a system which would foster secrecy in the vital areas of crime and the courts are too great for America to accept," the Inland board said in a statement.

"The board recommends that the membership follow with critical interest the courses that the American Bar Association recommendations must take in each state. Only in this way can effective action be taken to safeguard the public interest," the statement said.

The Inland Daily Press Association is the largest regional organization of daily newspapers in the United States.

Conscience Fund Contributions off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voluntary contributions to the Treasury Department's "conscience fund" have been falling off the last three years— but accompanying letters show many people still have a conscience.

"I have become a Christian," wrote a former Navy man who sent an unsolicited $20, "and feel it necessary to go back and straighten my past misdeeds."

The fund sets aside money sent by conscience-stricken people who feel they've cheated on income tax, ducked the customs collector, pilfered government equipment and the like.

It reached a total $2,931,687.29 last month. But contributions for the last three fiscal years have fallen off to an average $20,000 to $25,000— the lowest since just before World War II. Record collections of $370,285.47 came in 1950.

Long Says Support Best Organized Ever

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., says criticism and political challengers have helped build what he calls the best campaign organization he's ever had.

Long said in an interview that "my support is more crytalized, active and organized today than in any campaign I've made, and I've been campaigning more than 30 years."

A former Missouri lieutenant governor and state legislative leader, he said "my opponents can conduct any type of campaign they want to. I have no comment on any of my opponents."

Long's opponents in Missouri's Democratic primary include Thomas F. Eagleton, the state's present lieutenant governor, and W. True Davis, former U.S. ambassador to Switzerland and assistant secretary of the treasury.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., is alone in seeking the GOP Senate nomination.

Long, who entered the Senate in 1960, says his Missouri friends have "stood up as a result of this opposition," and because of charges leveled against him.

He said he expects to receive a "substantial majority" in both the primary and general election. He was elected to his present term in 1962 by a margin of more than 100,000 votes.

Long said he doesn't care to rehash the charges that fees he received from a legal associate were an inducement to steer a Senate wiretapping probe in a direction favorable to Teamsters leader James R. Hoffa.

But, after a pause, he added: "The ethics committee found nothing wrong and there's no indication there will be another report."

The Senate Ethics Committee reported in October it had found no evidence Long was guilty of improper conduct in accepting the money from Morris A. Shenker, a St. Louis lawyer who has represented Hoffa.

Life Magazine accused Long of misusing a Senate wiretapping subcommittee which he headed, first to keep Hoffa out of prison and later to get his conviction reversed.

Long acknowledged payments from Shenker but denied they were linked to Hoffa or the Teamsters, saying they represented a sharing of fees on a number of cases he and Shenker worked on together.

"You can't conduct a type of hearing that we conducted — you can't step on the toes of some of the agencies and big money interests in the East— without creating some animosity," Long said.

The Ethics Committee investigation is continuing, but committee sources decline to indicate whether new information has been uncovered.

Long said major issues will include the Vietnam war, crime, farm and urban development and conservation and water resources.

Here's what he says on some of these and other issues:

— President Johnson's policies "I've supported them generally and I will do the same thing if ty," Long said.

I am re-elected. The President's stock is rising in Missouri and he will carry the state."

-The war: Long urges more effort to achieve a settlement through the United Nations, but then says: "the fact is we're there. Our boys are there. Our flag is there. We can't get away from that."

-On war dissenters: "These various outbursts give aid and comfort to North Vietnam and, right or wrong, they are a definite disservice to the government and the boys fighting there."

-A tax increase to combat inflation: "I'm not sure I can give it complete support, but I have not made a definite decision. I would hate to put the tax on and see it fail to accomplish its purpose."

-Farm policy: "By and large the farmers of Missouri are happy. The feed-grain program has been a great success. When the chips are down the farmers will support the President."

-Civil rights: "It's no serious problem. There has always been a very cordial relationship between white and Negro citizens. I have no impression that there will be riots in St. Louis or elsewhere in the state this summer. The people don't feel any unrest."

Woman Says Pet Piranha Really Likes to Be Babied

"But Susie is really just a big, overgrown baby," insists Mrs. Collins, operator of a Kansas City pet shop.

Susie is her piranha's name. Mrs. Collins talks to Susie. She also sticks her arm into the tank and strokes Susie's tummy.

"I suppose you'll think I'm some kind of a nut," Mrs. Collins sighed. "But Susie really wants to be babied. She's terribly spoiled."

She explained she obtained Susie about three years ago when the fish was only about the size of a quarter. Today Susie weighs five pounds and measures 21 inches long, possibly the largest black piranha in captivity.

Susie, a dull gold color on top and black at the bottom, swam slowly back and forth in her 50-gallon tank, eying visitors malevolently. Her powerful, underslung jaw made her look like a particularly vicious underwater bulldog.

She comes equipped with two rows of razor sharp teeth that are shed periodically for new ones.

Experts insist piranhas are not really as savage as folklore portrays them. But they will bite people, especially if there's blood in the water, and they are extremely hard to shake loose.

Susie must be content, however, with an exotic diet of chicken hearts, hard boiled egg yolks and chopped spinach fed to her from Mrs. Collins' hand. Occasionally she gets a special treat of peeled crawfish tails.

"She's so insanely jealous," Mrs. Collins confided. "When anybody stands near me by the tank or if I hold the cat in my lap, she just leaps out of the water and splashes all over the place."

Mrs. Collins noted she also has two dogs and two cats around the house.

"The city made me get rid of my 30 ducks, and somebody stole our skunk," she added.

Mrs. Collins' husband, it developed, is less enthusiastic about having a piranha in the living room.

"She's bitten me five times," he explained quietly.

Collins, a husky railroad switchman, said the last time Susie attacked him she got a good grip on the web of his hand between his thumb and forefinger. He had to deliver Susie a smart rap to the head to persuade her to let go.

Recently two curious scientists from the University of Kansas Medical Center came out to examine a sore on Susie's jaw. Mrs. Collins feared the growth might be malignant.

"Mike, don't you dare hurt Susie," Mrs. Collins wailed as her husband, drenched with water, waged a mighty battle to hold the wildly thrashing fish in a towel while the scientists snipped off a piece of the damaged tissue for examination.

The battle over and Susie restored to her tank, Mrs. Collins stroked the agitated piranha's stomach to sooth her.

Island Raised 37.8 Feet by 1964 Quake

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alaska's Montague Island cracked and lifted as much as 37.8 feet out of the ocean during the disastrous 1964 earthquake, the U.S. Geological Survey reports.

The spectacular uplift left the island in Prince William Sound as much as 1,000 feet of new beach— deeply cut with streams — the Geological Survey said in its latest report on effects of the earthquake.

"It was fortunate indeed that Montague was uninhabited on that fateful day," said George Plafker, USGS geologist wrote in the report.

The island cracked and lifted on one fault line the full 22-mile length of the cigar-shaped island, Plafker said. Another fault line was traced four miles.

New York has 3,492 houses of worship. The largest one is the Cathedral of St. John the Divine (Episcopal).

Special Processing Increase Speed of High Speed Ektachrome Film to 2 1/2 Times Normal

A special processing service that increases the effective film speed of Kodak High Speed Ektachrome Film, Daylight, from ASA160 to ASA400 and that of the Type B version for tungsten light from ASA125 to ASA320 has been announced by Eastman Kodak Company.

The service, which greatly enlarges the versatility of these films under all lighting conditions, is keyed to the purchase of a Kodak Special Processing Envelope (ESP-1) from Kodak dealers at a cost which is not expected to exceed $1. This cost prepays the extra charge for the special processing of one roll of film. This special charge is separate from and in addition to the regular Kodak Ektachrome Processing charge. A comprehensive instruction sheet including suggested exposure information for a wide variety of subjects is enclosed in each ESP-1 Envelope.

Special Processing will be provided by all Kodak Processing Laboratories in the United States. Only 135 (20- and 36-exposure) and 120 sizes will be handled.

After the film has been exposed, the customer inserts the roll into the ESP-1 Envelope and takes it either to a photo dealer for processing by Kodak or mails it to a U.S. Kodak Laboratory in the appropriate Kodak Prepaird Processing Mailer.

Although designed especially for the high speed films, the service can also be helpful in an emergency to the photographer shooting Ektachrome-X Film (speed ASA64) in a situation requiring more speed. He can expose the Ektachrome-X 135 or 120 Film at ASA160 if he then uses the special processing service.

Excluded from the service are Kodak Ektachrome Professional Film, Kodak High Speed Ektachrome Film in 126 cartridges, Kodachrome, Kodacolor or other films. Kodak also will not provide special processing to speeds other than those indicated.

Because of the high quality of the specially processed films, photographers with adjustable cameras can photograph any subject from bright sunlit scenes to those dimly lit by artificial light without undue loss of quality. In daylight, the additional speed becomes especially desirable when shooting fast-action sports, using long lenses, or taking close-ups where a faster shutter speed or greater depth of field might be needed.

High Speed Ektachrome Film, Daylight, is exposed at film speed ASA400 in daylight or tungsten lighting conditions. High Speed Ektachrome, Film, Type B, is exposed at film speed 320 in tungsten lighting and 200 when using a No. 85B Filter for daylight pictures. If the light is measured through a No. 85B Filter, as with cameras having behind-the-lens metering, the film speed rating of 320 should be used.

Court Studies Tax Penalty Policy

HILLSBORO, Mo. (AP)— The three-member Jefferson County Court has begun a study of the policy of charging penalties and interest to taxpayers who received their 1967 personal property tax bills after the deadline for payment.

Presiding Judge Walter Steinburk said: "It strikes me as unfair to expect taxpayers to pay penalties if they don't receive their tax bills until after they become delinquent."

Associate Judge Jack Manley said he would probably ask tax collector Earl A. Toulouse to discontinue the policy. Manley said those persons who received their tax bills before the Dec. 31 deadline and haven't paid should be penalized."

The nickname "wildcatter" for an oil driller was coined by pioneers of the American oil industry. In remote areas of Pennsylvania, wild cats fought at night over food scraps left by daytime drilling crews.

MRS. DARRELL DERRYBERRY of Bloomfield serves banana cake.

Mrs. Darrel Derryberry Teaches, Cooks, Sews

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 76th in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

By RUTH DILLENDER

BLOOMFIELD -- Having plenty of time and tasks scheduled for each day are important in managing a household says Mrs. Pat Derryberry, 1918 North Prairie.

She and her husband, Darrell, have a son, Dean, three years old. Derryberry is employed in the office of the Monarch Feed Mills Inc. in Dexter. The Derryberrys have lived in Bloomfield about three years.

Mrs. Derryberry serves as a substitute teacher in the public schools. She sews making some of her clothes and curtains for her home.

They are members of the Trinity Methodist church where she sings in the choir, teaches first and second grade pupils and is co-director of the junior choir for fourth through seventh grade pupils.

COCONUT POUND CAKE

3 sticks butter or soft margarine
3 cups sugar
6 eggs
3 cups sifted flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon soda
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 package frozen coconut

Sift all purpose flour and measure. Resift three times with salt and soda. Add flour mixture alternately with dairy sour cream beginning and ending with flour mixture. Add vanilla. Remove from electric mixer at this point. Fold in frozen coconut, thawed.

Turn batter into pan, using spatula half way down in batter, go around several times without taking it out of batter. This is to take out air. Bake in moderate oven, 300 degrees, on bottom rack.

Mrs. Derryberry says the cake keeps well.

7-UP SALAD

2 packages lemon Jello
2 cups boiling water
2 7-ounces bottles 7-Up

Mix together and add:

No. 2 can crushed pineapple
2 cups miniature marshmallows
3 sliced bananas

Place in refrigerator till jelled.

Dressing:

Cook 1/2 cup sugar, two tablespoons flour and cup of pineapple juice over low heat until thick. Add one tablespoon butter and place in refrigerator over night. Then beat 1/2 pint whipping cream and add to cooked mixture. Spread over Jello mixture.

Garnish with chopped nuts or grated cheese.

ONE CUP 24-HOUR SALAD

1 cup sour cream
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup mandarin oranges
1 cup pineapple chucks
1 cup miniature marshmallows
1 cup white grapes

Drain, mix and refrigerate.

EASY BAKE BANANA CAKE

2 cups flour
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup shortening
1/2 cup buttermilk or sour milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
1 cup mashed bananas

Add all at once. Beat two minutes or 300 stroke by hand. Bake 30 minutes for round layers, for square, bake 30 to 35 minutes.

Frost cake with sweetened whipped cream and banana slices.

Mrs. Derryberry says she adds the cream and bananas just before serving.

PEACH PECAN PIE

Beat three egg whites until stiff. Slowly add one cup sugar and continue beating until sugar dissolves. Add 12 soda crackers, finely ground, 1/4 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 cup broken pecan meats and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Butter pie pan and fill with mixture. Bake for 30 minutes in 325-degree oven. Cool.

Fill with sliced peaches in sweetened whipped cream (1/2 pint). Drain peaches before using.

Chill or freeze pie over night. The crust may be made the day before. May become watery if set too long. Serves six.

Dear Charlie,

Congratulations on A Day at a Time. That's what we like to read. Keep talking about God and you will wake up some needy soul. And that is what we want, souls saved.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

In my travels over the state and in my observance of activities of the newspaper profession I have the privilege of seeing many special efforts by publishers to give to their readers and advertisers the opportunity to make use of a high quality news media.

I have just looked over your Thirteenth Annual Progress Edition of the Daily Standard and I feel I must get this letter off to you immediately.

The edition, in my opinion, is the finest I have seen produced from the presses of any newspaper in a city the size of Sikeston, and I would hasten to add that the quality of the contents and the mechanical perfection of the printing and make-up ranks with that of papers of cities of much larger population.

You and your sons, along with your fine staff, have outdone themselves. I know my letter is but one of many you certainly will receive thanking you for such a service.

Sincerely,

"But Susie is really just a big, overgrown baby," insists Mrs. Collins, operator of a Kansas City pet shop.

Susie is her piranha's name. Mrs. Collins talks to Susie. She also sticks her arm into the tank and strokes Susie's tummy.

"I suppose you'll think I'm some kind of a nut," Mrs. Collins sighed. "But Susie really wants to be babied. She's terribly spoiled."

She explained she obtained Susie about three years ago when the fish was only about the size of a quarter. Today Susie weighs five pounds and measures 21 inches long, possibly the largest black piranha in captivity.

Susie, a dull gold color on top and black at the bottom, swam slowly back and forth in her 50-gallon tank, eying visitors malevolently. Her powerful, underslung jaw made her look like a particularly vicious underwater bulldog.

She comes equipped with two rows of razor sharp teeth that are shed periodically for new ones.

Experts insist piranhas are not really as savage as folklore portrays them. But they will bite people, especially if there's blood in the water, and they are extremely hard to shake loose.

Susie must be content, however, with an exotic diet of chicken hearts, hard boiled egg yolks and chopped spinach fed to her from Mrs. Collins' hand. Occasionally she gets a special treat of peeled crawfish tails.

"She's so insanely jealous," Mrs. Collins confided. "When anybody stands near me by the tank or if I hold the cat in my lap, she just leaps out of the water and splashes all over the place."

Mrs. Collins noted she also has two dogs and two cats around the house.

"The city made me get rid of my 30 ducks, and somebody stole our skunk," she added.

Mrs. Collins' husband, it developed, is less enthusiastic about having a piranha in the living room.

"She's bitten me five times," he explained quietly.

Collins, a husky railroad switchman, said the last time Susie attacked him she got a good grip on the web of his hand between his thumb and forefinger. He had to deliver Susie a smart rap to the head to persuade her to let go.

Recently two curious scientists from the University of Kansas Medical Center came out to examine a sore on Susie's jaw. Mrs. Collins feared the growth might be malignant.

"Mike, don't you dare hurt Susie," Mrs. Collins wailed as her husband, drenched with water, waged a mighty battle to hold the wildly thrashing fish in a towel while the scientists snipped off a piece of the damaged tissue for examination.

"I am only trying," Collins replied patiently through clenched teeth, "to keep her from chewing off my hand."

The battle over and Susie restored to her tank, Mrs. Collins stroked the agitated piranha's stomach to sooth her.

Island Raised 37.8 Feet by 1964 Quake

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alaska's Montague Island cracked and lifted as much as 37.8 feet out of the ocean during the disastrous 1964 earthquake, the U.S. Geological Survey reports.

The spectacular uplift left the island in Prince William Sound as much as 1,000 feet of new beach— deeply cut with streams — the Geological Survey said in its latest report on effects of the earthquake.

"It was fortunate indeed that Montague was uninhabited on that fateful day," said George Plafker, USGS geologist wrote in the report.

The island cracked and lifted on one fault line the full 22-mile length of the cigar-shaped island, Plafker said. Another fault line was traced four miles.

New York has 3,492 houses of worship. The largest one is the Cathedral of St. John the Divine (Episcopal).

Special Processing Increase Speed of High Speed Ektachrome Film to 2 1/2 Times Normal

A special processing service that increases the effective film speed of Kodak High Speed Ektachrome Film, Daylight, from ASA160 to ASA400 and that of the Type B version for tungsten light from ASA125 to ASA320 has been announced by Eastman Kodak Company.

The service, which greatly enlarges the versatility of these films under all lighting conditions, is keyed to the purchase of a Kodak Special Processing Envelope (ESP-1) from Kodak dealers at a cost which is not expected to exceed $1. This cost prepays the extra charge for the special processing of one roll of film. This special charge is separate from and in addition to the regular Kodak Ektachrome Processing charge. A comprehensive instruction sheet including suggested exposure information for a wide variety of subjects is enclosed in each ESP-1 Envelope.

Special Processing will be provided by all Kodak Processing Laboratories in the United States. Only 135 (20- and 36-exposure) and 120 sizes will be handled.

After the film has been exposed, the customer inserts the roll into the ESP-1 Envelope and takes it either to a photo dealer for processing by Kodak or mails it to a U.S. Kodak Laboratory in the appropriate Kodak Prepaird Processing Mailer.

Although designed especially for the high speed films, the service can also be helpful in an emergency to the photographer shooting Ektachrome-X Film (speed ASA64) in a situation requiring more speed. He can expose the Ektachrome-X 135 or 120 Film at ASA160 if he then uses the special processing service.

Excluded from the service are Kodak Ektachrome Professional Film, Kodak High Speed Ektachrome Film in 126 cartridges, Kodachrome, Kodacolor or other films. Kodak also will not provide special processing to speeds other than those indicated.

Because of the high quality of the specially processed films, photographers with adjustable cameras can photograph any subject from bright sunlit scenes to those dimly lit by artificial light without undue loss of quality. In daylight, the additional speed becomes especially desirable when shooting fast-action sports, using long lenses, or taking close-ups where a faster shutter speed or greater depth of field might be needed.

High Speed Ektachrome Film, Daylight, is exposed at film speed ASA400 in daylight or tungsten lighting conditions. High Speed Ektachrome, Film, Type B, is exposed at film speed 320 in tungsten lighting and 200 when using a No. 85B Filter for daylight pictures. If the light is measured through a No. 85B Filter, as with cameras having behind-the-lens metering, the film speed rating of 320 should be used.

Court Studies Tax Penalty Policy

HILLSBORO, Mo. (AP)— The three-member Jefferson County Court has begun a study of the policy of charging penalties and interest to taxpayers who received their 1967 personal property tax bills after the deadline for payment.

Presiding Judge Walter Steinburk said: "It strikes me as unfair to expect taxpayers to pay penalties if they don't receive their tax bills until after they become delinquent."

Associate Judge Jack Manley said he would probably ask tax collector Earl A. Toulouse to discontinue the policy. Manley said those persons who received their tax bills before the Dec. 31 deadline and haven't paid should be penalized."

The nickname "wildcatter" for an oil driller was coined by pioneers of the American oil industry. In remote areas of Pennsylvania, wild cats fought at night over food scraps left by daytime drilling crews.

STATE DIRECTOR OF REVENUE THOMAS A. DAVID and Lt. Col. K. K. Johnson of the Missouri highway patrol examine the computer printout from a high-speed printer. The machine is part of a new $2.5 million computer complex at the state department of revenue in Jefferson City that will control nearly a billion dollars in annual collections and make instantly available to state-wide law enforcement agencies the records of Missouri's 2.5 million motor vehicles and their drivers.

State Tax Information Available for Dialers

JEFFERSON CITY -- Security is being able to repeat important numbers from memory, like social security, driver's license, car license, checking account and savings account, zip code, and telephone numbers of friends and relatives. How about two more that could mean money to you?

Try 800-392-3473 and 500. The first, 800-392-3473, is the Wide-Area Telephone Service number to the Missouri department of revenue. The second is the post office box. This dial-a-tax number is available through April 15 as a service to state taxpayers. Missourians can dial the number and ask one of the auditors manning the WATS line for answers to any particular tax problem.

The incoming WATS number may be dialed direct, and at any hour of the day, from any location within the state having direct distance dialing. Residents of areas without DDD can call long distance as they normally would, toll-free.

Additional telephone operators are on duty in the revenue department to answer calls from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. each weekday. Calls placed after 10 p.m. will be recorded, with answers by telephone or mail following as soon as possible.

The dial-a-tax service is an experimental project initiated by Dwight L. Fine, executive assistant in the revenue department. Fine said the new WATS line "is an effort to take taxes to the people." Continuation of the service will depend on an evaluation after this tax season closes.

Lester G. Ekstam, chief, bureau of audits, reported the Watts line is averaging more than 30 calls per day. "We're keeping a record of every call with the time, location and nature," Ekstam said. Such a record will give the auditors a better idea of what type information to have before them when the volume of calls increases as the April 15 deadline nears. The highest daily total to date has been 50 calls.

State Director of Revenue Thomas A. Davis, hopes the dial-a-tax service will reduce the number of incorrectly filed returns, and save time and money involved in rocessing incorrect returns. David said, "We figure it will cost less to answer the questions by telephone than by letters."

"Five hundred is the mailing address for Missourians expecting refunds on their 1967 state income taxes," said David.

"If filed early, refund returns can be processed within three to six weeks." David warned that the later returns are filed, the longer it will take for processing. "We anticipate all refunds returned by early July," he said.

Missourians are urged to use the new postal number, Box 500, Jefferson City (only if refunds are due), or P.O. Box 329, Jefferson City (for all other returns.) Persons with questions pertaining to filling out the returns should phone the Department of Revenue's incoming WATS number, 800-392-3473.

And a good idea in helping the post office is to include the Jefferson City zip code, 65101, on the mailing address. Of course, you'll need to know your social security number, return address, your own zip code, annual salary, number of dependents, dividends, interest, federal payments.

Herron Sought By FBI

WASHINGTON - Charles Lee Herron, one of five men allegedly involved in the slaying of one police officer and the critical wounding of another Jan. 16, at Nashville, has been added to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives.

When the two officers attempted to stop the car allegedly occupied by Herron and four accomplices, they were cut down by shots from a high-powered rifle. The death car was intercepted as it left a residence believed to be a gathering place for a ring of individuals suspected of cashing stolen money orders.

A search of the suspect's car, which was abandoned following the shooting, as well as a second vehicle and the residence being watched produced stolen money orders and checkwriting equipment, along with considerable amounts of inflammatory racial hatred literature. Several individuals at the residence were arrested by local police for possession of marijuana.

Herron is also wanted by Cincinnati police on an arson warrant dated Oct. 5, 1967, charging him with purposely setting fire to a building.

Herron is a Negro American who was born on April 21, 1937, at Covington, Ky. He is five feet seven inches to five feet eight inches tall, weighs 145 to 150 pounds, has a dark complexion, slender build, black hair, brown eyes, and may possibly have a short "Afro" hair style. He is also known to have a mustache and to wear dark tinted glasses. He has been employed as a clerk.

A federal warrant charging Herron with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder and assault with intent to commit murder was issued at Nashville Jan. 19.

He should be considered armed and extremely dangerous. Anyone with information concerning Herron is requested to immediately contact the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

ROOS GEARS DRIVE TO URBANITES CONTINUES TO PUSH HOME RULE

KANSAS CITY -St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos said today that as a Republican candidate for governor he was supporting revision of the state's school foundation and highway construction formulas to help urban areas.

The statement was part of Roos's plan to campaign as a metropolitan candidate, in contrast to what he called the "Rural personality and background" of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Democratic governors in the last 24 years.

Roos's position on the school foundation and highway formulas was added to previous positions he has taken in support of home rule for the St. Louis and Kansas City areas, greater state aid to mass transit and increased police protection in St. Louis county.

Advisers to Roos said that all these policies were formulated to create an image of a candidate interested primarily in the problems of the cities. His advisers say that not only are these real problems, but that the strategy is sound politics. About two-thirds of Missouri's citizens live in cities.

WOOLWORTH'S FEEDS OVER ONE MILLION EACH DAY

NEW YORK, -- From a small beginning in one Philadelphia store 60 years ago a major enterprise has developed, serving meals to more than one million people daily.

The food operations of the F.W. Woolworth Co., began as an experiment, but at the start of this year the company had 1,964 food departments in the United States and Canada. It operates 37 cafeterias; 25 of them are known as Harvest House and are open seven days a week.

Expansion is continuing, with 41 new restaurant locations scheduled to open this year, reports H. W. Bode, vice president and director of restaurant operations. Present facilities can seat nearly 100,000 customers at one time.

An idea of the volume of customers can be gained from these examples of 1967 purchases, reported by Mr. Bode, in the United States alone: 6,687,000 pounds of beef; 2,925,000 pounds of pork, including ham and bacon, 6,395,000 pounds of poultry; 4,250,000 pounds of eggs; 2,015,000 pounds of butter; and 16,785,000 pounds of potatoes.

The Woolworth official reported these examples of quantities served last year: 6,500,000 turkey dinners; 20,370,000 hamburger sandwiches and platters, and 7,100,000 pieces of apple pie.

"It is company policy to purchase locally," he said. "We buy from wholesalers and retailers in as many cities as we have stores, and every state receives some of Woolworth's purchase dollar."

Mr. Bode predicted substantial increases in produce purchases this year because of the company's continuing expansion program. "Food departments are important elements in plans for any new store operation," he said.

Car Topics

ANTI-RUST ANSWER

One of the most frustrating things about owning a car is to see it virtually rust away right before your eyes. This phenomenon is most acute in areas where your car is exposed to salt - salt on snow laden highways or salt from the ocean. But it happens everywhere.

When tires, brakes or battery have seen better days, you don't mind it nearly so much because you did receive a full measure of service from these parts, and you can have them replaced for a reasonable cost.

But a rusted out car body is a different kettle of fish. Not only is rust unsightly, it also tremendously depreciates the value of the car. And more important, rust weakened body parts afford little protection in case of an accident.

Improved design and manufacturing methods have enhanced the anti-rust qualities of today's automobiles. Some cities are successfully using an anti-rust additivie in road salt. But at the same time, cars are more and more exposed to rust producing problems.

If your car is suffering from body rust, you can have it repaired. Even badly rusted areas can be cut away and replaced with special repair panels made for this purpose. However, the sensible thing is to follow a preventive - rather than a corrective - procedure.

First, be sure the water drain holes at the bottoms of the doors and bottom sills (underneath the car) are not clogged. If rain water cannot drain, it will greatly accelerate rusting.

Second, touch up scratches that expose bare metal. You can do this yourself with a spray can or a brush. But if you have accumulated too many of these blemishes to do a neat touch-up job, a complete repainting may be in order. The cost may be less than you think if your car is basically sound.

Something else you ought to consider is having your car undercoated. This process is becoming ncreasingly popular, especially among owners who intend to keep their cars rather than trade them. Check this out with your mechanic. If he is not equipped to do this at his shop, he can recommend someone who is.

It is an ideal treatment for new cars (sort of like spraying silicone on new leather boots) or for older cars that have just been repainted and steam cleaned underneath. But for any car - new, old or in between - rust proofing is good protection at very low cost.

The DO-IT-ALL

MILNOT makes milk and cream cookery easy, economical. With no canned milk taste it's perfect for coffee and cereal. It's so rich it whips, but it's low in saturated fat because the animal fats are replaced by vegetable oils. It takes almost a quart of whole milk to make one can of MILNOT. Yet it costs just half as much.

SAUSAGE CAKE

2 cups sugar	1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 eggs	1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup MILNOT	1 teaspoon allspice
2½ cups sifted flour	½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder	1 cup raisins
1 teaspoon baking soda	1 cup chopped nuts

Cream together sausage and sugar; beat in the eggs, one at a time. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately to mixture with MILNOT. Beat well, approx. 2 minutes. Fold in nuts and raisins (plump raisins by steaming, rinsing or heating in oven). Turn into well-greased 9-inch tube pan. Bake at 350° 60-70 minutes or until done.

This may be kept in the refrigerator for several days (keep moist). Good without icing, but if icing is preferred, a caramel one is ideal.

If cows could... they'd give MILNOT.

ROOS GEARS DRIVE TO URBANITES CONTINUES TO PUSH HOME RULE

KANSAS CITY -- St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos said today that as a Republican candidate for governor he was supporting revision of the state's school foundation and highway construction formulas to help urban areas.

The statement was part of Roos's plan to campaign as a metropolitan candidate, in contrast to what he called the "Rural personality and background" of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Democratic governors in the last 24 years.

Roos's position on the school foundation and highway formulas was added to previous positions he has taken in support of home rule for the St. Louis and Kansas City areas, greater state aid to mass transit and increased police protection in St. Louis county.

Advisers to Roos said that all these policies were formulated to create an image of a candidate interested primarily in the problems of the cities. His advisers say that not only are these real problems, but that the strategy is sound politics. About two-thirds of Missouri's citizens live in cities.

WOOLWORTH'S FEEDS OVER ONE MILLION EACH DAY

NEW YORK, -- From a small beginning in one Philadelphia store 60 years ago a major enterprise has developed, serving meals to more than one million people daily.

The food operations of the F.W. Woolworth Co., began as an experiment, but at the start of this year the company had 1,964 food departments in the United States and Canada. It operates 37 cafeterias; 25 of them are known as Harvest House and are open seven days a week.

Expansion is continuing, with 41 new restaurant locations scheduled to open this year, reports H. W. Bode, vice president and director of restaurant operations. Present facilities can seat nearly 100,000 customers at one time.

An idea of the volume of customers can be gained from these examples of 1967 purchases, reported by Mr. Bode, in the United States alone: 6,687,000 pounds of beef; 2,925,000 pounds of pork, including ham and bacon, 6,395,000 pounds of poultry; 4,250,000 pounds of eggs; 2,015,000 pounds of butter; and 16,785,000 pounds of potatoes.

The Woolworth official reported these examples of quantities served last year: 6,500,000 turkey dinners; 20,370,000 hamburger sandwiches and platters, and 7,100,000 pieces of apple pie.

"It is company policy to purchase locally," he said. "We buy from wholesalers and retailers in as many cities as we have stores, and every state receives some of Woolworth's purchase dollar."

Mr. Bode predicted substantial increases in produce purchases this year because of the company's continuing expansion program. "Food departments are important elements in plans for any new store operation," he said.

Car Topics

ANTI-RUST ANSWER

One of the most frustrating things about owning a car is to see it virtually rust away right before your eyes. This phenomenon is most acute in areas where your car is exposed to salt - salt on snow laden highways or salt from the ocean. But it happens everywhere.

When tires, brakes or battery have seen better days, you don't mind it nearly so much because you did receive a full measure of service from these parts, and you can have them replaced for a reasonable cost.

But a rusted out car body is a different kettle of fish. Not only is rust unsightly, it also tremendously depreciates the value of the car. And more important, rust weakened body parts afford little protection in case of an accident.

Improved design and manufacturing methods have enhanced the anti-rust qualities of today's automobiles. Some cities are successfully using an anti-rust additivie in road salt. But at the same time, cars are more and more exposed to rust producing problems.

If your car is suffering from body rust, you can have it repaired. Even badly rusted areas can be cut away and replaced with special repair panels made for this purpose. However, the sensible thing is to follow a preventive - rather than a corrective - procedure.

First, be sure the water drain holes at the bottoms of the doors and bottom sills (underneath the car) are not clogged. If rain water cannot drain, it will greatly accelerate rusting.

Second, touch up scratches that expose bare metal. You can do this yourself with a spray can or a brush. But if you have accumulated too many of these blemishes to do a neat touch-up job, a complete repainting may be in order. The cost may be less than you think if your car is basically sound.

Something else you ought to consider is having your car undercoated. This process is becoming increasingly popular, especially among owners who intend to keep their cars rather than trade them. Check this out with your mechanic. If he is not equipped to do this at his shop, he can recommend someone who is.

It is an ideal treatment for new cars (sort of like spraying silicone on new leather boots) or for older cars that have just been repainted and steam cleaned underneath. But for any car - new, old or in between - rust proofing is good protection at very low cost.

The DO-IT-ALL

MILNOT makes milk and cream cookery easy, economical. With no canned milk taste it's perfect for coffee and cereal. It's so rich it whips, but it's low in saturated fat because the animal fats are replaced by vegetable oils. It takes almost a quart of whole milk to make one can of MILNOT. Yet it costs just half as much.

SAUSAGE CAKE

2 cups sugar	1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 eggs	1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup MILNOT	1 teaspoon allspice
2½ cups sifted flour	½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder	1 cup raisins
1 teaspoon baking soda	1 cup chopped nuts

Cream together sausage and sugar; beat in the eggs, one at a time. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately to mixture with MILNOT. Beat well, approx. 2 minutes. Fold in nuts and raisins (plump raisins by steaming, rinsing or heating in oven). Turn into well-greased 9-inch tube pan. Bake at 350° 60-70 minutes or until done.

This may be kept in the refrigerator for several days (keep moist). Good without icing, but if icing is preferred, a caramel one is ideal.

If cows could... they'd give MILNOT.

Rangers Will Go on Dirty in State Parks

JEFFERSON CITY – For the first time the Missouri state park board will have trained uniformed park rangers in some of the state parks this year. Joseph Jaeger, Jr., Director of Parks said that Chief Ranger, E. Lynn Montgomery, will have is our desire to have enforcerangers in marked patrol cars patroling Montauk, Bennett Spring, Roaring River, Lake of the Ozarks, and Meramec State Parks starting in March.

Six additional rangers will be activated on May 1, for Lake Wappapello, Johnson Shut-Ins, Big Spring, Knob Noster, Thousand Hills and Babler State Parks. All Rangers will have marked cars equipped with fire extinguishers and first-aid equipment. Each new Ranger will be required to attend the State Highway Patrol Police Academy before going on duty.

The 71st General Assembly enacted the legislation granting the Park Rangers the same powers now held by other peace officers to maintain order, preserve the peace and make arrests for violation of law in all land under the jurisdiction and control of the Board, except that said Park Rangers shall not have the right of search and seizure.

Funds to employe regular Park Rangers were made available by the 74th general assembly.

Jaeger said, "The new trained rangers will be more efficient in performing their duties. It ment through education, also the control of vandalism and littering through education, rather than force. However, the rangers will be instructed to enforce the laws of the State of Missouri and the rules and regulations of the State Park Board."

The Rangers will be available to assist park guests in emergencies, protect the visitor and their equipment- all to make their vacation more enjoyable.

The new ranger uniform will consist of navy-blue trousers with a light blue stripe down each leg. The shirt is light blue with dark blue shoulder straps and pocket flaps.

The shoulder insignia is two shades of blue, gold, and black with the motto, "Service and Protection" in the center. The badge is chrome with the State seal in the center and the wording, "Missouri State Park Ranger" around the edges.

St. Patrick Fact and Fancy Intermingle

By R. R. Thomasson
In the Kansas City Times

One wonders if the only thing real about St. Patrick's day is the date itself. Certainly there appears to be a wealth of delightful fancy intermingled with the facts, if any.

We do know that March 17 is the day on which many people follow the custom of wearing a bit of green or even a sprig of shamrock. Others recognize it as the time to plant Irish potatoes. But the potatoes are South American instead of Irish and no one seems to know for sure that the green he is wearing is shamrock.

Unsure of Dates

As for St. Patrick himself, the first story of his life ever written was set down some 200 years after he died. March 17 is the date of his supposed death; no one even pretends to know when he was born.

There is controversary as to where he was born, but it is generally agreed that he was not a native Irishman.

In the period following the death of the good saint, the Irish believed implicitly in leprechauns, fairies, brownies and all the "little people." Irish lore is filled with stories of their remarkable deeds. In this connection it is well to understand the origin of the fairies and the difference between a fairy and a leprechaun. The Irish fairies are angels who were banished from heaven when they failed to take a stand against Lucifer. When Lucifer was finally consigned to the pit, those angels who had not fought against him were sent not to the lower world but merely to the earth.

Perhaps it was by special dispensation that they landed on the Emerald Isle rather than a less agreeable place. Both fairies and the Irish people consider their earthly home the next best thing to Paradise. The fairies love music and the dance, but dislike schools, teachers and book learning of all kinds. Their interest is in nature. Though they frequently befriend those they love, they are capable of great evil if offended.

The Mischievous Leprechauns

The leprechauns are the most mischievous of all the little folk. Their father was an evil spirit and their mother a degenerate fairy. A prominent daffodil breeder of Northern Ireland has given the situation a pleasing modern tune by giving the name Leprechaun to a daisy daffodil. It seems not to have minded being transplanted from its native land to my Missouri garden where it has received an enthusiastic welcome.

After many years of this agreeable arrangement a girl on the eve of her wedding was persuaded by her overburdened mother to fetch a pail of water. The mother insisted that it would be all right in view of the fact she was as good as married since the banns had been cried.

Village Wiped Out

The young lover went with his sweetheart and the couple became so engrossed with plans for wedding that they forgot to replace the lid on the fountain. A stream burst forth engulfing the village and drowning everyone except the girl and unmarried girls were never to raise the lid.

An enlarged lake is proof of the flood. The narrator ends the story by saying:

"It is too bad entirely that the wans that got away were the wans that be rights, ought to be drooced first."

The story, along with other Irish legends, is told in a book entitled "Irish Wonders" by D. R. McAnally, one-time professor of English literature at the University of Missouri.

Identifying the shamrock appears to be as difficult as verifying Irish legends. The Royal Irish academy failed to solve the riddle when it made an appeal for the true shamrock. The and returns were about equally divided between white clover and yellow trefoil, with white clover (Trifolium repens) having a slight edge.

Origins of Shamrock

An old book of plant lore by Richard Folkard, published in London in 1884, says that the word "shamrock" is from the Erse word "seamrog," meaning little trefoil. However, he goes on to say that, "as to what was the herb which furnished the saint with so excellent an illustration of the Three in One, there is amongst botanists much dispute, but the plants that for a long time past have been sold in Dublin and London on St. Patrick's day as the national badge are the Black Nonsuch and the Dutch clover."

He gives the botanical names as Medicago lupulina for Black Nonsuch and Trifolium repens as that for Dutch clover.

A third contender, Folkard says, is wood sorrel (Oxalis acetosella). The wood sorrel, he says, "... is called by the old herbalists Shamrock, and is proven in olden times to have been eaten by the Irish. . .It may have been the plant picked by St. Patrick."

Shaw's Legend Questioned

The Irish have given St. Patrick credit for having rid the land of snakes, but there are those who are convinced that this is another bit of fancy and that Ireland never had snakes. In the "Tripartite Life of St. Patrick," by Whiley Stokes of Oxford, there appears to be only one reference to snakes and that is a footnote as follows:

"Now the Island of Ireland has been set in the west. As Adam's paradise stands at the sunrise so Ireland stands at the sunset...As paradise was without beasts, without snake...without a mouse, without a frog, so is Ireland in the same manner without any harmful animal, save only the wolf. . ."

Whatever questions are raised about the authenticity of St. Patrick, shamrocks, snakes and tales of leprechauns and fairies, there is no doubt the Irish are a lovable people who have enriched our American culture.

HERITAGE:

Where else is found the endearing smile,
The handclasp of the Emerald Isle?
The nearness to a storied past,
The dream, the thought that come so fast?
The underlying sadness heard
In Irish song,
In Irish word?

SMOKING

I went to the doctor because I had lung cancer.
He said to quit smoking was the only answer.

I said I would have to try,
Because I didn't want to die.

I was doing just fine,
But everyone was to kind.

They offered me one coming or going
They offered me one raining or snowing.

I always resisted and never said yes,
I always said no I don't guess.

On what I would have given for a cigarette just then,
But I knew if I started it would be the end.

I finally gave up and took one little cigarette,
Then I said to my self I've started again I bet.

I knew it was the end,
I lost all my mind.

I was dieing and I knew it,
So I picked up the pack and I threw it.

But I didn't die,
And I wondered why.

I knew the answer before I asked it,
I've quit smoking and I'm glad I quit.

Another former Bell City resident, Mrs. Charles Partain, holds the office of Esther in the Salem chapter. Before returning home, Mr. and Mrs. Calliotte visited Mr. and Mrs. Partain.

Mrs. Fannie Barks received a severe cut in her right ankle when she fell on a street as she was enroute to town. Her son, Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Barks, took her to a Dexter physician. Stitches were required to close the cut, which was caused when her eye glasses broke.

Lester Wilcox and daughter Ethel attended the meeting of Barracks 2440 of World War I veterans at Bloomfield. He was dismissed from Veterans Hospital at Poplar Bluff, where he was treated for pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Redman were guests of her nephew Lynn Hinkle of Advance to the Blue and Gold banquet in the school cafeteria. About 300 persons were present. Thirty Advance Cub Scouts participated in a pine wood derby.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Weeks and family and her mother, Mrs. John McBride and husband, were guests of Mrs. McBride's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Livingston and children moved from Dexter to a farm near Bell City.

The Blue-Gold banquet of the Bell City Cub Scouts was held at the school cafeteria. Jack Spencer is cubmaster. Mrs. James Kinder and Mrs. Mary L. Bollinger are den mothers and Mrs. Ronnie Weeks is assistant den mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Bollinger of Florida were weekend guests of his parents. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bollinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus Henson, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lape, Mrs. Ethel Limbaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kelso, members of Saphire Chapter OES, were guests of the Zalma chapter when their district officer of the 49th district made her official visit.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Chapman and baby was destroyed by fire. The house was in the Ardeola community. They are at the homes of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Chapman of Bell City and her mother at Ardeola.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Redman attended the supper given by the Methodist women of the Advance church. Proceeds went to the building fund for renovation of the church basement.

Mrs. Allie Owen of Cape Girardeau, formerly of Bell City, is spending the winter in Bradenton, Fla. She reports the weather is too cold for fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Limbaugh had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Art Barnard and sons of Wayne City, Ill. They were guests at Sunday morning worship services of the Methodist Church.

Members of the Methodist Church MYF were entertained with a party in the church recreation room. Mrs. Paul Barks and the Rev. John W. Jarrell were sponsors.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Spears of Lutesville, formerly of Bell City, were feted to a household shower in the fellowship hall of the General Baptist Church by women of the church. The Spears lost their home and its contents in a fire two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Perry and daughter Christy spent the weekend with her father, C. L. Murdock of Puxico, who underwent surgery at Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff. Murdock, 82, is listed in good condition.

Mrs. Joe Redman has been advised that Mrs. Mattie Coogleton, 103, of Pine Bluff, Ark., formerly of Bell City, has had the flu. She is reported in good condition. Her daughter, Mrs. Novel Dugan of Pine Bluff, is in Pine Bluff hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tanner and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Finney had as guests their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Finney and children of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Finney are parents of a daughter born at a St. Louis hospital Jan. 31. She is the second child. Mrs. Finney is the former Millie Tanner.

In other parts of the world fairy stories are related to a fairy world separate and apart from everyday life, a sort of Shangri La if you please. Not so in Ireland. There they are a part of the immediate countryside, An illustration is the story of Lough Allen in County Leitrium. The fairies in that neighborhood held sway over a fountain and dismissed to a village developing around it only under the condition that it be covered with a stone structure and the basin into which the water flowed never be left uncovered. Boys under age and unmarried girls were never to raise the lid.

Funds to employe regular Park Rangers were made available by the 74th general assembly.

Jaeger said, "The new trained rangers will be more efficient in performing their duties. It is our desire to have enforcement through education, also the control of vandalism and littering through education, rather than force. However, the rangers will be instructed to enforce the laws of the State of Missouri and the rules and regulations of the State Park Board."

The rangers will be available to assist park guests in emergencies, protect the visitor and their equipment all to make their vacation more enjoyable. The new ranger uniform will consist of navy blue trousers with a light blue stripe down each leg. The shirt is light blue with dark blue shoulder straps and pocket flaps.

The shoulder insignia is two shades of blue, gold, and black with the motto, "Service and Protection" in the center. The badge is chrome with the State seal in the center and the words, "Missouri State Park Ranger" around the edges.

St. Patrick Fact and Fancy Intermingle

By R. R. Thomasson
In the Kansas City Times

One wonders if the only thing real about St. Patrick's day is the date itself. Certainly there appears to be a wealth of delightful fancy intermingled with the facts, if any.

We do know that March 17 is the day on which many people follow the custom of wearing a bit of green or even a sprig of shamrock. Others recognize it as the time to plant Irish potatoes, but the potatoes are South American instead of Irish and no one seems to know for sure that the green he is wearing is shamrock.

Unsure of Dates

As for St. Patrick himself, the first story of his life ever written was set down some 200 years after he died. March 17 is the day of his supposed death; no one even pretends to know when he was born.

There is controversy as to where he was born, but it is generally agreed that he was not a native Irishman.

In the period following the death of the good saint, the Irish believed implicitly in leprechauns, fairies, brownies and all the "little people." Irish lore is filled with stories of their remarkable deeds. In this connection it is well to understand the origin of the fairies and the difference between a fairy and a leprechaun. The Irish fairies are angels who were banished from heaven when they failed to take a stand against Lucifer. When Lucifer was finally consigned to the pit, those angels who had not fought against him were sent not to the lower world but merely to the earth.

Perhaps it was by special dispensation that they landed on the Emerald Isle rather than a less agreeable place. Both fairies and the Irish people consider their earthly home the next best thing to Paradise. The fairies love music and the dance, but dislike school, teachers and book learning of all kinds. Their interest is in nature. Though they frequently befriend those they love, they are capable of great evil if offended.

The Mischievous Leprechauns

The leprechauns are the most mischievous of all the little folk. Their father was an evil spirit and their mother a degenerate fairy. A prominent daffodil breeder of Northern Ireland has given the situation a pleasing modern tune by giving the name Leprechaun to a daffodil. It seems not to have minded being transplanted from

SMOKING

I went to the doctor because I had lung cancer,
He said to quit smoking was the only answer.

I said I would have to try,
Because I didn't want to die.

I was doing just fine,
But everyone was to kind.

They offered me one coming or going
They offered me one raining or snowing.

I always resisted and never said yes,
I always said no I don't guess.

On what I would have given for a cigarette just then,
But I knew if I started it would be the end.

I finally gave up and took one little cigarette,
Then I said to my self I've started again I bet.

I knew it was the end,
I lost all my mind.

I was dieing and I knew it,
So I picked up the pack and I threw it.

But I didn't die,
And I wondered why.

I knew the answer before I asked it,
I've quit smoking and I'm glad I quit.

Farmer Charged With Helping Convicts Escape

LANSING, Kan. (AP) -- A farmer near the Kansas State Prison honor farm is charged on a warrant issued in Leavenworth County with aiding and assisting two inmates to escape.

Charles D. McAtee, dirgctor of penal institutions in Kansas, said that an undetermined amount of property stolen from the prison had been found on the farm.

The farmer, Charles E. Tucker, 44, was arrested last Friday following an investigation by the Leavenworth County sheriff's office and Kansas Bureau of Investigation agents directed by McAtee.

McAtee said statements obtained in the investigation indicated that prison property had been traded to Tucker for liquor.

Six inmates were reportedly placed in the adjustment and treatment building, formerly known as the jail or solitary confinement.

McAtee said evidence was uncovered that Tucker drove inmates Wallace A. Blair, 31, and Jack Martin King, 36, to Kansas City last Nov. 18. Blair, who was serving a sentence for burglary, was captured Christmas night at Perry, Kas. King was apprehended in Des Moines, Dec. 28. He was serving a sentence for first degree robbery at the time he fled the honor farm.

McAtee said a minimal amount of stolen property was found on Tucker's farm. The property included clothing and canned goods.

ON THE JOB TRAINING

The Job Corps is spending about $9,000 on each person it trains. The training is, of course, theoretical and does not necessarily qualify the graduate for a specific job. We have said it before, but it needs to be said again -- that the best way to provide jobs for the unemployed is to give them on-the-job training in industry. Of course, this will be expensive and a headache for the industries attempting to provide jobs for the unemployed, but it will cost much less in the long run than to maintain an increasing number of people in idleness.

If government would stop spending the tens of billions of dollars now paid out for unemployment, dependent children and a variety of welfare payments made because the heads of families are not working, and would reduce the taxes on business by a corresponding amount, we believe business could readily pick up the load and do a far better job of it at a fraction of the cost of attempting to do it the government way.

Government-administered relief aggravates the problem and causes an increasing amount to be spent year after year. On-the-Job training provided by business tends to solve the problem. Along with this program should go some arrangement whereby people in training should be paid what might be termed an "apprentice" wage, as distinguished from the full union scale, until such time as the trainee is qualified fully to discharge the duties of the job.

We believe an arrangement of this kind would save the taxpayers billions of dollars and would be far more effective in providing jobs for those who need them. At the same time it would allay much of the frustration and anger of those who are honestly seeking work and cannot find it. Furthermore, it would deprive those who do not want to work of any excuse for remaining idle.

Coffee Corner

—by Cherie—

I told Charles after we'd been married for seven years and I didn't even get the least little bit of the seven-year itch, that he'd better watch out cause when that bug did bite it would really bite hard, and I do believe it has.

Charles was just telling the jelly lady (we were having our little daily soiree when he arrived), and myself that he planned to go fishing in a week or two along with her husband, and some of the other fellows.

I hollered -- remember, he just returned from a week's fishing in Florida -- and when he wanted to know why, I informed him the nine-year itch bug had just bit!

I am sick and tired of husbands going off with the fellows while all wives do is either go off with husbands, or stay home with children -- what a lousey choice!

I raved and ranted so about how it was my time to do something, and maybe even a little bit naughty something, that yesterday when the jelly lady's husband came to see mine, and he wasn't there, she immediately phoned to get him back home (must have been checking out the back window,- see, she believed me).

Just wish I'd impressed Charles half as much with my threats of naughtiness as I did her. Anyway, you just wait I'm really going to do something to get the whole town talking.

1. Take a drink of liquor in the morning and go downtown and let everyone get a good whiff of my breath (I won't use Scope)
2. Forget to pick the kids up at nursery school and get all the mothers irate.
3. Wink at a stranger (course this involves me putting my glasses on to see if he is familiar or not, and what with the yanking them off and winking violently he'd probably just end up thinking I had St. Vitus dance or something.
4. Dye my hair red and wear a micro-skirt-Charles says this would only amuse, not shock.
5. Fix cassaroles for Charles all week long -- I'm sure I'm going to do this and will serve the ole fool right for saying I would amuse.
6. Run for some public office like representative or the school board, or dog catcher (this last we are in dire need of around my place so perhaps this had best be my choice).
7. Go out to dinner and to a movie by myself, if I can only manage to save enough money up out of my unbalanced budget.
8. Do the Bugolu at the next country club dance (I can't even spell it much less do it).
9. Go around telling everyone I know something spicy about their best friends -- mass confusion, and I could just sit all day on the phone chatting with the calls I'd get.
10. Get a divorce, but Charles couldn't afford it.

Just you wait and watch, I can tell you it's really going to be something terrible maybe I'll just settle for sticking bubble gum under all the seats at the movie.

QUICK QUIZ

A—It is a convention in map making to put the northern part at the top. Thus, if no directions are shown, it may be taken for granted that the top is north.

Q—What is the Southern Cross?

Q—Whose likeness appears on the award of the Order of the Purple Heart?

Scully and Crader On Parley Program

Dr. Earl Crader

MEMPHIS -- Dr. Mark Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau, will speak at a spring drive-in conference of the West Tennessee Education Association March 16 at Jackson State Community College.

Dr. Earl Crader, WTEA executive secretary, will report on the "State of the Association."

As director of the University extension service, Dr. Crader has taught or supervised classes in these countries as well as in other areas of West Tennessee. Dr. Crader has contributed to education in these counties -- as well as the rest of west Tennessee -- as executive secretary of the 12,000-member regional education association.

At present Dr. Crader is supervising an expanded program of service by the WTEA as well as teaching classes on the campus at Memphis and for the extension division.

Dr. F. E. Wright, president of Jackson State Community College, will speak at the dinner. Dean R. M. Robison of Memphis State University will be toastmaster. The dinner will be served in the elementary school cafeteria at Bolivar.

At Memphis State Dr. Crader established the educational leadership seminar which brought outstanding speakers to the campus. The new doctoral program at MSU was initiated in Dr. Crader's department. He also established an intership program which permits a student of school administration to receive on-the-job training.

Dr. Crader's students at Memphis State number in the thousands and include men who are now college presidents, college deans, and school superintendents. He came to Memphis State in 1952 to establish the department of educational administration and supervision. He served as chairman of the department until this year and built it into a seven-faculty member department.

He became executive secretary of the WTEA in 1959 and has worked to increase the program and membership. Prior to coming to Memphis, Dr. Crader was superintendent of schools in Diehlstadt, from 1928 until 1952. He entered the education profession as a teacher in the rural schools of Scott County, in 1920.

Dr. Crader has served as a visiting professor at the University of Tennessee and Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau and also taught at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville. He has a doctor's degree from George Peabody, a master's degree from the school, and a Bachelor of Science degree from Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

He is the father of Dwight Crader of Sikeston, Mo.

He is a member of many education associations and honor groups and served as president of the Southeast Missouri Education association. Dr. Crader has made many commencement addressed -- both college and high school -- and has given countless speeches before Parent-Teachers Association, teachers' organizations, and service clubs. He has appeared on radio and television and has written professional articles.

Congressman Urges No Halt in Vietnam War

Donald E. Lukens

Pro Compliments Reporter for Story On Safe Cracking

"I'm one of a few Quakers who will speak out on our commitments in Vietnam. Every southeast Asian wants the United States forces to remain there, in spite of what a few leaders and beatnicks may say through our press and television media. What you people can do here in the Bootheel of Missouri, will determine the nation's future."

"I voted not to move the gold from Ft. Knox, because we haven't enough to pay our debts," he said. "You may ask what is wrong with America. We have no right to send our young men overseas if we don't send them everything they need. You know and I know that Russia has never let go of any country they have ever helped, and the war in Vietnam is like a fire sale. If it works they'll do it all over the little country.

"President Johnson may turn the lights off at the White House yet he'll add two and one-half billion dollars to the payroll. All it takes is an executive order to strike four and one-half dollars from the budget, and stop hiring so many federal employes.

"You don't win a football game by stopping at the 50-yard line, the same is true in Vietnam."

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)— An appreciative reader wrote Mary Helen Burrowes, police and fire reporter for the St. Joseph News-Press, commenting professionally, almost, on a story she wrote about safe crackers and the terms they use in talking about their activities.

The letter:

"Dear Miss Burrowes:

"I read your article in Thursday's News-Press and was interested very much because I am, according to some law enforcement agencies, an alleged professional safe burglar. I must admit your terminology was quite accurate and the methods of safecracking described were also quite authentic.

"You were quite right in stating that safe burglars in majority carry no firearms. There is really no need for this as little chance exists of possible violence. If a burglar were capable of or inclined toward violence in all probability he would turn to armed robbery. I feel that if apprehended during the commission of a burglary it would be much more acceptable to myself to go to prison than to do any physical harm to a police officer or businessman."

Silver Coins Bring Above Cash Value

Speculators, prompted by the current high price of silver, are paying a premium for 90 per cent silver U.S. coins— those minted in 1964 and before.

They're gambling that the government will lift its ban on private citizens melting the coins. Melted down the silver can be sold for more than the face value of the coins.

The U.S. Treasury, which opposes lifting the ban, has been accumulating as many of the "old" silver coins as it can on the theory that any profit derived from melting should go to the government.

"I'm not gambling," says Joel Coen of Coen-Messer Co. in New York, "my customers are. I've got customers all over the country. A customer calls me up and says 'Get me 50 bags' (of silver coins), and I get them for him."

The premiums Coen and his partner, Dan Messer, pay for the "old" silver coins range from $1.65 for a silver dollar to 10.3 cents for a dime. A half dollar gets 53 cents and a quarter draws 25¾ cents.

"We're being swamped with silver coins," says Coen, gesturing at five men waiting their turn in the small store, each clutching a box or a bag stuffed with at least $100 worth of coins. "We get 40 to 50 people a day. They come from all over— subway change people, cab drivers, vending machine people, bank tellers, bartenders, the whole bit."

For years, the Treasury held the price of American silver at a ceiling of $1.29 an ounce despite the fact that silver consumption was outstripping production.

In an effort to get more silver on the market, the Coinage Act of 1965 eliminated all silver from the dime and the quarter and reduced the silver content of the half dollar from 90 to 40 per cent. The government also began removing silver certificates from circulation but they can be redeemed for silver bullion until June 24.

As the demand for silver continued to outstrip supply, the Treasury finally abandoned its $1.29 an ounce price last July and the price of an ounce of silver since has soared as high as $2.17— although it varies from day to day.

Coen says his firm did a gross business of between $10 million and $15 million in 1967.

"I'll keep doing this as long as I have customers," Coen says. "The minute I don't have customers, I quit. You can bet your life we're not going to be left holding the bag."

BYE, BYE, BLACKBIRD

Cooperate or Starve!

The world is "on a collision course with disaster" -- that disaster is starvation. It has been estimated that in the next two decades worldwide food supply must be increased by 50 per cent and in many heavily populated areas by at least 100 per cent in the same period of time.

Through advanced technology, the developed nations using modern agricultural chemicals, starvation is widespread and insufficient food is a chronic condition of life. Unless this imbalance can be corrected, the chance for any stable peace among the nations is in the long run virtually nil. A hungry individual or nation will sooner or later take desperate measures to wrest from his more affluent neighbor that which he must have to stay alive. The deteriorating world food picture and ways to improve the world's capacity to feed itself were the subjects under consideration during a recent annual meeting of this nation's leading producers of agricultural chemicals. The role of pesticides in stimulating food production was one of the main topics discussed.

Agricultural chemicals have become a major factor in making the U.S. farmer the most productive on earth. The private enterprise, profit incentive system has encouraged investment in research, production facilities and marketing with the result that out of almost 500 individual pesticides, 364 originated in the United States. In the light of this, together with the estimate that it will take a sixfold increase in pesticide usage in both developed and underdeveloped countries to accomplish the food production and storage protection job which must be done, it is apparent that responsibility for increased world food production which fall heavily on the United States.

The U.S. agricultural chemicals industry is now cooperating with international organizations and trade associations of other nations to insure that artificial barriers, such as prohibitive tariffs or unrealistic pesticide tolerance standards for minute traces of chemicals in food, do not restrict free movement between countries of surplus food or of the chemicals required to protect corps both in production and storage. There can be food for all through an unremitting worldwide effort -- and international cooperation of the highest order.

Long Among Loudest Foes Of Federal Record Keeping

NEW YORK (AP) — "Whatever privacy remains for the American citizen, it remains because the federal government is presently too inefficient to pull all its personal information files together."

This statement, made by the head of a congressional subcommittee, Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., contains a critically important word: presently.

The fact is that this inefficiency can be eliminated almost immediately by the electronic computer, a tool made precisely for this job of gathering, processing, interrelating, comparing and retrieving files.

And, as might be expected, pressure inevitably continues for the federal government to apply this computer tool to the job, to create a federal data bank from which could be drawn personal information on citizens by the mere tap of a giner on a console button.

The information on personal history so retrieved from the millions of Social Security, police, FBI, military and income tax files would be used by business, government and the professions ostensibly to serve man.

This "service" would include better government planning for health and welfare, better marketing methods by industry, perhaps tighter federal budget estimates, more efficient personnel practices in business and so on and one.

But, a growing number of critics believe that in turning the machine on itself, mankind is endangering the rights of personal privacy.

In the view of critics, the electronic computer's hunger for facts, its almost unlimited ability to regurgitate these facts for an endless number of uses, and its amorality, have now brought it to a confrontation with man, its creator.

At issue are profound questions regarding man's future. Does man, for example, really need all this information or is he simply being enticed into using the machine because it's there? Is the machine tricking man into creating the need?

This information is, of course, available right at the moment without a central computer setup. But the danger, as many see it, is that the centralization of this information and its retrieval in seconds, may be an excuse for thereby using it.

—by Cherie—

I told Charles after we'd been married for seven years and I didn't even get the least little bit of the seven-year itch, that he'd better watch out cause when that bug did bite it would really bite hard, and I do believe it has.

Charles was just telling the jelly lady (we were having our little daily soiree when he arrived), and myself that he planned to go fishing in a week or two along with her husband, and some of the other fellows.

I hollered -- remember, he just returned from a week's fishing in Florida -- and when he wanted to know why, I informed him the nine-year itch bug had just bit!

I am sick and tired of husbands going off with the fellows while all wives do is either go off with husbands, or stay home with children -- what a lousey choice!

I raved and ranted so about how it was my time to do something, and maybe even a little bit naughty something, that yesterday when the jelly lady's husband came to see mine, and he wasn't there, she immediately phoned to get him back home (must have been checking out the back window,-see, she believed me).

Just wish I'd impressed Charles half as much with my threats of naughtiness as I did her. Anyway, you just wait I'm really going to do something to get the whole town talking.

1. Take a drink of liquor in the morning and go downtown and let everyone get a good whiff of my breath (I won't use Scope)
2. Forget to pick the kids up at nursery school and get all the mothers irate.
3. Wink at a stranger (course this involves me putting my glasses on to see if he is familiar or not, and what with the yanking them off and winking violently he'd probably just end up thinking I had St. Vitus dance or something.
4. Dye my hair red and wear a micro-skirt-Charles says this would only amuse, not shock.
5. Fix cassaroles for Charles all week long -- I'm sure I'm going to do this and will serve the ole fool right for saying I would amuse.
6. Run for some public office like representative or the school board, or dog catcher (this last we are in dire need of around my place so perhaps this had best be my choice).
7. Go out to dinner and to a movie by myself, if I can only manage to save enough money up out of my unbalanced budget.
8. Do the Bugolu at the next country club dance (I can't even spell it much less do it).
9. Go around telling everyone I know something spicy about their best friends -- mass confusion, and I could just sit all day on the phone chatting with the calls I'd get.
10. Get a divorce, but Charles couldn't affort it.

Just you wait and watch, I can tell you it's really going to be something terrible maybe I'll just settle for sticking bubble gum under all the seats at the movie.

QUICK QUIZ

A—It is a convention in map making to put the northern part at the top. Thus, if no directions are shown, it may be taken for granted that the top is north.

Q—What is the Southern Cross?

A—This is the popular name for a southern constellation, Crux. Its four bright stars serve as a guide to the south celestial pole.

Q—Whose likeness appears on the award of the Order of the Purple Heart?

Scully and Crader On Parley Program

Dr. Earl Crader

MEMPHIS -- Dr. Mark Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau, will speak at a spring drive-in conference of the West Tennessee Education Association March 16 at Jackson State Community College.

Dr. Earl Crader, WTEA executive secretary, will report on the "State of the Association."

As director of the University extension service, Dr. Crader has taught or supervised classes in these countries as well as in other areas of West Tennessee. Dr. Crader has contributed to education in these counties -- as well as the rest of west Tennessee -- as executive secretary of the 12,000-member regional education association.

At present Dr. Crader is supervising an expanded program of service by the WTEA as well as teaching classes on the campus at Memphis and for the extension division.

Dr. F. E. Wright, president of Jackson State Community College, will speak at the dinner. Dean R. M. Robison of Memphis State University will be toastmaster. The dinner will be served in the elementary school cafeteria at Bolivar.

At Memphis State Dr. Crader established the educational leadership seminar which brought outstanding speakers to the campus. The new doctoral program at MSU was initiated in Dr. Crader's department. He also established an intership program which permits a student of school administration to receive on-the-job training.

Dr. Crader's students at Memphis State number in the thousands and include men who are now college presidents, college deans, and school superintendents. He came to Memphis State in 1952 to establish the department of educational administration and supervision. He served as chairman of the department until this year and built it into a seven-faculty member department.

He became executive secretary of the WTEA in 1959 and has worked to increase the program and membership. Prior to coming to Memphis, Dr. Crader was superintendent of schools in Diehlstadt, from 1928 until 1952. He entered the education profession as a teacher in the rural schools of Scott County, in 1920.

Dr. Crader has served as a visiting professor at the University of Tennessee and Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau and also taught at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville. He has a doctor's degree from George Peabody, a master's degree from the school, and a Bachelor of Science degree from Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

He is the father of Dwight Crader of Sikeston, Mo.

He is a member of many education associations and honor groups and served as president of the Southeast Missouri Education association. Dr. Crader has made many commencement addressed -- both college and high school -- and has given countless speeches before Parent-Teachers Association, teachers' organizations, and service clubs. He has appeared on radio and television and has written professional articles.

Silver Coins Bring Above Cash Value

Speculators, prompted by the current high price of silver, are paying a premium for 90 per cent silver U.S. coins— those minted in 1964 and before.

They're gambling that the government will lift its ban on private citizens melting the coins. Melted down the silver can be sold for more than the face value of the coins.

The U.S. Treasury, which opposes lifting the ban, has been accumulating as many of the "old" silver coins as it can on the theory that any profit derived from melting should go to the government.

"I'm not gambling," says Joel Coen of Coen-Messer Co. in New York, "my customers are. I've got customers all over the country. A customer calls me up and says 'Get me 50 bags' (of silver coins), and I get them for him."

The premiums Coen and his partner, Dan Messer, pay for the "old" silver coins range from $1.65 for a silver dollar to 10.3 cents for a dime. A half dollar gets 53 cents and a quarter draws 25¾ cents.

"We're being swamped with silver coins," says Coen, gesturing at five men waiting their turn in the small store, each clutching a box or a bag stuffed with at least $100 worth of coins. "We get 40 to 50 people a day. They come from all over— subway change people, cab drivers, vending machine people, bank tellers, bartenders, the whole bit."

The law of supply and demand is responsible for the activity in silver.

For years, the Treasury held the price of American silver at a ceiling of $1.29 an ounce despite the fact that silver consumption was outstripping production.

In an effort to get more silver on the market, the Coinage Act of 1965 eliminated all silver from the dime and the quarter and reduced the silver content of the half dollar from 90 to 40 per cent. The government also began removing silver certificates from circulation but they can be redeemed for silver bullion until June 24.

As the demand for silver continued to outstrip supply, the Treasury finally abandoned its $1.29 an ounce price last July and the price of an ounce of silver since has soared as high as $2.17— although it varies from day to day.

Coen says his firm did a gross business of between $10 million and $15 million in 1967.

"I'll keep doing this as long as I have customers," Coen says. "The minute I don't have customers, I quit. You can bet your life we're not going to be left holding the bag."

Congressman Urges No Halt in Vietnam War

Donald E. Lukens

"I'm one of a few Quakers who will speak out on our commitments in Vietnam. Every southeast Asian wants the United States forces to remain there, in spite of what a few leaders and beatnicks may say through our press and television media. What you people can do here in the Bootheel of Missouri, will determine the nation's future."

"I voted not to move the gold from Ft. Knox, because we haven't enough to pay our debts," he said. "You may ask what is wrong with America. We have no right to send our young men overseas if we don't send them everything they need. You know and I know that Russia has never let go of any country they have ever helped, and the war in Vietnam is like a fire sale. If it works they'll do it all over the little country.

"President Johnson may turn the lights off at the White House yet he'll add two and one-half billion dollars to the payroll. All it takes is an executive order to strike four and one-half dollars from the budget, and stop hiring so many federal employes.

Pro Compliments Reporter for Story On Safe Cracking

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)— An appreciative reader wrote Mary Helen Burrowes, police and fire reporter for the St. Joseph News-Press, commenting profesionally, almost, on a story she wrote about safe crackers and the terms they use in talking about their activities.

The letter:

"Dear Miss Burrowes:

"I read your article in Thursday's News-Press and was interested very much because I am, according to some law enforcement agencies, an alleged professional safe burglar. I must admit your terminology was quite accurate and the methods of safecracking described were also quite authentic.

"You were quite right in stating that safe burglars in majority carry no firearms. There is really no need for this as little chance exists of possible violence. If a burglar were capable of or inclined toward violence in all probability he would turn to armed robbery. I feel that if apprehended during the commission of a burglary it would be much more acceptable to myself to go to prison than to do any physical harm to a police officer or businessman."

Cooperate or Starve!

The world is "on a collision course with disaster" -- that disaster is starvation. It has been estimated that in the next two decades worldwide food supply must be increased by 50 per cent and in many heavily populated areas by at least 100 per cent in the same period of time.

Through advanced technology, the developed nations using modern agricultural chemicals, starvation is widespread and insufficient food is a chronic condition of life. Unless this imbalance can be corrected, the chance for any stable peace among the nations is in the long run virtually nil. A hungry individual or nation will sooner or later take desperate measures to wrest from his more affluent neighbor that which he must have to stay alive. The deteriorating world food picture and ways to improve the world's capacity to feed itself were the subjects under consideration during a recent annual meeting of this nation's leading producers of agricultural chemicals. The role of pesticides in stimulating food production was one of the main topics discussed.

Agricultural chemicals have become a major factor in making the U.S. farmer the most productive on earth. The private enterprise, profit incentive system has encouraged investment in research, production facilities and marketing with the result that out of almost 500 individual pesticides, 364 originated in the United States. In the light of this, together with the estimate that it will take a sixfold increase in pesticide usage in both developed and underdeveloped countries to accomplish the food production and storage protection job which must be done, it is apparent that responsibility for increased world food production which fall heavily on the United States.

The U.S. agricultural chemicals industry is now cooperating with international organizations and trade associations of other nations to insure that artificial barriers, such as prohibitive tariffs or unrealistic pesticide tolerance standards for minute traces of chemicals in food, do not restrict free movement between countries of surplus food or of the chemicals required to protect corps both in production and storage. There can be food for all through an unremitting worldwide effort -- and international cooperation of the highest order.

Make Regular Mixer From Portable Mixer

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Betty that I made a do-it-yourself mixer with my portable one. I first set the bowl in the sink on top of a wet sponge so the bowl does not slip. I move the bowl far enough from the edge of the sink so the mixer rests on the bowl and the mixer handle on the top of the sink drainboard. The bowl must be approximately the same depth as the sink bowl or the mixer will fall.

To prevent splattering, I cover the bowl top with waxed paper that is long enough to reach up and slip under the switch of the mixer to hold it up. I even use this method for "churning" butter with my electric mixer.—ELMA

DEAR GIRLS—I also found that my portable mixer worked well when the bowl on the wet sponge was set in a corner of the sink with the mixer resting on the side of the bowl and against the corner of the sink.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have a method that works well for using a portable mixer without having to hold it. I use a wire cake-cooler or wire broiler-rack. Insert the part of beater into which you attach the actual beaters between the wires, then attach the beaters and place it all over a bowl of the right depth and size so the rack will fit well over the top of the bowl. When something needs lengthy beating, I turn the bowl now and then or scrape down the sides as you would with a larger mixer.—VERDA

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My son, 6, has been home from school because of illness and he spent one entire afternoon making animal shapes and the letters of the alphabet with wire ties that came off bread and bun bags. If I get a dollar, it goes to him as the idea was his own.—MRS. E. L. for GREG

Washington Report

by Senator Symington

MISSISSIPPI-MISSOURI RIVER SYSTEM -- With the steadily increased demands for fresh water, the result of a rising population and expansion of agriculture and industry, growing attention is being given to the great advantage of agriculture and in its location at the heart of the Mississippi-Missouri River system.

Other sections of our nation, particularly the arid and semi-arid plains of the West and Southwest, have been looking at the rivers which flow along and through our State as a possible source of supply to meet the present and future needs of their cities, farms and businesses.

As one example, companion bills, S.2779 and H.R. 14447, have been introduced in the Congress asking for a study of the feasibility of diverting 13 million acre-feet of water per year from the Missouri River immediately below Fort Randall Reservoir on the South Dakota-Nebraska border. Engineers who drew up that plan suggested canals and pumping stations to carry the water west through northern Nebraska and south into Oklahoma and Texas.

We are going to urge that studies now being made on the Mississippi - Missouri River system be completed before considering or authorizing any proposed study for diversion.

One of the two pertinent authorized studies now underway is the comprehensive Missouri River Basin study scheduled for completion July 1 1969. I joined in supporting that study authorized in 1963.

Last year I joined in co-sponsorship of another resolution, even broader in scope, to study water needs and allocation of the entire Mississippi River system, including the Missouri River. This study has already been started but is not expected to be completed for some five or six years.

From the standpoint of our natural resources, for the future of our State there can be no more important question than the protection, development and use of our rivers.

MISSOURI WATER QUALITY STANDARDS APPROVED -- The Department of the Interior has recently approved the standards proposed by our State to protect and enhance the quality of its interstate waters. Missouri is the 17th state whose standards have been approved.

Both primary treatment of all discharges to the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers by the end of 1969, and secondary treatment for all municipal and industrial wastes are included in the Missouri standards. Deadline for installation of secondary treatment will be based on studies of improvements possible with increased treatment.

MAIL FOR SERVICEMEN -- Over 40,000 postal installations throughout the country will soon receive pamphlets outlining an enlarged program for airlifting letters, packages and certain other types of mail overseas at low postal rates.

As a result of new legislation, over 75% of all mail going overseas to servicemen is being airlifted. Parcel Air Lift (PAL) is one of the newest military mail services offered by the Post Office. Packages up to 30 pounds with combined length and girth of 60 inches now receive airlift service from a U.S. city directly to the overseas base on a space available basis.

Lack of LSD Laws Rated Hypocritical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commissioner of Narcotics Henry L. Giordano testified Tuesday that the absence of a federal law against possession of LSD is one reason for the increase in use of marijuana.

"Since it is widely known that LSD is more potent, and more dangerous, than the type of marijuana which is usually available," Giordano told a House subcommittee, "the more stringent laws which control marijuana have been made to appear hypocritical."

"Many young people have a way of disregarding laws which they think are hypocritical, and so the lack of sanctions governing such drugs such as LSD, has actually helped intensify problems with marijuana," Giordano added.

Possession of marijuana is a felony punishable by two to ten years in prison, but there is no current federal penalty against possession of LSD.

Giordano testified in favor of administration proposals to make possession of LSD a misdemeanor punishable by one year in prison and to strengthen penalties against manufacture, sale and distribution of LSD.

Before Giordano's testimony, a Kentucky Republican who describes the proposal to make LSD possession a crime as "absolutely unenforceable" tangled with a colleague supporting the measure.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown Jr. R-Ohio said making possession of LSD a crime "can act as a deterrent to those using LSD. If it will stop one promising but foolish young person from destroying himself and his progeny, such a law will be worthwhile."

But Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., one of three physicians in the House, told Brown that enforcement of the provision might mean sending millions of students to jail.

"Would you want to imprison 1.6 million high school children for possession of LSD?" Carter asked.

Brown said he doubted that would happen and said passage of the law would give courts an opportunity to apply "justice with mercy."

Carter's comment that the proposed law against possession of LSD "may be helpful in law enforcement but is absolutely unenforceable" was made to a reporter Monday after the subcommittee heard Food and Drug Commissioner James L. Goddard support the administration bill although he disagrees with its possession penalties.

"I wouldn't propose that section if it were to be under my jurisdiction," Goddard said, expressing doubts about the effect of such a penalty as a deterrent. Administration law enforcement officials said it would help them crack down on use of the hallucinogens and other dangerous drugs.

Gardiner Says U.S. Creating Viet Cong

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is "creating more Viet Cong than we are destroying," says Arthur Z. Gardiner, former director of the American foreign aid agency in Saigon who now heads a federally-backed organization operating there.

Saying he was expressing his personal views, Gardiner told an interviewer the United States should try hard for a peace settlement and pull its forces out of Vietnam.

He said such an approach would save American lives because "we are going down now on a course that has no ending whatsoever."

"Unless we do something different. We are going to be hopelessly bogged down in a major land war in Asia which our military leaders have said we should avoid at all costs."

Gardiner, chief of the U.S. Agency for International Development mission in Saigon in 1958-62, receives a heavy flow of grass-roots reports from South Vietnam in his current post as executive director of International Voluntary Services (IVS).

IVS is a private nonprofit organization which began sending youthful volunteers to South Vietnam for development work a decade ago. Their activities in the cities and countryside— similar to those of the Peace Corps, which has no unit in Vietnam— are financed by the Washington and Saigon governments.

But a spokesman for the aid-administering Agency for International Development said there is no thought of withdrawing IVS altogether.

Sources said Gardiner is free to air his personal views as a citizen and that AID's spending on IVS, about $1.2 million this year, is related to the services IVS renders rather than the private opinions of its members.

Gardiner said he wrote letters to two U.S. newspapers before the outbreak of Communist attacks at the end of January. In them he said:

— Hatred for America exists in most of Vietnam today "from the overbearing presence of 500,000 Americans," from jealousy of Vietnamese officials displaced in practice by U.S. advisers and from military tactics which have uprooted nearly a quarter of the civilian population.

— Constructive efforts toward a peaceful and prosperous Vietnam "are doomed if they must depend on the leadership of an unstable, little-respected military clique"

White's Trip Fans Talk of Alliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ostensible reason F. Clifton White showed up at last week's Republican National Committee meeting here was to lend California Gov. Ronald Reagan's help to other GOP governors seeking larger voice in their party's platform deliberations.

White, one of the masterminds of Barry Goldwater's 1964 campaign for the GOP presidential nomination, has recently gone to work for the California GOP national convention delegation, which Reagan will head as a favorite son.

Republican officials from Pennsylvania insisted that White's visit to their suite was to help Gov. Raymond P. Shafer in his so-far unsuccessful effort to win co-billing with Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen on the platform committee.

They denied in private discussions that any alliance is shaping up between the conservative Reagan and Republican moderates, who favor either Michigan Gov. George Romney or New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the party's presidential nomination.

As for Rockefeller and Reagan, who have said they are not candidates but whose supporters keep pushing them, their chances depend largely on whether Nixon falters enough during the primary season to turn the GOP convention into an open battle.

Republican congressional leaders, such as Wisconsin's Melvin R. Laird, who feel Rockefeller would be a stronger candidate than Nixon, think the former vice president will be the nominee if he sweeps primaries in New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon.

But if he slips the convention could become a wide-open affair, with as many as 15 GOP favorite-son candidates, most of them governors, assuming an increasing importance. Rockefeller as well as Reagan is scheduled to be favorite-son candidate.

In such a situation, supporters of both Rockefeller and Reagan have reason to think their man could emerge as the nominee.

Reagan will start with a nucleus of California plus a large bloc of Southern states which will support Nixon at the start but consider Reagan a stronger candidate in a three-cornered race with President Johnson and former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Reagan supporters are also hoping many of the 1964 convention delegates, who gave Goldwater the nomination on the first ballot, will be at Miami Beach eager to support the most conservative possibility.

Rockefeller has strong support among GOP governors, who will play a strong role in the selection of delegates from their states.

One party source estimated recently that at least 10 governors favor Rockefeller, to 4 for Nixon and 2— Rockefeller himself and Rhode Island Gov. John H. Chaffee— for Romney. Most of the other 10 governors are moderates who might favor a Rockefeller candidacy.

Supporters of both Rockefeller and Reagan, who expect Nixon to win the early primaries, are looking toward Oregon as the best hope of stopping Nixon. Reagan already has the makings of a statewide organization there, and Rockefeller retains a strong nucleus of elected GOP officials from his 1964 primary victory there.

FOOD MOVED BY RAIL

NEW DELHI (AP) Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has personally thanked and praised the nation's railways and rail employes for their movement of food supplies during India's "difficult period of drought" in 1967.

She said more than 13 million tons of imported and internationally procured foodgrains were moved by rail to about 239 million people.

Another Spy Recruit

Harry Ambler, at 42 down on his luck in London, knows nothing about spying. But he can ski, pilot an airplane and put up a convincing front in a fashionable club, restaurant or resort.

That's partly why he is recruited by an Australian millionaire named Brock to find out something about another tycoon, Max Vyan. But the main reason is that back in 1945 Ambler had helped Vyan escape from a German prison camp, and presumably would still have Vyan's confidence. So Ambler is turned into a private spy, and placed under the charge of Brock's brilliant assistant Mary Dunn.

His opening assignment is to find out whether Vyan now has a fabulous diamond known as the Koala, which had belonged to Brock, and whether it is true that Vyan's stunningly beautiful "social secretary," Tanya von Silberbach, wears the diamond constantly.

Actually, finding the diamond is only a test of Ambler's ability to get next to Vyan. For what Brock and Mary Dunn want to find out is what Vyan really is up to, there in a guarded, moated castle in the Swiss Alps, next to a posh ski resort which Vyan owns.

Ambler, who narrates this tale, doesn't realize what he is getting into, but he plays his act to the hilt —driving around in an armored hotrod, trying to match Tanya's professional skill on the ski slopes, fighting for survival with a revolver or a laser beam. He has the help of Mary Dunn, who isn't much of a skier but has talents in electronics, karate, intrigue and first aid.

Now here is an extravaganza of the thriller-suspense genre, full of smart dialogue and deft narrative effects, with a wild plot that twitches the reader's nerves most enjoyably.

Few Girls Making Leap Year Offers

NEW YORK (AP) — Single men who dream of being pursued and caught by a rich, famous, beautiful and talented woman this Leap Year might just as well wake up.

At least eight American women who largely answer to this description not only are not going to do any man chasing, they don't intend to be caught. Not this year anyway.

Though the current demand for single men is much more than the supply it takes more than mere eligibility to attract the likes of Joey Heatherton, Lesley Gore, Inger Stevens, Patricia McBride, Hedda MacRae, Marlo Thomas, Cathy MacCauley, or Trenny Robb.

Indeed, most are quite happy to be single for the present, though "it helps to be in love," says Hedda MacRae, daughter of stage and screen stars Sheila and Gordon MacRae.

"Marriage is a ridiculous tribal rite," says 21-year old Cathy MacCauley, Corn Products heiress, party giver and pop celebrity. Besides she does not like children, "only flower children," she says.

Though most of the celebrated single girls are too busy with their careers to consider marriage at the moment, they like men with masculinity, strength, a sense of humor, respect for women and high intelligence as the eventual life partner.

"He can take me to inexpensive places, I don't care," said Trenny Robb, who won fame overnight as a fashion model after wowing Washington at the wedding of her brother Charles to Lynda Bird Johnson. Right now she is having too much fun to consider being Mrs. anyone.

"A sense of adventure," is high among the requisites for Marlo Thomas, daughter of comedian Danny Thomas and a television star in her own right. She also hopes to find a man some day who has the same respect for talented women which her father has.

Lesley Gore, rock 'n' roll singer, senior at Sarah Lawrence College and president of the Bachelorettes Club, is an old-fashioned girl who wants to be the pursued, not the pursuer. Though she hopes to be married eventually she is suspicious of the "so-called holy deadlock."

"I see so much of marriage breakups and unhappiness," she says, "I have a fear of it."

Asked who they thought were today's most interesting men, the young celebrities gave Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., the most votes with others going to Paul Newman, Tony Bennett, Warren Beatty, Dean Martin, McGeorge Bundy, George Balanchine, Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., and Mike Nichols— men who were, in some cases, two or three times older than the young women casting the ballots.

But as Patricia McBride, ballerina for the New York City Ballet Company, put it, "These are men we can admire, which is different from being physically attracted to them."

Russell Fears Khe Sanh Hard to Defend

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Richard B. Russell of the Senate Armed Service Committee expresses uneasiness about the U.S. military position at Khe Sanh where entrenched Marines face a potential massive Communist offensive.

"I am afraid this position may be difficult to defend," said the Georgia Democrat. "I hope we will be able to reinforce our troops there sufficiently."

Russell, predicting more U.S. troops will be sent to Vietnam, indicated in an interview he also expects a call-up of ground reservists to fill gaps in American home forces depleted by Vietnam manpower needs.

He declined to speculate on how many more troops might be sent to Vietnam.

Russell and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield agreed the pacification program in Vietnam had been all but wrecked when protective troops had to be withdrawn from villages and hamlets to defend the cities against the recent Viet Cong raids.

Mansfield said in a separate interview it is essential the program be revived, calling it the best hope for eventual stabilization of South Vietnam.

Russell said he is suggesting that the Senate preparedness subcommittee call Chairman Earle G. Wheeler of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to testify on likely increases in U.S. troop commitments in Vietnam.

Wheeler, en route home from Vietnam, said in Honolulu that U.S. forces were not surprised when the Viet Cong launched the raids.

"Contrary to some allegations, they— U.S. forces— were not taken by surprise by the enemy's Tet offensive," Wheeler told newsmen. "Rather, they were alert to the impending attack, and Gen. William Westmoreland employed his troops in a timely and decisive manner to aid the South Vietnamese forces and to inflict major losses on the attacking units."

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., said he expects the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, of which he is a member, to summon Ambassador Robert W. Komer to report on the condition of the pacification program. Komer, in charge of the program, is returning from Saigon with Wheeler to report to President Johnson. They are due in Washington Wednesday.

Wheeler is bringing home from Vietnam recommendations for troop increases that Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, a war critic, said in a Senate speech may total 125,000 additional men.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told his colleagues Monday that if more men are to be sent to Vietnam, Congress should be consulted in advance of any decision to escalate the war.

"In view of the disastrous situation in which we find ourselves, Congress should be informed of the plans before decision are made," he said.

Mansfield said Johnson stands ready to talk to Foreign Relations Committee members about Vietnam actions. The Democratic leader said no date for such a conference had been set.

Mansfield again proposed in a Senate speech a trial halt in U.S. bombing of North Vietnam. But the Democrat who ranks second to Mansfield, Assistant Democratic Leader Russell B. Long, D-La., said any pause would be "a bad mistake."

Long said the American people "are getting disgusted with this talk of a pause, of pulling your punches when the enemy is slugging you."

Polly's Pointers

Make Regular Mixer From Portable Mixer

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Betty that I made a do-it-yourself mixer with my portable one. I first set the bowl in the sink on top of a wet sponge so the bowl does not slip. I move the bowl far enough from the edge of the sink so the mixer rests on the bowl and the mixer handle on the top of the sink drainboard. The bowl must be approximately the same depth as the sink bowl or the mixer will fall.

To prevent splattering, I cover the bowl top with waxed paper that is long enough to reach up and slip under the switch of the mixer to hold it up. I even use this method for "churning" butter with my electric mixer.—ELMA

DEAR GIRLS—I also found that my portable mixer worked well when the bowl on the wet sponge was set in a corner of the sink with the mixer resting on the side of the bowl and against the corner of the sink.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have a method that works well for using a portable mixer without having to hold it. I use a wire cake-cooler or wire broiler-rack. Insert the part of beater into which you attach the actual beaters between the wires, then attach the beaters and place it all over a bowl of the right depth and size so the rack will fit well over the top of the bowl. When something needs lengthy beating, I turn the bowl now and then or scrape down the sides as you would with a larger mixer.—VERDA

DEAR POLLY—Have you or any of the readers found a good use for no longer needed diapers and baby receiving blankets?—LUCILLE

DEAR POLLY—My son, 6, has been home from school because of illness and he spent one entire afternoon making animal shapes and the letters of the alphabet with wire ties that came off bread and bun bags. If I get a dollar, it goes to him as the idea was his own.—MRS. E. L. for GREG

They were very cute, Greg, and thank you for sending me some samples of your work. I am sure making the letters of the alphabet helps you to remember them better.—POLLY

MISSISSIPPI-MISSOURI RIVER SYSTEM -- With the steadily increased demands for fresh water, the result of a rising population and expansion of agriculture and industry, growing attention is being given to the great advantage of agriculture and in its location at the heart of the Mississippi-Missouri River system.

Other sections of our nation, particularly the arid and semi-arid plains of the West and Southwest, have been looking at the rivers which flow along and through our State as a possible source of supply to meet the present and future needs of their cities, farms and businesses.

As one example, companion bills, S.2779 and H.R. 14447, have been introduced in the Congress asking for a study of the feasibility of diverting 13 million acre-feet of water per year from the Missouri River immediately below Fort Randall Reservoir on the South Dakota-Nebraska border. Engineers who drew up that plan suggested canals and pumping stations to carry the water west through northern Nebraska and south into Oklahoma and Texas.

We are going to urge that studies now being made on the Mississippi - Missouri River system be completed before considering or authorizing any proposed study for diversion.

One of the two pertinent authorized studies now underway is the comprehensive Missouri River Basin study scheduled for completion July 1 1969. I joined in supporting that study authorized in 1963.

Last year I joined in co-sponsorship of another resolution, even broader in scope, to study water needs and allocation of the entire Mississippi River system, including the Missouri River. This study has already been started but is not expected to be completed for some five or six years.

From the standpoint of our natural resources, for the future of our State there can be no more important question than the protection, development and use of our rivers.

MISSOURI WATER QUALITY STANDARDS APPROVED -- The Department of the Interior has recently approved the standards proposed by our State to protect and enhance the quality of its interstate waters. Missouri is the 17th state whose standards have been approved.

Both primary treatment of all discharges to the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers by the end of 1969, and secondary treatment for all municipal and industrial wastes are included in the Missouri standards. Deadline for installation of secondary treatment will be based on studies of improvements possible with increased treatment.

MAIL FOR SERVICEMEN -- Over 40,000 postal installations throughout the country will soon receive pamphlets outlining an enlarged program for airlifting letters, packages and certain other types of mail overseas at low postal rates.

As a result of new legislation, over 75% of all mail going overseas to servicemen is being airlifted. Parcel Air Lift (PAL) is one of the newest military mail services offered by the Post Office. Packages up to 30 pounds with combined length and girth of 60 inches now receive airlift service from a U.S. city directly to the overseas base on a space available basis.

Lack of LSD Laws Rated Hypocritical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commissioner of Narcotics Henry L. Giordano testified Tuesday that the absence of a federal law against possession of LSD is one reason for the increase in use of marijuana.

"Since it is widely known that LSD is more potent, and more dangerous, than the type of marijuana which is usually available," Giordano told a House subcommittee, "the more stringent laws which control marijuana have been made to appear hypocritical."

"Many young people have a way of disregarding laws which they think are hypocritical, and so the lack of sanctions governing such drugs such as LSD, has actually helped intensify problems with marijuana," Giordano added.

Possession of marijuana is a felony punishable by two to ten years in prison, but there is no current federal penalty against possession of LSD.

Giordano testified in favor of administration proposals to make possession of LSD a misdemeanor punishable by one year in prison and to strengthen penalties against manufacture, sale and distribution of LSD.

Before Giordano's testimony, a Kentucky Republican who describes the proposal to make LSD possession a crime as "absolutely unenforceable" tangled with a colleague supporting the measure.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown Jr. R-Ohio said making possession of LSD a crime "can act as a deterrent to those using LSD. If it will stop one promising but foolish young person from destroying himself and his progeny, such a law will be worthwhile."

But Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., one of three physicians in the House, told Brown that enforcement of the provision might mean sending millions of students to jail.

"Would you want to imprison 1.6 million high school children for possession of LSD?" Carter asked.

Brown said he doubted that would happen and said passage of the law would give courts an opportunity to apply "justice with mercy."

Carter's comment that the proposed law against possession of LSD "may be helpful in law enforcement but is absolutely unenforceable" was made to a reporter Monday after the subcommittee heard Food and Drug Commissioner James L. Goddard support the administration bill although he disagrees with its possession penalties.

"I wouldn't propose that section if it were to be under my jurisdiction," Goddard said, expressing doubts about the effect of such a penalty as a deterrent. Administration law enforcement officials said it would help them crack down on use of the hallucinogens and other dangerous drugs.

Gardiner Says U.S. Creating Viet Cong

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is "creating more Viet Cong than we are destroying," says Arthur Z. Gardiner, former director of the American foreign aid agency in Saigon who now heads a federally-backed organization operating there.

Saying he was expressing his personal views, Gardiner told an interviewer the United States should try hard for a peace settlement and pull its forces out of Vietnam.

He said such an approach would save American lives because "we are going down now on a course that has no ending whatsoever."

"Unless we do something different. We are going to be hopelessly bogged down in a major land war in Asia which our military leaders have said we should avoid at all costs."

Gardiner, chief of the U.S. Agency for International Development mission in Saigon in 1958-62, receives a heavy flow of grass-roots reports from South Vietnam in his current post as executive director of International Voluntary Services (IVS).

IVS is a private nonprofit organization which began sending youthful volunteers to South Vietnam for development work a decade ago. Their activities in the cities and countryside— similar to those of the Peace Corps, which has no unit in Vietnam— are financed by the Washington and Saigon governments.

In the wake of the Communist Tet onslaught, some of the 155 IVS volunteers have decided to quit before the end of their two-year tours.

But a spokesman for the aid-administering Agency for International Development said there is no thought of withdrawing IVS altogether.

Sources said Gardiner is free to air his personal views as a citizen and that AID's spending on IVS, about $1.2 million this year, is related to the services IVS renders rather than the private opinions of its members.

Gardiner said he wrote letters to two U.S. newspapers before the outbreak of Communist attacks at the end of January. In them he said:

— Hatred for America exists in most of Vietnam today "from the overbearing presence of 500,000 Americans," from jealousy of Vietnamese officials displaced in practice by U.S. advisers and from military tactics which have uprooted nearly a quarter of the civilian population.
